Girl's Spy Story

Special Dispatch to The Post.

New York, Oct. 20.—A statement signed by Johanna (Jenni) Hofmann, 26-year-old former hairdresser on the North German Lloyd liner Europa, in which she told of her activities as a messenger for an alleged German spy ring, was read into the record of United States District Court late this afternoon by Lester C. Dunigan, assistant United States attorney. Miss Hofmann, with two codefendants, Erich Glaser and Otto Herman Voss, is on trial under an indictment for espionage.

Miss Hofmann's statement, admitted by Judge John C. Knox despite vigorous objection by defense counsel, was signed in the office of Leon G. Turrou, then an agent of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, on February 25, according to the testimony of Guenther Gustav Rumrich, who completed his fourth day on the witness stand today.

Rumrich Translator

Rumrich, who has pleaded guilty under the indictment, said he acted as a translator between Miss Hofmann and Turrou, and that he assisted in the preparation of two copies of the statement, one in German and one in English. He said he translated the English version to Miss Hofmann, and that she then signed both copies. It was the English statement that was read into the record.

Rumrich also told of his own arrest, which came after his clumsy attempt to secure 50 passport blanks by posing as "Mr. Weston, Under Secretary of State," and he told of a letter he received from a German agent which indicated, through warnings couched in general business terms, that agents operating out of Berlin and Breman held neither respect nor trust for agents operating out of Hamburg.

The letter was signed, "N. Spielman." The espionage indictment named as one of the 18 defendants Capt. Lieut. Erich Pfeiffer, in charge of naval intelligence at Bremen, and gave the name "N. Spielman" as his alias. However, Rumrich said that Karl Schlueter, former steward on

Typhoon Kills 230 in Japan, Touches Tokyo

Tokyo (Friday), Oct. 21 (U.P.).—A typhoon which passed through Kyushu, one of the larger Japanese islands, killed an estimated 230 persons today and caused suffering to more than 35,000.

The edge of the same typhoon crossed Tokyo, flooded 10,000 homes, destroyed trees and light structures and paralyzed traffic but it was believed none was injured here.

Mrs. Roosevelt's Receipts Stolen

Green Bay, Wis., Oct. 20 (A.P.).—Box-office receipts for the speaking appearance here tonight of Mrs. Roosevelt were reported to police as having been stolen by two men masquerading as guards. The money, "several hundred dollars," was to have gone chiefly to Mrs. Roosevelt's charities.

Japanese Storm Port 35 Miles From Hankow

15 Miles From Canton
Both May Be Given Up
Reported Chiang's Plan

By the United Press.

Hongkong (Friday), Oct. 21.—Japan's victorious armies were driving into the environs of Hankow and Canton today and Chinese resistance on a national scale appeared to be suffering a major collapse.

On the Hankow front the Japanese were storming Ocheng, last fortified Yangtze River port below the provisional Chinese national capital, and were reported within 35 miles of the strategic Wuhan (Wuchang, Hankow and Hanyang) area.

In South China Lieut. Gen. Iwane Matsui's "model" army from Formosa was within 15 miles of Canton and Japanese were predicting occupation of the great South China metropolis within a week.

Gen. Chiang was reported to have decided at his southern field headquarters in Henyang, South Hunan province, to give up both his provisional capital and Canton and center new lines of resistance in the western province of Szechuan and the southwestern provinces of Kwangsi and Yunnan.

The Japanese reported at midnight that they had captured Chankang-shu, within 20 miles of Canton, and fought their way 5 miles further along the highway leading to the big southern city.

They understood that the Kwangtung provincial government had fled from Canton to the interior.

On the Hankow front, a Japanese spokesman said in Shanghai, powerful Japanese land forces, supported by warships, were expected to complete the occupation of Ocheng during the day. The city is on the south bank of the Yangtze, southeast of Hankow. On the north bank of the river another Japanese column was storming Kishui, from which it will drive on strong Chinese positions in Hwangfeng.

To the southward one of the Japanese spearheads driving toward the Hankow-Canton Railway had completed occupation of the walled city of Tayeh and the big iron works there.

In Shanghai Mayor Fu Tsung-yao of the Chinese city told newspapermen that Chinese nationalist guerrilla bands had been wiped out and that reconstruction work in areas destroyed during the fighting around the city a year ago would be started at once.

British Terms May Wreck U.S. Trade Pact

America Asks More
Draft Feared Final
Autos Cause Hitch

By the Associated Press.

The United States Government has given Great Britain to understand, it was reported reliably last night, that she must grant substantial concessions on certain American products or see negotiations for the vaunted Anglo-American trade treaty fall through.

The State Department was said to be insisting upon a substantial rather than a superficial agreement.

This attitude has been reflected, it was reported, in a communication sent to the London government, summarizing the concessions Britain has offered thus far and declaring they did not warrant this Government in signing the proposed pact and presenting it to the American public.

This was the first public intimation here that the treaty might not materialize.

Autos Cause Trouble

Negotiations for the agreement, which would cap Secretary Hull's general program of bargaining down barriers to world trade, have been under way for six months. Experts on both sides have predicted that trade between the two countries would boom once an agreement on mutual tariff concessions was worked out.

The products causing trouble are automobiles, hams, lard and bacon. For several weeks these have been plaguing negotiators.

The American negotiators are said to feel that they have yielded all they can. They say that they have already made substantial concessions and that the minimum of concessions for British projects has been raised several times.

Can't Sell It to Public

Negotiators have told the British they cannot sell the agreement to the American public as it stands at present.

The discussion on automobiles has centered on applying to cars of 20 horsepower or more the tariff reduction the British were willing to make on cars of 25 horsepower or more. The reduction is 10 per cent.

American negotiators contended that concessions on the higher horsepower cars would not assist American exports sufficiently because

Hitler Decrees Civil Rule

By the United Press.

Prague, Oct. 20.—Germany ordered reinforcements of mobile police and Nazi storm troopers into the Sudetenland tonight to "insure safety with force of arms" after the killing of six Czechoslovaks in clashes with German authorities.

The Prague government, striving for closer friendship with the German Reich, simultaneously issued a decree outlawing the Communist Party throughout the dismembered republic.

The Germans have accused the Communists, and the anti-Nazi German social democrats, of major responsibility for "terrorism" preceding surrender of the Sudetenland.

Papers Suppressed

The decree suppressing the Communists and their newspapers affected Bohemia, Moravia and Silesia provinces and conforms with a similar decree by the autonomous government of Slovakia two days ago.

As result, the official Communist organ, Rude Pravo, will not appear Friday, although Communist Party executives announced they would appeal from the decree.

The German official news agency, D. N. B., announced dispatch of additional police and "S. S." storm troopers into the Sudentenland, par-

Wars on Church End in Disaster, Pope Warns Hitler

Vatican City, Oct. 20 (U.P.).—The Pope today severely denounced the Nazi regime's church policy, it was learned from a trustworthy source. The speech was described as the strongest ever delivered by the present Pontiff.

The denunciation was at Castel Gandolfo before delegates to the Fourth International Christian Archeology Congress, who were received in private audience.

The Pope reportedly warned Reichsfuehrer Hitler by implication that any attempt to crush the church must either fail or end disasterously. He recalled that Bismark had to abandon "Kulturkampf," while Napoleon's fall was due to his brutal persecution of Pope Pius VII.

The informant said the tone of the speech made officials of the papal court hesitant regarding the advisability of publishing it immediately.

2 Gunmen Take $10,000 Gems in Waldorf-Astoria

New York, Oct. 20 (A.P.).—Two polite gunmen held up a jewelry shop just off the main lobby of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel today and escaped with $10,000 worth of jewels after binding and gagging three men. They overlooked $150,000 worth of jewelry in an open safe in the rear of the shop.

The men entered the shop, asked to see some wrist watches, and then drew revolvers.

Pedestrians Held to Blame For Traffic Toll in District

By Howard F. Wentworth.

No. 1 in a Series.

"Look at that," said the man on the corner, "it's a wonder they don't get killed."

He was watching the jostling crowd of pedestrians as they darted through the maze of rush-hour traffic at Tenth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest.

"Where I come from," the bystander continued, "we are supposed to wait for the proper signal before crossing a street—but I guess that rule doesn't apply here."

He was right. The rule doesn't apply in Washington. Pedestrians may do as they please—if they're agile and lucky.

But the man on the corner had no need to wonder "why they don't get killed." The records speak for themselves—they do get killed. This year, 53 pedestrians have been fatally injured.

Within the past two weeks, two elderly men were mangled beneath the wheels of automobiles, a stone's throw from where the puzzled bystander was watching Washington's daily battle of pedestrian vs. motorist.

In 41 cases of the total pedestrian deaths this year, a coroner's jury has held the walkers to be at fault. During the past three years, more than 70 per cent of all fatal accidents involved pedestrians.

Repeated efforts to promulgate pedestrian control laws here—to

Mitchell Asks Civil Service Appeal Court

For Final Decisions
Roosevelt Approves
Union Head Agrees
Urges Simplicity

Wage Act to Be Law

WAGE-HOUR Administrator Andrews called on organized labor to prevent "hasty suits" under the wage-hour act when it goes into effect next Monday. He estimated 750,000 workers would receive pay raises and 1,500,000 would have their hours shortened by the act. Page 2.

Tribunal for Workers

A court of appeals for Federal employe grievances, possibly within the Civil Service Commission and armed with powers of final determination, was suggested yesterday by Civil Service Commissioner Harry B. Mitchell.

The Executive orders of June 24 extending the merit system made some form of appeals mandatory, but its scope had not been officially discussed until the suggestion came yesterday to the Civil Service Assembly, in annual conference here.

President Consulted

It was understood that his suggestion arose from a conversation he held with the President recently. The system would amount to this: Each department and agency would have some form of appeals procedure for workers. Should the employe, after stating his case there, feel that further determination of the issue should be made, the case could be taken to the last appeals court. This, Commissioner Mitchell said, might be within the Civil Service Commission.

Their action would be final and complete. The President is said to have commented that he could empower this last court with final determination.

Congressmen who have taken an outstanding interest in employe affairs have on several occasions intimated that Congress would be unwilling to establish another agency to hear grievances. This was taken as leading Commissioner Mitchell to believe that such a court would center within the commission.

Simple System Urged

His suggestion was made when the assembly, which concludes its five-day conference today, discussed appeals procedure for the whole of yesterday afternoon. It was believed that nothing in this direction would be done quickly; the chances are that nothing will be done until the personnel council, ordered by the Executive orders, is established.

The question arose during discussion that such departmental appeals systems as have been developed—and there is some form of this in nearly every agency in town—had no final authority on the issues.

Writ Blocks Strachey Ouster Pending Hearing

New York, Oct. 20 (A.P.).—Federal Judge Edward A. Conger today signed a writ of habeas corpus requiring the production in court before him Tuesday of Evelyn John St. L. Strachey, English writer and lecturer, who has been ordered excluded from the United States on the ground that he is a Communist. The writ will prevent the scheduled deportation of Strachey tomorrow, and will assure a hearing for him on Tuesday.

By the Associated Press.

The Public Works Administration arranged yesterday to give John Strachey, British lecturer-author-economist, barred from the United States, "material for an economic study of the New Deal."

Strachey had applied for "reports, statements, statistical summaries of expenditures and histories" of the Administration, in a letter written October 18.

Governor Rebuffed In Packing Strike

Sioux City, Iowa, Oct. 20 (A.P.).—Although faced with a "demand" from Gov. Kraschel to reopen Swift & Co.'s strike-bound packing plant "forthwith," representatives of both the company and the C. I. O. union delayed action tonight pending further discussion of the executive statement.

Duplicates of the Governor's statement, which demanded arbitration or negotiation on what he termed "minor differences" went to both factions. Kraschel placed settlement of the strike squarely in the hands of company and union.

Albuquerque, N. Mex., Oct. 20.—A Federal grand jury today indicted 62 persons for conspiracy to violate the Federal WPA laws in New Mexico, among them Stanley W. P. Miller, assistant United States district attorney, and scores of men and women of high place in State and Federal Government.

Eleven other indictments were returned for political discrimination against WPA labor, diversion of WPA funds and services and illegal political activities.

Federal Judge Colin Neblett, grim and low-voiced, ordered the United States marshal to arrest the 73 defendants and bring them to court Tuesday morning to make bond.

Chavez' Sister Cited

The grand jury found true bills against men and women long associated with governmental matters.

Among them were Miller, who is son-in-law of United States Senator Dennis Chavez; Mrs. Anita Tafoya, the Senator's sister; his cousin, Salamon Chavez; his nephew, Salamon Tafoya; Mrs. J. A. Werner, wife of the Albuquerque postmaster; Mariano Werner, the postmaster's brother; Fred G. Healy, former State WPA administrator; Fred Sganzini, head of the State Drivers' License Bureau; Joe Martinez, secretary to Senator Chavez; Richard Duran, of the Department of Internal Revenue, and scores of WPA administrative employes.

A maximum penalty of two years imprisonment and a $10,000 fine may be imposed on persons convicted on the conspiracy charges.

Among defendants charged with violations of the WPA code citing diversion of property and services to personal use, and political discrimination was Bernardo Cruz, Mora County Democratic chairman.

Police Chief Indicted

Others indicted on felony counts of conspiracy included Police Chief John Wooten, of Las Vegas, former State Police Capt. Roy Vermillion, and chief Wooten's brother, Steve.

Miller, departing on a party with wife and friends, said he would have something to say tomorrow.

Senator Chavez received reporters with a smile, saying:

"No comment whatsoever. The matter is pending before the court. Under our system of jurisprudence all persons charged with offenses against the State or Government are presumed to be innocent until proven otherwise. It is a pending case which the court will attend to."

[Martinez, the Senator's secretary, also is in New Mexico and no comment could be obtained from Chavez' office. However, a friend

Age Pension Fever Grips a Dozen States

Survey Is Conducted
Californians Wary
Oppose Plan, 2 to 1

By Dr. George Gallup,
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

New York, Oct. 20.—Preliminary results of a survey of public opinion in California show a decisive majority against enactment of the "Thirty-Dollars-Every-Thursday" pension plan on which the voters will give their verdict November 8.

GALLUP.

The scheme, which goes on the State's ballots as the result of a mammoth petition, is not only rocking California but has attracted more national attention than any pension drive since the Townsend Plan. Even the Roosevelt Administration has stepped into the fight and attempted to defeat the movement.

Because it is the most widely discussed of the many extreme pension schemes which are popping up in the Nation, the American Institute of Public Opinion conducted a special cross-section survey throughout California.

Its preliminary findings show the voters against the plan by approximately 2 to 1.

The rank and file of both major parties are opposed to the scheme, according to the survey. Among California Democrats the vote is approximately 3 to 2 opposed, and among the Republicans nearly 4 to 1.

The survey, conducted by field interviewers throughout the State, is not yet completed. Final returns will be reported before the election.

But the preliminary vote indicates that, unless there is some sharp change in sentiment, the scheme will be defeated at the polls in November.

Movement Has Spread To Other States

The "Thirty-Dollars-Every-Thursday" plan, with variations, has spread to many other States. It is being promoted by organizations or political candidates in Tennessee, Alabama, Colorado,

Advisory Board Meets
Roosevelt Skeptical
Calls Idea 'Utopian'

"Funny money" and generous old age pension plans, now held out as a lure to voters in more than a dozen campaigns, are being watched with concern by official Washington pending November's decision at the polls.

While the Social Security Advisory Council meets here today to consider changes in the Federal old age pension law, variations on Dr. Francis E. Townsend's famous prescription are infecting politics from Maine to California.

"Short cuts to Utopia," and "fantastic financial schemes" the President has called them. Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau labels them "financially unsound." But in unorthodox Republican and Democratic ranks the virus is spreading and no contest is complete without its old age plan of $30 every Thursday.

In California it is "$30 very Thursday," with Sheridan Downey, Democratic nominee for the Senate the vendor of the Townsend plan's most potent offshoot. Graced on the ballot as a proposed amendment to the State's constitution, threatening to deluge the State with stamp money, the new plan will be offered for the California voters' choice in less than three weeks.

More swiftly than the Townsend magic, the word has spread to other States in many forms and many movements. Early this month it was put up to the Arizona legislature as a proposed amendment to that State's constitution. There it was swiftly and emphatically rejected.

In several States it is being dished out on the hustings in more modest form. Gov. Langer in North Dakota has seized on the old-age pension issue in his effort to lick Senator Nye. The North Dakota version calls for only $40 a month to all over 65, including the Federal Government's $15 contribution.

Colorado two years ago succumbed to agitation to enact a $45-a-month pension amendment, and State taxes since have proved inadequate to support it. That is the highest State pension law now in effect, and the reaction has already set in. A movement to repeal it is now in full swing. But a sound truck of the Federation for Workable Old-Age Pensions, leading the

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 20.—Cambridge police threw a patrol around Harvard University tonight to stop student "burlesquing"— outgrowth of a city council battle to divorce the university from the city.

As policemen, armed with tear gas bombs, watched streets near the famous institution, Sergt. Charles P. Donelan explained they were there "just to remind Harvard men they promised there would be no further outbreaks."

Earlier, a skirmish occurred near the Harvard Lampoon building.

Councilor Michael A. Sullivan said he was kicked while attempting to halt a parade of goose-stepping, blue-shirted students—aspirants for a place on the staff of the Lampoon, the university's comic magazine.

The 60-year-old councilor, protesting that the paraders lacked a permit, said he would seek "John Doe" warrants as a result of the melee.

The Lampoon's heralded "sham battle" came as Mayor John W. Lyons launched an investigation into alleged illegal registration of voters in wards surrounding Harvard.

The mayor said he had heard students were registering improperly to vote for a proposed change in the city charter which would establish a city manager form of government in place of the mayor and council.

Philadelphian Mysteriously Shot On Arlington Road

Earl Willard, 45-year-old osteopath of Philadelphia, Pa., was mysteriously shot yesterday shortly after dark while he walked along an Arlington road, he told police.

Willard was unable to name his assailant, or give any reason for the attack. The bullet struck him in the right shoulder, passing through and out.

Found lying in the roadway a few minutes after the shot was fired, Willard was taken to the office of Dr. Frank Bernard Schultz, in Falls Church, for emergency treatment.

Falls Church police later took him to Georgetown Hospital, where his condition last night was said to be not serious.

Labor Asked To Bar 'Hasty' Wage-Hr. Suits

Andrews Issues Appeal Will Enforce New Act 750,000 to Get Raise

By Robert C. Albright.

Wage-Hour Administrator Andrews yesterday called for the cooperation of organized labor to prevent "hasty suits" by workers against violations of the wage-hour law.

Despite staff and funds shortages, Andrews announced his intention to proceed with enforcement of automatic provisions of the act on Monday, without any "period of grace" for employers.

But he said he doesn't want workers to file "half-cocked" suits in the courts. To that end he said he had sought and obtained promises of help from American Federation of Labor and Committee for Industrial Organization leaders.

750,000 to Get Raise

Figures made public for the first time by the wage-hour administrator indicated 750,000 workers will be subject to pay raises under the 25-cent-an-hour wage floor effective on Monday. About 1,500,000 will have their working hours shortened by the 44-hour-week ceiling.

Data on the sectional distribution of affected employes was lacking, but Andrews indicated the larger portion would be found in the South.

He predicted a spread in employment would result "if industry goes along with the spirit of the act."

"If it doesn't go along," said Andrews, "we will have to get more money from Congress for more inspectors and for real enforcement."

Period of Grace

A period of grace for "borderline" or other industries not ready for the law's operation "would not be fair to those who are ready and willing to comply," the administrator said.

Andrews received reporters in company with Hampton Magruder, the division's chief counsel. He referred legal inquiries to Magruder. The chief counsel repeated that it would be impossible to designate specifically the specific industries affected by interstate features.

Instead, the division has issued definitions of the types of business and work affected and so-called "borderline" cases must determine for themselves whether they come within scope of the law. If they fail to comply, they are subject to suits workers can file against violators. And in the end it will be the courts, not the wage-hour division, which decide which types of work are liable. Andrews made clear that any prior opinion by his division would not be binding.

If workers' suits are upheld, they could recover twice the amount of the difference between the wages paid them and the level required by the wage-hour law. In addition, the Government can prosecute violators. Penalties range to a fine of $10,000 and imprisonment of six months.

Andrews is anxious that first test suits filed by individual workers be on sound grounds that will hold water in the courts.

"The American Federation of Labor will be very helpful, assisting us in advising their members not to bring hasty action against employers not complying with the act," he told reporters. He said the same applied to the C. I. O.

Can't Control Employes

"We can't control the employes," he said. "Where they are affiliated with unions, we hope the unions will guide them."

He said employes in textile, cotton garment, cigar manufacturing, fertilizer and Southern and Southwestern lumbering industries will be most affected by first-year features of the law operative October 24.

Due to lack of funds, the agency will have only about 30 inspectors in the field when the law takes effect, and only two of the eight regional directors have been appointed. Their early duties will be mainly confined to answering inquiries and aiding employers in determining their status. Heavy reliance is being placed on co-operating State labor departments.

Staff Shortage

Despite the staff shortage, industries in any way affected were advised to comply fully to avoid threat of worker suits, over which the division has no control.

Meantime, Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the division's No. 1 industry committee (for textiles), yesterday asked trade associations in the textile industry to "analyze the possible effect of forthcoming minimum wage orders upon their industries."

The textile committee, the only industry group yet named by Andrews, has authority to recommend adjustments of wages above the 25-cent-an-hour floor to a maximum of 40 cents.

Representatives of the men's, women's and children's garment industry at a conference at the Labor Department yesterday voted for one industry committee for the entire apparel industry, with separate subcommittees for the various branches.

Capper Wants Change to Be 'Democratic' Texas Labor Group Asks Third Term

Chicago, Oct. 20 (AP).—Senator Capper (Republican), of Kansas, said today it was imperative that the increased regulation demanded by the complexities of civilization be "thoroughly democratic in form and essence."

CAPPER

"Else it will be despotic, oppressive and destructive of our very life," he added before the annual convention of the audit bureau of circulation.

Senator Capper, publisher of a daily newspaper and farm periodical at Topeka, Kans., said he did not fear that scientific advances in communication—television, radio, facsimile—would ever displace the press.

"To be sure," he said, "we may be compelled to adapt our methods to new conditions, but that's all to the good. Improved methods merely mean enlarged opportunity."

Beaumont, Tex., Oct. 20 (AP).—The Texas State Federation of Labor today indorsed President Roosevelt for a third term "if no other leader is found to carry forward his program to that same high degree that has been exemplified in his Administration."

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 20 (AP).—Representative Wadsworth (Republican), of New York, in an address before a Republican campaign rally tonight branded as "Hitlerism" what he said were the efforts of the New Deal to control industry and agriculture.

"When the United States Supreme Court knocked out the NRA and the old AAA, President Roosevelt then attacked the court and attempted to pass his court-packing bill," he said.

He also attacked the administration of relief, asserting that if the relief problem continues another five or six years, "relief clients will be reduced to a state akin to slavery."

Chairman Sheppard (Democrat), Texas, asked the Senate campaign expenditures committee yesterday to meet next Tuesday and Wednesday to receive reports from its 18 investigators in 9 States.

In addition, Sheppard said, the committee will consider making a new inquiry into complaints by Senator Davis (Republican), Pennsylvania, that WPA workers in Pennsylvania have been "shaken down" by Democratic campaigners.

The committee will act on reports from Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Georgia, Kentucky, Indiana, Illinois, California, New Jersey and Wisconsin.

Prohibition and liquor regulation have become involved in next month's voting in a dozen States.

North Dakota will vote on repeal of its 1936 liquor control act. Prohibitionists say such repeal would put North Dakota in the same class with the dry States of Mississippi, Tennessee, Oklahoma and Kansas. The wets say it would make the State wide open with neither prohibition nor liquor regulation laws.

Arkansas, Massachusetts, Montana, New Hampshire and Oregon will vote on various regulation measures. Several of these are local option proposals.

In Iowa, Georgia, Kansas, New Jersey, Oklahoma and Pennsylvania, Prohibition candidates appear on the general election ballots. The Prohibition Party also has candidates on the ticket in Massachusetts.

In Georgia the party chose a candidate for Governor, but he withdrew.

Buglars yesterday entered a storage room in the Arcade Market, Fourteenth and Park Road northwest, and made off with 160 pounds of butter, 700 pounds of sugar and 30 dozen cartons of eggs.

Meanwhile, Enoch Burns, of 2200 Branch avenue southeast, manager of a chain grocery store on Eastern avenue northeast, told police that burglars entered the store sometime yesterday by prying the boards from the rear door and stole a number of pennies, several cartons of cigarettes and two smoked hams.

James J. Ehrman, of 3137 eNwton street northeast reported that burglars broke in the rear door of his home and stole clothing and jewelry valued at $90.

Farley Throws Down Gage in Pennsylvania

Challenges Republicans Sees 'National Election' Speaks at $100 Dinner

By the Associated Press.

Philadelphia, Oct. 20.—Postmaster General Farley tonight termed the many State ballotings on November 8 "a national election" in which Republicans "have chosen Pennsylvania as their special battleground."

In a speech at the $100-a-plate dinner of Keystone Democrats, Farley said if Republicans "are able now to win even a partial victory" in Pennsylvania "they will parade it as proof that the New Deal has waned . . ."

He declared Republicans were "striving" to get enough elected to Congress "to make trouble" and added:

"They have the idea that if they could pin the badge of failure on one of the most brilliant administrations this country ever has known, the people might turn to them as it turned to our party when the last Republican Administration showed its lack of resource and courage . . ."

Others to Speak There

Farley, first of eight prominent party speakers slated to come into Pennsylvania before the election, spoke in the presence of Senator Guffey, State campaign chairman; Gov. Earle, nominee for the Senate, and Charles Alvin Jones, Pittsburgh attorney, Earle's running mate for Governor.

Without referring specifically to the bitter Pennsylvania primary campaign last spring, Farley declared:

"We cannot nurse our private feuds with the calm assumption that Democratic sentiment is so strong that we can afford to withhold support and strenuous effort from this candidate or that candidate.

Calls Primaries Assets

"As national chairman, I have often advanced the theory that primary struggles and rivalries are assets and not liabilities to a party, for the striving of ambitious members for the honors of office preserves political organizations from dry rot and decay."

In the Pennsylvania primary, a ticket backed by Guffey against Earle and Jones was defeated all down the line. Guffey later proclaimed that he had forgotten his differences and now is managing the State campaign.

Special trains brought delegations to the dinner from all parts of the State to join a group of Pennsylvanians from Washington. The proceeds, estimated by a Democratic official at $300,000, will go into the State campaign chest.

Pittsburgh Pair Critically Injured In Va. Crash

Toms Brook, Va., Oct. 29 (AP).—Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. Stone, of Pittsburgh, were injured critically this afternoon in an automobile accident less than a mile from the scene of a collsion here last night in which one man was killed and two women seriously hurt.

Mr. and Mrs. Stone were extricated from their demolished car, which crashed against a telephone pole a short distance south of here, and rushed in a semiconscious condition to Winchester Memorial Hospital. Their daughter, Thelma, and John Tfannenschniedt, also of Pittsburgh, escaped uninjured.

No warrant was issued today though trail justice court at Woodstock against Lake T. Fry, of Broadway, Va., driver of a truck which collided head-on with a light sedan here last night, resulting in the death of Hunter D. Spurrow, of Martinsburg, W. Va.

Republic Appeal Says Labor Board Is Partial to C.I.O.

Philadelphia, Oct. 20 (U.P.).—Republic Steel Corporation today appealed to the United States circuit court of appeals from a National Labor Relations Board order directing the company to reinstate 5,000 workers who struck in the company's Ohio plants in May, 1937.

The appeal charged the board with bias and prejudice in favor of Committee for Industrial Organization affiliates. The board's order was virtually a duplicate of that which it handed down April 6, but canceled in June after the company attacked its legality.

The company's appeal attacked a "pretended rehearing" held by the board after it canceled the first order. The appeal charged that the trial examiner for the board "displayed a distinct bias and prejudice for the S.W.O.C. and the C.I.O.," and permitted the board's attorney to record "hearsay and irrelevant testimony," while holding company attorneys to strict rules of evidence.

New Bedford Mayor, WPA Chief Indicted

New Belford, Mass., Oct. 20 (AP). A special grand jury, which has been investigating alleged irregularities in New Bedford, today indicted Mayor Leo J. Carney, his secretary and New Bedford WPA Co-ordinator James F. McKenna, 12 city councilors, 5 aldermen and several others on charges of bribery and conspiracy.

Carney was indicted on five counts of soliciting bribes of $25,000 each from Carl C. Collopy and Whitney J. Bent, both of New Bedford; Chester G. Parsons, of Belmont; John E. Doran, of Bridgeport, Conn., and Llewelyn Roberts, of New Bedford, in connection with garbage removal.

Welfare Parley Invites Hundreds in South

Birmingham, Ala., Oct. 20 (AP).—Officials in the Southern Conference for Human Welfare today invited hundreds of Southern organizations to send delegates to a meeting here November 20-23.

Lehman Orders Inquiry Into County Office

Geoghan Is Superseded Fur Racket Involved Records Disappeared

By the Associated Press.

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 20.—Gov. Lehman today ordered a broad investigation into "all acts of misfeasance, malfeasance, non-feasance, misconduct or negligence" in connection with all branches of Kings County (Brooklyn) law enforcement.

Lehman directed Attorney General Bennett to name a special assistant to conduct the inquiry—a post for which the Governor already had named John Harlan Amen, special Federal rackets prosecutor.

The order also named Supreme Court Justice McCurn, of Syracuse, to preside over an extraordinary court term called for November 17 in Brooklyn.

Three phases of investigation were covered by the order—one into activities of Kings County officials and law enforcement agencies, another into an alleged fur racket in which general indictments have been returned, and the other into the disappearance of records of the police department "or any other agencies of law enforcement in Kings County."

Lehman's order followed a conference late yesterday with Amen. The Governor, issuing the order which supersedes Kings County District Attorney Geoghan for the third time since 1933, urged public co-operation with Amen.

Fees Too High, Medical Suit Witness Says

FHLB Aide Testifies Studied Personnel Ills Urges Preventive Care

Medical costs to fit the people's pocketbooks were demanded by R. R. Zimmerman, personnel director of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, yesterday as he closed his testimony before the extraordinary District grand jury which is hearing Government charges that the American Medical Association and the District Medical Society are combinations in restraint of trade.

Zimmerman made a survey of "socialized medicine" plans which preceded organization of Group Health Association, Inc., here. Controversy between G. H. A. and established physicians' associations which the G. H. A. claims are conspiring to destroy it, impelled the Department of Justice to call for the special grand jury.

New Attitude Demanded

"There can be no question," Zimmerman declared, "that there is a growing body of sentiment, and particularly among people who work for wages and salaries, that there is need for an improvement in the administration of medical services. There can be no question about it; the cost of medical services as practiced today is just too expensive for the pocketbooks of most people. The very advance in the science and practice of medicine has created a problem which calls for new patterns.

Zimmerman, who has studied the question deeply and often, has discussed the health problem, announced that the Department of Justice emphasis on secrecy sealed his lips on the subject, when he left the grand jury room where he contributed his knowledge of the Washington situation to the evidence on which the Government will base its demand for indictments.

The department keeps secret its list of 100 witnesses to "protect" them and only when one has entered the investigation chamber is his name given out. When he leaves he is cautioned to say nothing about the testimony he has given.

Zimmerman was the first Washington man to testify. He followed three eminent students of the health-cost problem from Chicago, New York and the Mayo Clinic, who had given the grand jury a broad outline of the situation. This is now to be filled in with the history of the G. H. A. venture here and the acts of the A. M. A. and the District society which the Government contends violated the Sherman anti-trust act.

Zimmerman contributed to this evidence, it was understood, on account of his studies of the cost of sickness to the Home Loan Bank and the Home Owners Loan Corporation, which he found to have lost $500,000 because of illness which could have ben prevented. He found $100,000 of the avoidable loss in Washington.

Fee System Outmoded

His studies indicated that the problem of sickness could not be met by the "fee for services" system now generally used and upheld by established physicians' organizations. Under this system, it appeared, only 2 per cent of the community doctors' bills were for preventive medicine.

Zimmerman found that the problem had been solved in some cases by associations, in which persons combined to retain diagnosticians, surgeons, physicians and other experts to give the members continuous care, whether or not they were "sick enough to call the doctor."

Some of these associations were sponsored by industrial concerns, which found illness among their employes costing them money and had little patience with objections to the effect that the group method violated medical tradition, was radical, and the like. Zimmerman also found that "insurance schemes" did not end the difficulty, because they lacked the essential stress on preventive medicine, which the group plan supplied, thus administering treatment before the members became ill.

Preventive medicine, it appeared, simply did not reach the public under the "fee-for-service" system because the patients would not call a physician until they really were ill. The physician, on the other hand, found himself shackled by medical tradition which condemned "soliciting" business and he feared that for him to suggest preventive measures would violate the old rules.

G. H. A. Plan Explained

G. H. A. was organized here after this study of other such organizations. Opposition soon came from the District society and the A. M. A. G. H. A. was accused of practicing medicine in violation of the law and of selling insurance without a license.

These charges G. H. A. finally rebutted by winning a lawsuit in which the court said it was doing neither. J. Balch Moor has appealed the insurance part of the decision.

Three individual physicians then sued to have G. H. A. enjoined from operation. The action still is pending.

Before Zimmerman testified the grand jury conferred several hours privately with the assistants to the Attorney General who are presenting the Government's evidence, Allen Hart, Douglas Maggs, John Lewin and Daniel Kelleher.

Officials of G. H. A. are expected to testify today.

'Perfect Mate' Tells Why He Slew Rival

Wife Slept With His Gift She 'Repulsed Me' Left for Hotel

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Oct. 20.—Rudolph Sikora, the "model husband," told an avid crowd at his murder trial today the tragic story of his shattered romance.

Step by step he led up to the point where his rival, urbane Edward Solomon, promised to break off his clandestine affair with his comely wife, Margaret.

Detailing the chain of events that ended when Sikora slew Solomon last August 22, the pale and drawn defendant reported he accosted him on July 11. He added:

"I asked Solomon to quit going with my wife. I told him I loved her more than anything in the world. Solomon said he realized how much Margaret meant to me and that he couldn't be the husband to her that I had been. The next morning he telephoned that he wouldn't interfere any more. He wished me all the luck in the world."

Faces Electric Chair

But subsequently, he said, he saw Solomon visit Mrs. Sikora "eight or ten times" at a flat where she lived after leaving Sikora.

His account was interrupted by adjournment after he told that his 22-year-old wife had advised him that a "talk with Ed" convinced her she should get a divorce.

To a jury of 11 married men and a bachelor, qualified to send him to the electric chair, Sikora reported Margaret had been a "very affectionate" spouse until Solomon entered her life last March.

Then, he continued, their normal marital relationship ceased. Her caresses, he said, were lavished on a Panda Doll—a Teddy Bear—his rival had given her.

Took Panda to Bed

He admitted he was sometimes annoyed by the fact she took it to bed with her and told how he sometimes removed it.

"You had to take it out of bed, so you could get in yourself?" queried Defense Counsel Smith.

The crowd roared.

"When I tried to put my arms around her, she pushed me away," he testified.

One July night, Sikora recalled, he asked why she "avoided" him. He added:

"Suddenly she said 'Rudy, what do you say we call it quits?' I said 'Margaret, do you know what you're saying? Have I been unkind?' 'No,' she said, 'You've been very good to me.'"

In fact, she termed him a "perfect husband" only eight days before she deserted him on July 9.

Sighs During Story

Sikora, sighing, informed the jury he had begged her repeatedly to return, bought her a radio, fetched warm breakfasts to her new abode on Sunday mornings and always left a light in the front window of their honeymoon apartment "so, if she saw it, she would know she was welcome."

He told in a flat voice how he finally heard her confession of her affection for Solomon, a 35-year-old bachelor who fancied poetry.

"Did she say she loved him?" inquired Smith.

"Yes."

"Did she say whether she had ceased to care for you?"

"Yes. She admitted, too, that she had been lying to me when she told me she had been going out with girl friends. She had been in Solomon's company."

Earlier, the throng had heard Sikora's brother, Albert, testify he believed the defendant was insane at the time of the shooting.

D. C. Student Flier Cracks Up As Wind Rips Maryland Field

Overshoots His Mark in Trying to Land Plows Into Rough Ground Beyond Airport Queens Chapel Is Scene of Near-Tragedy

A 23-year-old student pilot last night narrowly escaped death when his plane, twisted out of control by a sudden gust of wind, skimmed telephone wires and ploughed into rough ground 400 yards from Queens Chapel Airport, Md.

Edgar Kegley, of 1767 Church street northwest, bringing down his ship in the stiff wind before yesterday's driving rain, struck a treacherous air current at the southeast corner of the airport as he prepared to swing the plane around before landing.

Plunging from an altitude of 100 feet perilously close to overhead wires along Queens Chapel road, Kegley was unable to point his plane back toward the airport in the near-gale and shot across a brush-covered field, a few feet about ground.

In a pancake landing near the edge of the field, fusilage, wings and undercarriage of the single-seat monoplane were crumpled beyond repair and the propeller smashed.

Kegley suffered lacerations of the face and scalp. He was treated later at Sibley Hospital.

Gingerly dismantling the plane, airport mechanics said they believed the ignition was still on and that the ship might have burst into flames if it had hit a small gully a few yards distant.

Kegley has 20 hours of solo flying to his credit, according to airport officials.

Pearl White's Will Gives $75,000 To Help Artists

New York, Oct. 20 (AP).—Pearl White, pioner heroine of thriller movies, who died in Paris, directed in a seuperseding will filed today that a considerable part of her fortune be given to "charities taking care of artists."

Charitable bequests totaling £15,000 (about $75,000) were enumerated in the will, which was drawn June 22. The previous will was dated June 11, 1937.

Theodore Cozzika, of Cairo, Egypt, was bequeathed the actress' home at 6 Avenue Henri Martin, in Paris, where she lived after her retirement from early-day motion pictures. Cozzika also was bequeated jewelry, horses, furniture and other personal and household effects, as well as £10,000 "to be distributed by him to such charities which he may select at his sole discretion."

Home Television Sets Ready, Sarnoff Says

New York, Oct. 20 (AP).—Television is ready for the home, David Sarnoff, president of the Radio Corporation of America, told a meeting of the board of directors of the Radio Manufacturers' Association here today.

At the same time, he announced his company "is planning to manufacture a limited quantity of television receivers which it expects to market by the time the New York World's Fair opens next April."

Roosevelt Held Favoring Oil Pact Extension

Would Cover Refining Spurns More Rules New Farm Plan Seen

By the Associated Press.

Hyde Park, N. Y., Oct. 20.—Extension of the six-State compact regulating oil production to cover refining operations as well was said by a visitor at the summer White House today to be President Roosevelt's suggestion as a further means of stabilizing prices.

Ernest Thompson, Texas oil man and chairman of the Interstate Oil Compact Commission, described Mr. Roosevelt as being opposed to further Federal regulation but said the President himself suggested the present compact—under which Texas, Oklahoma, Illinois, Kansas and Colorado have been operating for four years—be amended to include refining.

Oppose Price Slash

Thompson said he had protested against a price cut in crude oil last week which he asserted was ordered by large companies.

The oil man said if refining could be included in the six-State compact, the President indicated he would give it his approval and ask Congress to authorize the revised agreement. Thompson said he would relay the President's suggestion to a meeting of independent oil producers in Tulsa, Okla., tomorrow.

Another visitor, Senator Lee (Democrat), Oklahoma, said Mr. Roosevelt would like to see an international agreement some day, dividing the world market for surpluses in wheat and cotton among the major exporting nations.

Harrisburg Sifts Police Cell Death

Harrisburg, Pa., Oct. 20 (AP).—Three city policemen were under suspension today while Mayor John A. F. Hall and Coroner Howard E. Milliken investigated the death of Clayton J. Dougherty, former prothonotary and one-time chief clerk to the Dauphin County commissioners.

Dr. Milliken, who was with the 43-year-old Dougherty in a downtown club a few hours before the man was found prostrate on a sidewalk, declared he died of a heart attack in a City Hall cell.

Police Chief Shoemaker reported Dougherty pleaded with policemen who took him to City Hall to "Help me, please."

Dougherty, booked at the police station as "drunk," had not been drinking at the club, the coroner declared.

Reds to Start New Strikes, Dies Body Told

Police Head Heard Mistrusts Auto Union Sees Lack of Control

By Sidney Olson.

A Detroit police superintendent yesterday predicted new labor strife in Michigan, resulting in mass disorders and bloodshed, as a result of Communist control of the United Auto Workers.

Fred W. Frahm, the witness, a stocky, serious man, told the Dies committee on un-American activities yesterday that Communists in the past few years had started 75 per cent of the labor troubles in Michigan. He predicted:

"In a short time there is going to be more awful clashes and a lot of people are going to get hurt.

Blames Communists

"I am satisfield the manufacturers would like to deal with the working men but the union heads cannot control the men because of the Communists."

Frahm was latest of a long series of witnesses who have attempted to link the U. A. W., an affiliate of the Committee for Industrial Organization, with communism. He issued his warning on the basis of his belief that Communists will begin a new wave of disorders as part of their program to create mass discontent and hatreds.

While he was not asked as to the extent of the aid he received in previous battles from Gov. Frank Murphy, he volunteered that he "got no help" from State officials during the sit-down strike wave.

Labor Board Hit

John W. Koos, a later witness, an attorney of Dearborn, Mich., who said he was a native of the Ukraine, was introduced as an expert on communism. He said that communism was a doctrine advocating the overthrow of established government by either peaceful methods or the use of force and violence. This did not impress Chairman Martin Dies, of Texas, as news, and so after seven minutes of exchanging similar views Dies dismissed Koos. But the latter did get in one side remark when Dies asked him why employers did not dismiss Communists from their employ.

Koos retorted that this was the fault of the National Labor Relations Board, which, he asserted, was "sympathetic" to "the doctrines propagated by Communists."

During the day Dies announced that he had decided to ask the Labor Department for complete files on 3,000 aliens who are allegedly subject to deportation but still remain in the United States. Dies said the deportations are mandatory.

An earlier witness, James Mitchell, a thin, pale auto worker, broke into sobs as he told the committee that Communists had threatened his life if he revealed their plots within the U. A. W. to promote sit-down strikes.

His later testimony developed that the threat against his life came from a woman, Julia Buchanan, who, he said, had told him she would kill him if he ever revealed anything about Lloyd Jones, president of U. A. W. Local No. 2, who has been often named as a Communist.

Red Banner Displayed

Dramatically Mitchell jerked out a red banner, which he described as a Communist flag that he had found in Jones' deck.

He said Jones had told him to "keep your damn hands off it." Photographers in the room snapped Mitchell holding the banner, and other cameramen who had stepped outside the hearing room for a smoke thereupon rushed in to get pictures of the witness.

Recruiting for War

John P. McGillis, secretary, Detroit Council, Knights of Columbus, told the committee that Communists, he believed, had recruited hundreds of American youths to serve with the loyalist forces in the Spanish civil war. He said Communists had collected "thousands upon thousands" of dollars in Detroit to aid Spanish and Chinese people, without any accounting. He added:

"Communists have taken the American people for a beautiful ride. They have taken them for suckers and laughed about it."

The testimony of Police Superintendent Frahm that Gov. Murphy had given him no help in quelling sit-down strikes aroused the interest of Representative Harold Mosier (Democrat), Ohio, who asked Frahm repeated questions about the matter. Later Frahm told reporters he had not asked Murphy for any help.

Frahm said Murphy made many speeches to labor organizations "on May Day, or any of their big days or demonstrations."

Dies read into the record a telegram from Benedict Wolf, formerly an attorney for the National Labor Relations Board, denying he had invited Ralph Knox, a witness Wednesday, to become a member of the Communist Party. Knox had named a "Ben Wolf or Ben Wood" as a Government official who had invited him to join the party here several years ago.

Daladier Gets Threat Of Strike 'Action'

Paris, Oct. 20 (AP).—The French government's strongly organized employes warned Premier Daladier today they had decided on "action" if the cabinet attempted any longer to sidetrack their demands for higher wages.

This virtual strike threat cropped up unexpectedly as the premier sought to shelve temporarily his labor and financial problems and concentrate on strengthening his government.

Italy Promises To Treat U. S. Jews As Well as Others

The State Department released yesterday the summary of an Italian note which promised that American Jews in Italy would not be treated less favorably than other foreign Jews.

The Italian note, dated October 17, said the Fascist grand council had decided on "important exceptions" to an earlier order restricting Jewish rights. A special commission has been set up, it added, for the examination of individual cases of both Italian and foreign Jews.

The note was in reply to the United States note of October 4, in which Secretary Hull pointed out to the Italian government that Italians in this country were accorded every equality of personal and professional life, regardless of race or creed. Hull said yesterday this Government would follow up all phases of the question.

Farnsworth's Lawyers to Tell Inside Story

Habeas Corpus Is Asked Prisoner Frees Aides Will Let Them Tell Story

Former Lieut. Comdr. John Semar Farnsworth's own story of his plot to sell America's war secrets to the Japanese navy is scheduled for revelation here today as a result of his effort to get out of Atlanta Penitentiary with a habeas corpus.

The Government will call Farnsworth's lawyer to disclose all he told them about his deals with alien spies.

Farnsworth filed a petition for a writ of habeas corpus against Warden Joseph W. Sanford in Atlanta Federal Court. His counsel was George S. Hawkes, of Cincinnati. Farnsworth's parents testified before Judge E. Marvin Underwood at a hearing September 17.

"Uphold the good name of the family," they urged their son in telegrams while he was confined in the District jail. Later they pleaded with him, they said, so strongly that they might "unintentionally" have coerced him to make the plea he did instead of fighting the case.

Coerced he certainly was. Farnsworth himself told Judge Underwood when he took the stand, not only by his parents but by his attorneys. Had it not been for such entreaties and advice, he assured the court, he never would have refused to fight for exoneration.

This testimony opened the door for the full disclosure the Government will seek today. The law requires of attorneys absolute silence about what a client tells them in confidence, but Farnsworth is contended to have released his lawyers from their pledge, saying in effect, that it was their advice that caused him to be sent to prison.

Accordingly, the Government obtained Judge Underwood's authority to take testimony in Washington for submission to the court when final hearings on the habeas corpus is called October 29.

Attorneys Summoned

Attorneys William E. Leahy and William J. Hughes, jr., who were Farnsworth's counsel, have been summoned to the offices of Hart and Dice, court reporters in the Columbian building. Assistant District Attorney Fihelly will question them.

Also summoned were Attorney Richard Tedrow, who represented Farnsworth later; Mrs. James Riley, Hughes' secretary; United States Deputy Marshal Robert L. Bonham; Earl H. Pendell, shorthand reporter; former District Attorney Garnett, and former Assistant District Attorney Beach.

Fihelly said he was mystified by Farnsworth's claim that he was coerced into making the plea. "He voluntarily told Garnett and Beach that he was guilty," Fihelly said.

Grumpy Over Pay, Snow-White, Prince Sue Disney

New York, Oct. 20 (AP).—Snow White and Prince Charming have gone to court in an attempt to collect $300,000 from Walt Disney.

Adriana Caselotti, the voice of the heroine in "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," and Harry Stockwell, who sang and spoke for the prince, filed separate suits against Disney Products, Ltd., and the R. C. A. Manufacturing Co.

They charged the defendants had violated their contracts by making records from the film's sound track without their consent. Disney's representatives claimed their contracts covered all rights.

Stockwell, who said he had been paid $500, asked $100,000. "Snow White," whose soft soprano netted her $1,000, sued for $200,000.

2 More Marriages In International Set

Saint Albans, England, Oct. 20 (AP).—The American-born former Countess of Carrick was married today to the fourth Baron Chesham, while her former husband was en route to England with a new American bride.

The Earl of Carrick married Margaret Power Drum, of Helena, Mont., at Franklin, N. J., yesterday and sailed for England aboard the Queen Mary.

Baron Chesham was divorced last year.

Troops in Spain Cut to 20,000, Italians Say

10,000 Reach Home Naples Is Festive War at Standstill

By the Associated Press.

Naples, Oct. 20.—With 10,000 Italian legionnaires landed today on their native soil after a year and a half of service in the Spanish civil war, Italian newspapers said less than 20,000 of their comrades remained in Spain.

The press cited 40,000 as the number that had gone to Spain to fight for the insurgent cause, saying that some 3,000 were killed while 9,000 others were wounded. Two thousand of those injured will remain crippled.

Music, flags and flowers gave Naples a festive atmosphere as the fighting men streamed off the troopships. The men entrained for demobilization centers near Naples.

The legionnaires left Italy 18 months ago in secrecy. The presence of Italian soldiers in Spain went unmentioned by high Fascists for many weeks after they landed there.

100,000 Kneel As Eucharistic Congress Ends

Great Procession Held
Tons of Candles Glaw
Whole City Joins Fete

Special Dispatch to The Post.

New Orleans, Oct. 20.—After a day of superlative pageantry, the eighth national Eucharistic Congress was concluded tonight with a solemn benediction of the Blessed Sacrament celebrated by the papal legate, George Cardinal Mundelein, of Chicago, before more than 100,000 Catholics in the City Park Staium.

During the benediction, all electric lights were turned off save the lamps that shone upon the great marble altar. Upon a signal, tons of candles were lit in the hands of the mass of pilgrims who had come here from every part of the country.

Prior to the benediction a solemn procession in which tens of thousands took part wound more than 3 miles through the streets. State and city officials had declared this a public holiday, and it seemed that nearly all of New Orleans, Protestant as well as Catholic, poured into the streets to join in the spirit of the occasion.

Respond in Many Tongues

The acclamations which preceded the benediction were intoned by the Rev. John A. Duffy, D. D., Bishop of Buffalo, the devout throng giving the responses in many languages.

Vast numbers could find no room within the stadium tonight, and turning thew away was a difficult task for the police. In the crush outside the gates there were numerous minor casualties. Scores fainted. Many children became separated from their parents.

Before the arrival of the Cardinal Legate in a magnificently caprisoned Eucharistic chariot, the crowd in the stadium said prayers in unison and sang hymns to the accompaniment of 32 massed bands. Pure white benches both behind and facing the pontifical throne were occupied by all but a few of the hundred-odd members of the Catholic Heirarchy in the United States, each robed in the rich vestments reserved for the most formal liturgical ceremonies.

1,100 Acolytes March

Just before the prelates proceeded solemnly into the crowded stadium, 1,100 Acolytes walked to reserved benches near the illuminated altar.

Surmounting the golden baldachin which crowded the canopy over the altar shone a cross of white glass, its three tips shaped in the Fleur de Lis of France, which gave to Louisiana her enduring Catholic tradition.

The final day's ceremonies began this morning when 45,000 Catholic women attended a mass celebrated especially for them at the stadium. Simultaneously another pontifical high mass in the open air was sung for the benefit of colored youth on the campus of St. Xavier University.

The Apostolic delegate to the United States, the Most Rev. Amleto G. Cicognani, archbishop of Laodicea, was the celebrant of the mass for women, and the Bishop of Davenport, the Most Rev. Henry P. Rohlman, celebrated the campus mass.

Arabs Fire From Mosques At British, Forbidden to Reply

Troops Respect Sanctity of Holy Places
Hill Bands Reported Massing on Jerusalem
Army Moves to Clear Other Palestine Towns

By the United Press.

Jerusalem (Friday), Oct. 21.—Military authorities reported early today that Arab rebels barricaded around their mosques in Jerusalem's Old City were firing on British troops, but that the soldiers were unable to retaliate because of orders to respect the holy places.

The Arabs, remnants of those left within the sixteenth century walls of Jerusalem after British troops stormed and seized the native quarters at dawn Wednesday, sniped on British patrols as the Moslem day of prayer dawned.

The British were under instructions to refrain from retaliating because "no Mosque may be fired on or entered without special authority," military leaders said.

Members of the Supreme Moslem Council intervened with Maj. Gen. Richard Nugent O'Connor, district governor of Jerusalem, and asked that the 24-hour curfew be lifted in the old city to enable Moslems to venture from their homes and pray at the mosques of Omar and Aksa.

It was understood that the request would be granted, but the British troops would remain close to the Mosque areas ready to cope with any outbreaks.

The British military forces meanwhile took added precautionary measures following reports that Arab rebels are massing in the hills for an attack on Jerusalem, supposedly in an attempt to entrap nearly 2,500 British troops and police inside the old city's walls.

The British forces under High Commissioner Sir Harold MacMichael, after storming the old city and releasing its 27,000 inhabitants from three days of terror and near starvation, were understood to be mobilizing for another assault on strongholds of the rebels.

Heavy military units were reported to be en route to Jaffa, Nablus and other cities for attacks similar to the seizing of Jerusalem's old city.

Within the walls of Jerusalem's native quarters the military and police pushed their roundup of Arab suspects and searchers of homes with increased vigor, apparently determined to complete the "mop up" before Friday, when the question of dealing with large crowds of Moslems gathering at the Mosques for worship will arise.

Many of the Arab rebels who held the old city for days were revealed to have escaped over the old walls as the British marched in shortly after dawn Wednesday.

More than 300 Arab prisoners have been rounded up and every one of them denied belonging to the rebel army.

Sporadic fighting continued in the Moslem quarter, where the rebels were making a last stand. The toll of the British occupation stood at nine Arab dead and 16 persons wounded.

W.-L. Frosh Play Today

By the Associated Press.

Lexington, Va., Oct. 20.—Washington and Lee's homecoming weekend, featuring the annual V. P. I.-W. and L. football game on Saturday, will start officially tomorrow afternoon when the Brigadiers, freshman team, meet the strong Maryland yearlings.

The game, like the varsity engagement, will be played on Wilson Field; the kickoff is scheduled for 3:30, an hour later than game time for the Gobblers-Generals clash the next day.

The Brigadiers, coached by Cy Young, varsity basketball mentor, have played only one game this fall, losing, 7-0, to S. M. A. The day the varsity dropped a 13-0 decision to Virginia.

A rally and torch parade is scheduled for Friday night as a prelude to the traditional game with the Gobblers.

The game between Washington and Lee and Virginia Tech will be the thirty-seventh between the two schools. Th series, one of the longest in the South, dates back to 1895.

Football relations between the two institutions have continued almost without interruption since then, with the margin of victories slightly on Tech's side. The Gobblers have won 18 times, the Generals 14, and there were tie games in 1911, 1924, 1930 and 1933.

the Europa and a fugitive defendant, had told him that he would sign his letters with this name. Also, Rumrich testified that Miss Hoffman told him, after her arrest, that Schlueter had written the letter.

"Service of Country"

Miss Hofmann said in her statement that whatever she did, she did "believing it was in the service of my country." She said she was born in Dresden, where she attended a trade school and learned her trade as a hairdresser. In 1931 she was employed by the North German Lloyd as hairdresser on the Gneisenau, plying between Bremmerhaven and the Far East. It was on this ship, she said, that she first met Schlueter.

After a year she left the employ of the steamship line and returned to it in 1936, this time on the Europa, and there she again met Schlueter. Last January, she said, Schlueter asked if she would deliver letters for him in New oYrk, which he said "concerned government matters."

She told of a visit shortly thereafter to Dr. Ignatz T. Griebl, now a fugitive defendant, in company with Schlueter. There, she said, Schlueter discussed military and aviation mtaters, and later Schlueter told her that Dr. Griebl "was connected with the German military intelligence and collected valuable information for that office."

Called on Doctor

Dr. Griebl gave Schlueter a letter, she said and Schlueter gave it to her. Then, according to the statement, she and Schlueter called on a Dr. Schade, and Schlueter discussed "military and naval aircraft and other military matters with Dr. Schade, and afterwards told Miss Hoffman that Dr. Schade was "one of his agents.

They then called on Rumrich at his apartment in the Bronx, the statement said, and Schlueter discussed with him means of obtaining information concerning airfraft carriers, photographs and United States passport blanks to be used in sending German agents into Russia.

When they returnd to the Europa, the statement continued, Miss Sofmann turned the letter over to Schlueter and Schlueter cautioned her "under no circumstances" to tell anyone of the visits.

On the return of the Europa to Bremenhaven, it was stated, Schlueter gave Miss Hofmann a code, and told her to learn it so that in the future she could carry letters written in code and decipher them for their recipients.

Got Code Signals

The statement told of the next arrival of the Bremen in New York, and of visits of Miss Hofmann and Schleuter to Dr. Griebl, Dr. Schade and Rumrich. It corroborated Rumrich's testimony of Wednesday, saying that Rumrich turned over to Schleuter two pages of code signals, three copies of the "Army and Navy Register and copies of weekly notices of the Department of Commerce Aeronautical Bureau, all of which Miss Hofmann put in her bag.

Later, it was stated, Schleuter told Miss Hofmann that he would not be on the next trip and that she would have to make the calls alone. She stated he was "going to arrange to have me enrolled as a member of the military intelligence service."

On February 18, according to the statement, Schleuter gave her $70 for Rumrich and asked her to discuss with Rumrich his progress in obtaining aircraft carie plans, ETA obtaining aircraft carrier plans, "for which he was to receive $1,000." There were also instructions to call on Dr. Griebl, Dr. Schade, and Mrs. Kate Moog Busch, who is expected to be a Government witness.

"Received No Money

"Schleuter told me on several occasions," the statement concluded, "that I was doing these things in the service of my country and there would be no danger. I received no money. I did these things believing that it was in the service of my country."

With regard to the "Spielman" letter, Rumrich testified that Schuleter had told him he would use this name in writing. According to Rumrich's previous testimony, Schlueter had been openly scornful of the Hamburg agents with whom Rumrich corresponded, calling the Hamburg office a "sloppy outfit," and suggesting that Rumrich would do better to deal, as he did, with the Berlin or Bremen offices.

Germans Held in Panama

Cristobal, Canal Zone, Oct. 20 (AP). Four youthful Germans, accused of photographing fortifications in the vital Canal Zone, were held today for trial in the Canal Zone District Court.

Judge Edward J. P. Tatelman, at a preliminary hearing in the magistrates court, overruled a defense motion for dismissal and held one of the suspects, Hans Friedrich Schackow, 26, in $25,000 bail.

The others—Ingeborg Waltrunt Gutman, 19-year-old secretary; Gisbert Wilhelm Gross, 26, and Ernst Robert Edward Khurig, 29—were held in $10,000 bail.

Age Pension Fever Grips Dozen States

rescindment movement, was recently egged out of a Colorado town.

In Arkansas, an Old Age Security League won a place on the November ballot for a $50-a-month pension plan guaranteeing State pensions to all over 60 not receiving $50 a month in other income.

More generous old-age pensions as a matter of right are overshadowing many issues in the Washington, Florida and Oklahoma campaigns, and agitation is spreading in Georgia, North Carolina, Wisconsin, Louisiana and Kansas. A minor movement for California's $30 every Thursday idea recently started up in Pennsylvania's hotbed of politics, but neither major State tickets espouse it.

Even Maine Is Beset

In the Maine elections, three of the four Republican nominees went solidly overboard for the Townsend Plan, which is cropping up in so many versions that the California doctor has difficulty keeping tabs on the latest.

California's "funny money" streamlining of the pension lue hasn't yet hit Congress, but the Townsend sentiment in the House bobs up every session, after factional bickering, with a new "plan."

Congress to Get Plan

It was re-arranged by Representative Crosby, of Pennsylvania, as a "general welfare" measure following the movement's split with Townsend. Crosby failed of renomination in the Pennsylvania primaries.

The next effort to rally divided Townsend forces in the House is expected to be made this coming session by Representative Boileau, Wisconsin Progressive. Boileau has a plan for a $50 a month pension for all over 60, financed by a 2 per cent gross income tax.

While wild variations on the plan, from "$25 every Tuesday" to "$50 every Friday" are flaunted on the stump to gullible voters, the Social Security Advisory Council will meet here today to discuss what can be done to keep pension laws within reason.

The council will consider and possibly recommend moderate extensions of the existing social security act to include workers now exempt. Amendments to promote efficient administration of the act providing among other aids to the aged and unemployed $15 Federal contributions to States which pay an equal amount to their aged pensioners will be considered.

Conference to Discuss U. S. School Subsidies

Richmond, Oct. 20 (AP).—Federal subsidies to higher educations will be discussed tomorrow at the opening session tomorrow of the regional conference of the Association of American Colleges at the University of Richmond.

Dr. John L. Seaton, president of Albion College and president of the Association of American Colleges, will address the confeerence's initial meeting on "Federal Government and higher education."

Wagner, Garrison LaFollette Asked to Mediate Labor War

New York, Oct. 20 (AP).—Elias Lieberman, counsel to the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, suggested today Senator Wagner (Democrat), New York; Senator La Follette (Progressive), Wisconsin, and Dr. Lloyd K. Garrison, labor mediator and Dean of Wisconsin University Law School, serve on an impartial committee in an effort to end the dispute between the American Federation of Labor and the Committee for Industrial Organization.

Lieberman asserted his three nominees would have the "unqualified confidence of both sides."

HOW 25 WOMEN LOST UGLY FAT

In Special N. Y. Test

Ask Your Doctor If It Isn't Good Way. Read EVERY Word

NEW YORK, N. Y.—In a test by a prominent N. Y. Physician and nationally known newspaperwoman—25 women lost a total of 286 6lbs. in 40 days. YOU, too, can follow this SAME SENSIBLE plan right at home and here it is:

First of all, go light on fatty meats and sweets. Eat plentiful of lean meats, fish, fowl, fresh fruits and vegetables. And for proper functioning—take a half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in hot water every morning. DON'T MISS A MORNING!

And this is important!

Kruschen is NOT harmful. It is not just one salt as some people ignorantly believe. Rather it's a blend of 6 active mineral salts (formula right on box) which when dissolved in water make a healthful mineral drink similar to Famous European Spa waters where wealthy fat women have gone for years. A jar of Kruschen costs only a few cents and makes 5 gallons of a most highly efficient mineral drink.

So fat ladies—get some gumption! MAKE UP YOUR MIND YOU'LL STICK to the above Plan for 28 days—and just see if you don't lose fat and feel healthier and younger. (Note: You can get Kruschen at druggists everywhere).

such cars could not compete with low-horsepower British automobiles.

The British delegation here has been reduced to three members. Negotiators on both sides are said to feel that all the negotiating possible had been done and that the decision rests with the respective governments.

Officials said that in the six months the negotiations had been carried on hundreds of concessions had been granted by both sides.

London, Octfl 20 (U.P.).—A serious hitch in British-United States trade treaty negotiations has occurred, mainly over American efforts to increase automobile exports, it was said here tonight.

It was understood that the differences between British and American trade experts were such that the British cabinet may have to decide shortly whether to break off the trade talks.

Prime Minister Chamberlain's world-wide appeasement hope would suffer a severe blow if the negotiations collapse. He is known to have felt that early culmination of the pact would be a valuable contribution to world peace, similar to the Anglo-Italian friendship agreement.

Reports of a breakdown in the negotiations have been published in the British press.

Anti-Hangover Used at N. Y. Fair Machines to Be

New York, Oct. 20 (U.P.).—Science tonight produced an antihangover machine which will enable persons who get blotto to sober up in less than two hours.

The announcement of the new device was made by the medical director of the New York World's Fair, Dr. Joseph C. Hoguet, who explained in an unguarded moment that the new sobering-up stations would be installed at the Fair Grounds next year for the benefit of cash customers.

Dr. Hoguet quickly realized his mistake, and, after answering a record number of telephone calls, ordered his wire disconnected and announced to the press:

"I'll be damned if I say another word."

ticularly the areas of the disorders of the last 36 hours, "in order to oppose every such incident with force of arms to assure the safety of these districts."

Reichsfuehrer Hitler, who was in the Sudentenland's southern zone today on a tour of inspection, has ordered the German army to relinquish its control of the areas tomorrow to civil authorities.

His instructions were telegraphed to Col. Gen. Walter von Brauchitsch, commander in chief of the German army.

While Hitler was making a speech at Krumau, near the Austrian border, the Prague army command reported that five Czechoslovaks, including the mayor of Leitmeritz, were shot and killed yesterday in skirmishes resulting from a rectification of the new boundaries.

Attack Held Unprovoked

A Czech farmer was reported to have been shot and killed when a German soldier fired on him as he worked in his fields near the village of Vazacka, near the new frontier.

The Czech army command said that the killing of five men near Leitmeritz in northern Bohemia in which German customs officials fired on a Czech patrol occupying the village of Zelechovice.

The German version, as announced by the official D. N. B. news agency, said that German police clashed with a "Czech mob," consisting partly of uniformed soldiers led by a Czech officer, after the latter had ordered Hitler's pictures torn down and attempted to plunder.

Hitler, in his speech at Krumau, told a cheering crowd that Germany in 1938 had "reconquered" about 10,000,000 persons and more than 38,000 square miles of territory "without drawing the sword."

He referred to the annexation of Austria and the absorption of the Sudetenland.

He thanked the Sudetens for their loyalty and reviewed German troops. Thousands of persons greeted him and church bells pealed along his route from Linz to Krumau.

Hungarians Ask War

Budapest, Oct. 20 (AP).—More than 100,000 excited Hungarians demonstrated in the center of Budapest tonight demanding a common Polish-Hungarian frontier and shouting, "Give us arms."

The demonstration was staged before the statue of the Polish Gen. Bem, who led Polish-Hungarian volunteers against the Austrians and Russians in 1848.

University students carried Slovak, Ruthenian and Hungarian deserters from the Czech army through the streets shoulder-high.

Several speakers demanded the dismemberment of Ruthenia, the autonomous Czechoslovakian province, in the face of claims by Hungary and Poland for territory.

Labor Assails Pact

Brussels, Oct. 20 (AP).—The International Labor Executive group, repreeenting 18 countries, today made public a resolution assailing the Munich Peace Accord and urging a "regrouping of the forces of liberty and justice in Europe as recommended by President Roosevelt."

The group, which met here Tuesday nad Wednesday, adopted the resolution unanimously.

Hitler Halts Hungary

Berlin, Oct. 20 (AP).—The Hitler government raised the stop sign against Hungary today in a friendly but unmistakable objection to any hasty partition of what is left of Czechoslovakia.

Hungary, remnant of the pre-war Austro-Hungarian empire, is anxious to obtain some sizeable portions of Slovakia in the wake of Germany's acquisition of Sudetenland.

Hollywood Foils Rainfall by Heat

Oddest of oddities is the manner in which engineers at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer solved their latest problem. They are keeping it from raining on the "Ice Follies" set by the use of heat.

Because of the huge ice rink built on stage 15, the temperature must be kept at 64 degrees. If it gets warmer, the ice will melt, and if it gets colder the ice will cause condensation of moisture on the ceiling and result in a continual dripping.

To prevent this, R. C. Parker, air conditioning engineer, installed an elaborate device, which regulates the temperature of the sound stage.

The "Ice Follies" troupe of fifty-seven champion skaters is now working out intricate routines for the production under the direction of Reinhold Schunzel.

Parent Warns Drivers Red Means 'Stop'

Writes to Traffic Head Tells of Near-Crash Urges Greater Care

"Warning to a District Motorist:

"Perhaps you have been in such a hurry that you haven't read about the 'Death Banner' that floats over the District Building, but it was just Providence that kept you from being the cause of its floating from one to seven days longer.

"This morning at 8:30 when you tried to beat the red light at Fourteenth street and Florida avenue northwest you might have killed or injured one or more of the six school children riding in the bus marked "2". This bus was proceeding south on Fourteenth street and had stopped at Florida avenue for the red light. It had just started up, along with the street car when you came dashing through the red light—going west on Florida avenue. When you finally stopped your car was almost touching the center of the bus. You were scared and bewildered for a minute, and so was the driver of the bus, the motorman of the streetcar and the passengers on the streetcar, not to mention the children in the bus. I happened to be on the streetcar and those kids in the bus were talking about it several blocks on down the street. They were laughing about it then—nervous laughter I guess, because it wasn't very funny for a minute.

"There was an article in the newspapers the other day pleading for the co-operation of parents in the home in keeping children off the streets. I have two boys and I do everything possible to keep them from playing on the street—they are punished by being kept on the porch all day—I read every traffic accident involving a child to them, trying to impress upon their minds why they should not play on the street. One boy wants to be a patrol boy at school—he is just 6 and a half years old, but he has learned something about safety. I think he would make a very good patrol boy if some reckless driver doesn't run him down before he is old enough. But even so, he has learned that a red light means stop—and he doesn't try to beat them. He uses better judgment than the drivers of some of the cars. I hope he gets to be a patrol boy because I am kind of proud of him, and I would feel a little more secure for his younger brother when he starts to school and has to cross a number of streets.

"I am sending a copy of this memorandum to the Director of Traffic and to The Washington Post, with the hope that it will not only be a warning to you, but to hundreds of other drivers. The co-operation of the parents isn't worth anything if the drivers fail to respect the laws.

"Yours, in the interest of safety and my future patrol boys."

B. & O. Cancels RFC Application For $6,000,000

The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Co. has withdrawn an application it filed July 5 for a $6,000,000 loan from the RFC, the Interstate Commerce Commission disclosed yesterday. No reason was advanced by the railroad.

The ICC now has before it the road's proposal to reduce the interest on its obligations to effect an annual saving of $11,376,435, and thus escape a threatened reorganization. At a commission hearing on September 22 the B. & O.'s proposal received acceptance by interested parties.

At that hearing Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the RFC, to which the B. & O. owes more than $72,000,000, approved the road's interest reduction proposal on the condition that it be made operative before January 1.

Coastwise Bandits Admit 82 Thefts

New York, Oct. 20 (AP).—Two men and a girl were detained by New York police today after the men told of escaping from a Florida prison and committing 50 holdups and 32 safe robberies on the way to New York.

The men gave their names as Carl Wilks, 32, and Gilbert Jones, 22. Police said they told of escaping October 12 from the Jacksonville County Jail at St. Petersburg.

The girl gave her name as Mary Harris, 21, of Augusta, Ga., and said she had ridden to New York with the two men, but knew nothing of any crimes.

4 Held in Robbery Of Ice Cream Stores

Four men charged with robbing several ice cream stores were held yesterday under $10,000 bond for the grand jury. They gave their names as Leroy Watters, 22, Takoma Park, Md.; Clarence Saylor, 22, Hyattsville, Md.; Charles Immich, 29, Takoma Park, Md., and James Colbert, 31, Brentwood, Md.

Inviting Disaster on D. C. Streets make rules of the road apply to those afoot as well as those driving—have met defeat on all sides. Traffic authorities have been denied a weapon to attack the problem at its source.

"But we're not entirely to blame," wails the pedestrian. "How about the motorist?"

Let's stand with that man at Tenth stret and the Avenue and see what happens:

Literally inviting disaster, a youth stepped from the curb against a red light, neatly dodged a passing truck and leaped into the path of an oncoming bus. The bus driver swerved. The young man spurted—onto the car tracks.

Then, turning suddenly, he started on the run, diagonally across the intersection. He missed death by inches—and perhaps saved five seconds.

There were others who followed his foolish example. Rather than wait a few moments for the light to change, they defied tragedy to weave through moving lanes of traffic—demanding the right-of-way.

On F street, where signal devices provide absolute protection for pedestrians, examples of defiance were even more startling.

Sidewalk users, jammed shoulder to shoulder at the rush-hour peak, refused to recognize "walk" lights, ignored the safety they provided and forged ahead in the face of heavy traffic.

Of the 53 pedestrian deaths this year, 48 were killed by automobiles and 5 by street cars. In the auto fatalities, 36 walkers were held at fault. In the street car mishaps, all 5 pedestrians were blamed.

From observations yesterday, solution of the rising pedestrian death toll is apparently up to the pedestrians. Traffic records reveal where the fault lies, but Washington is lagging far behind other metropolitan areas in correcting those faults.

Inquests Set Today

Inquests into the traffic deaths this week of 11-year-old Herbert Anderson, 918 M street southeast, and Joseph Whitehouse, 60, of 1410 Crittenden street northwest, will be held at the District Morgue today.

While crossing Pennsylvania avenue and Tenth street northwest two days ago, Whitehouse was struck and killed by a street car, bringing the death toll in the District for the year to 70. Last year at the same time there were 84 fatalities recorded.

The death of Anderson, at Providence Hospital Tuesday night, of injuries received when struck by a truck Saturday at Virginia avenue and Eighth street southeast, brought the number of children killed in traffic this year to 18.

Sen. Chavez's Kin Indicted In WPA Probe

of the Senator, who declined to permit use of his name said after consulting other New Mexicans in the Capital that the indictments could be attributed to a "feud" between Gov. Clyde Tingley on the one side and Chavez and Representative John J. Dempsey on the other. The "feud" was said to date from some 19 months ago when, the friend said, Gov. Tingley lost control of the State WPA to Chavez and Dempsey.—Editor's note.]

Grand Jury "Amazed"

The grand jury, standing quietly before Judge Neblett, declared in making its final report that "we do not say all investigations have been concluded," and recommended that Federal agencies take up where the jury left off.

"The selfish aims and ambitions of individuals entrusted with the administration of the WPA amazed your grand jury," the foreman, A. R. Combs, of Carlsbad, said. "It is apparent that too many persons seeking personal and political gains have violated legal and moral codes."

The indictments charged the defendants conspired for the purpose of "joint and unified political activity and to build a political organization in the City of Albuquerque, the county of Bernalillo and the State of New Mexico."

They charged that contributions were demanded of WPA employes for political purposes, and that threats and intimidation had been employed to compel workers to "join with defendants" in their political activity.

It was further charged that WPA employes were forced to vote according to political demands in a Statewide election last September on amendments to the State constitution, and that discharge from work projects was the penalty for refusal to perform political services.

Had to Join Clubs

The indictments stated that employes were required to join political clubs, which were "disguised" as social organizations, and to pay dues and purchase tickets to social functions.

It was further alleged the defendants conspired to divert to personal use portions of WPA appropriations, services of WPA workers and WPA materials.

After the jury reported, Judge Neblett ordered them held in recess despite the recommendation of the jurors they be discharged.

The jurors declared that without questioning the aims of the WPA program, it was clear "that many of those in positions of honor and trust have failed in creating and maintaining respect for themselves and the Government which they are under oath to represent."

The State-wide WPA investigation was launched without warning September 7, when United States District Judge Colin Neblett instructed the grand jury to consider charges against "certain persons," which he said were contained in affidavits presented to the court.

He told the jury the affidavits charged WPA pay rolls had been padded and that workers assigned to WPA projects had been transferred to private employment or to work on political campaigns without being dropped from the Government pay roll.

"It is common rumor," Judge Neblett declared at that time, "that grafting has been going on for some time, but so far as I know, there has been no investigation whatever."

He concluded his instructions with the admonition: "Do not fail to indict anyone because of his reputation or standing in the community."

Brazilian Stresses Interdependence Of Western Nations

Rio de Janeiro, Oct. 20 (AP).—Dr. Oswaldo Aranha, Brazilian foreign minister an former Ambassador to Washington, proclaimed faith today in the "interdependence of countries and peoples" in the Western world.

He spoke at a luncheon aboard the liner Brazil, which arrived here today inaugurating the United States Government-owned American Republic Line's "good neighbor fleet" service.

Among those who attended were Brazilian President Getolo Vargas and United States Ambassador Caffery.

"Despite a creed which preaches isolation and aggression between different racial groups, we in America believe more strongly than ever in the interdependence of peoples, each one bringing his own physical features to the formation of a single humanity."

Tifereth Israel Plans Building

The Tifereth Israel congregation, Fourteenth and Euclid streets northwest, will launch a $250,000 drive next week to finance construction of a new synagogue. Already $25,000 has been pledged by members.

The synagogue probably will be located in the upper northwest section. Samuel Rod, president of the congregation, has appointed the following building committee: Wolf Ulman, chairman; Benjamin F. Pollock, cochairman; Joseph Cherner, treasurer; Phil Golstein, executive secretary, and Harry D. Goldstein, financial secretary. Morris Kraft is chairman of the drive for funds.

Scholarship Gift From Allan Jones

Scholarships presented by Allan Jones have launched two ambitious students on dramatic careers at the Journey's End School in Hollywood, after auditions in which twenty-two participated. The two, Ruth Summers and Oliver Cliff, at once enrolled for the fall semester.

Judges were Mrs. Leon Yankwich, wife of the Federal judge; Sara Haden, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer character actress, and Jones.

Jones has promised to take a personal interest in the careers of the two, both of whom have film aspirations.

61,000 CCC Tests Indicate Pneumonia Vaccine Success

Susceptibility Reduced by Injections
Deaths of Treated Half Those of Untreated
Developed by Doctor of Public Health Service

By Gerald G. Gross

Results of one of the largest-scale co-operative experiments in medical history—inoculation of 61,000 Civilian Conservation Corps enrollees with a newly developed pneumonia preventive—were disclosed yesterday by the Public Health Service.

Although no strong claims are made for the vaccine by its originator, Dr. Lloyd D. Felton, figures which he presents on the CCC investigations indicate that it shows exceptional promise as a prophylaxis against a disease that takes more than 100,000 lives annually in this country.

Some 30,000, or one-half, of the recruits were inoculated during during the winter of 1936-37. It was from this group that the most complete follow-up records were obtained.

In New England camps the 1936-37 experiment covered 25,234 human "guinea pigs," 10,740 receiving "shots" and the remainder serving as "controls." Simultaneously, on the West Coast, 45,022 enrollees were studied and followed up, of whom 18,494 were inoculated.

The noninoculated, or control, group is vital to such an experiment for purposes of comparison. Inoculations were administered strictly on a voluntary basis.

This is what happened:

During the observation period in the New England camps—December 1, 1936, to May 15, 1937—there were 51 cases of pneumonia. Thirty-six of these were in the control group, only 15 among the inoculated. Two "control" men and one inoculated man died.

The latter received his injection only one day before he was hospitalized with lobar pneumonia. He was 48 years old. Of the other two victims, one was 18 and the other 43.

As for the West Coast camps:

Eighty-six cases of pneumonia occurred in the first four months of 1937.

Only six of these were in the inoculated group. There were eight deaths in the control group, none among those protected by the vaccine.

Administration of the antigenic polysaccharide, a chemical derivative of the deadly pneumococcus, to CCC recruits actually began in 1933, but until now nothing had been published on the experiments. Dr. Felton, now a senior surgeon in the Public Health Service, and his collaborators in the investigations wished to be as sure of their data as possible.

In the winter of 1933-34, with cooperation of Col. G. M. Ekwurzel, surgeon of the Army First Corps Area, 3,126 CCC enrollees in New England were inoculated after the antigen had been tested in human beings, including Dr. Felton, and experimental mice.

Inoculated Group Cases Nil

Between November and April, no pneumonia occurred in the inoculated group but eight cases were reported among the 9,000 "controls."

The following winter 14,000 volunteers received the one "shot" apiece necessary and were observed with 12,000 controls. In the former group there were 13 cases of lobar pneumonia and no deaths and, in the latter, 23 cases and two deaths.

Again the following year the experiment was continued, 15,000 being inoculated and 18,000 being observed as controls. The 33,000 men and boys were under observation from December 1, 1935, to March 31, 1936.

Eighteen cases of pneumonia occurred in the protected group, compared with 39 among the non-inoculated. Deaths numbered one and five respectively.

Experimentally, the CCC enrollees are the only large group who have submitted to the vaccine but it has been administered to hundreds of civilians, from infants to aged folk, in the last five years with good results.

Many residents of Hagerstown, Md., the Public Health Service's "test city," have received inoculations with the co-operation of Drs. W. R. Cameron and P. F. Prather.

In a reluctantly granted interview at the National Institute of Health, where he is continuing his studies, Dr. Felton called attention to the fact that he was not the first to seek the pneumococus antigen. For more than 40 years medical scientists have been tackling this sugar problem, the polysaccharide being a form of sugar, he asserted.

On his desk stood three small bottles filled with a whitish powder. This was the finished vaccine which, injected into mouse or man, "stimulates a response such that their defense against the pneumonia organism is enhanced."

The contents of those bottles was sufficient to inoculate 500,000 persons.

Although the vaccine, produced in quantity, costs only about a nickel a "shot," Dr. Felton warned that it is still too early to prescribe inoculation of the population. Rather, he said, it would be best to determine first the individual's susceptibility to lobar pneumonia.

Many people, he asserted, possess a natural immunity to the infection, pointing out that while a large percentage of the population have pneumocci in their throats almost constantly, only one in 450 contracts pneumonia each year.

One interesting—and extremely important—fact discovered in the course of the CCC studies was that the polysaccharide seemed to be nonsecpific for type. That is, it appears to be effective in preventing not only types 1 and 2 but also some of the 30 other varieties of lobar pneumonia.

Types 1 and 2 account for about 60 per cent of all cases.

Although some of the CCC recruits inoculated experienced reactions, not a single life was jeopardized by administration of the vaccine.

The Civilian Conservation Corps, with its six-month enrollment periods, offered an almost ideal field for the experiments, but Dr. Felton is hopeful of launching a similar study of a group which would not only be larger but which could be followed up for several years.

As for the means by which the antigenic polysaccharade increases a body's resistance to pneumonia, it is summed up succinctly in Dr. Felton's words:

"It causes the virulent pneumococci to commit suicide."

Florida, Maine, Oklahoma, Louisiana and Wisconsin.

In Kansas there is a movement for "Twenty-five-Dollars-Every-Tuesday." A Pennsylvania organization is sponsoring another plan with the slogan "$60 after 60." In Alabama a group issues a pamphlet entitled: "Life Begins at 50 With $30 a Week for Life to Every Alabama Citizen 50 or Over Without Added Taxes."

Because of the growth of pension movements similar to the California drive, the institute is now conducting a survey throughout the Nation to determine how many people outside California favor the "Thirty-Dollars-Every Thursday" plan. Results will be reported within the next two weeks.

Pension Principle Indorsed 9 to 1 in National Studies

Undoubtedly one of the reasons why politicians of both parties are capitalizing on the pension movement is that the pension program under the social security act is one of the most popular programs sponsored by the New Deal. Institute surveys have repeatedly found voters endorsing the pension principle by 9 to 1 or more, but favoring payment of conservative sums.

The President has on several occasions gone out of his way to discourage pension panaceas. Speaking on the third anniversary of the social security act he said: "In our efforts to provide security for all of the American people, let us not allow ourselves to be misled by those who advocate shortcuts to Utopia or fantastic financial schemes."

Striking Newsmen To Start Paper

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Oct. 20 (AP).—The American Newspaper Guild, on strike against this city's four newspapers, announced today it would begin publication of a four-page morning tabloid Saturday. The papers have suspended publication.

Meanwhile, several merchants have been distributing double pages of advertising in the city.

Negotiations between guild and publishers of the three daily papers were suspended pending a reply from Bennet E. Schauffler, regional director of the National Labor Relations Board, to a letter from William P. Burke, counsel for the four employers.

The assembly took no formal action on any plan, but was of the opinion that grievances are important, because in practically every instance something fundamental is wrong, either with the aggrieved party or his supervisor.

At the morning session, Commissioner of Education John W. Studebaker said that the need for greater efficiency in the public service is causing the Government to establish within the Office of Education a new unit that would be calculated to train Federal employes and workers all the way down to the county governments.

This is in line with the program stage—should be a practical and not a theoretical one. The work will of in-service training called for by the Executive orders.

PEBECO chemists, keeping abreast of recent scientific developments, have created a different type of tooth paste . . . which brightens your teeth and makes your mouth feel fresh and wholesome.

Today, the new Open Formula Pebeco gives you this advanced dental home care in full measure. For Open Formula Pebeco is a thorough cleanser and a fine polisher. It accomplishes this result without the use of abrasives, and without any ingredient that can possibly harm the most "sensitive" teeth or gums.

Open Formula Pebeco is gritless. It is satin-smooth, bland . . . comfortable to use in sensitive mouths. And it contains a new cleansing element. This element, "miraclene", is an active cleansing agent that bubbles around the teeth so busily and effectively that it helps to emulsify the food particles which cling there, so they are far more easily removed by your brush. Consequently, there is less chance of fermentation, of unpleasant breath.

Try a tube of Open Formula Pebeco! Enjoy the refreshing "feel" and efficient action of this different type of tooth paste. Take advantage of this step forward in scientific dental home care. Help your teeth to grow brighter, your mouth fresher and sweeter, yourself more charming!

Productive Expenditures

During the four months preceding October 1, a pronounced increase occurred in the volume of new capital issues floated by private corporations. During this period the monthly average of new domestic corporate issues, exclusive of refunding issues, amounted to $129,000,000, as contrasted with a monthly average of only $99,000,000 for the years 1936 and 1937.

Optimistic estimates for October indicate that the record would have been even better had it not been for the unfavorable effect of the European war scare upon investment sentiment. Excluding the September figures, flotations for June, July and August averaged about $150,000,000 as compared with a monthly average of $32,000,000 in the early months of 1938.

While current flotations seem rather insignificant, compared with the huge flotations of the years immediately preceding the speculative collapse of 1929, it is important to remember that these new issues are not the sole source of new capital available to industry. Today, to an unusual extent, capital requirements are being self-financed by concerns with idle funds to invest. And these outlays do not appear in statistics of new issues, nor do they swell commercial bank loans.

Indirect evidence that the output of new issues is not a true measure of the actual outlays for industrial plant and equipment is afforded by estimates of private expenditures for new durable goods during the years from 1919 to 1937. Data prepared for the Bureau of Agricultural Economics by Mr. George Terborgh indicate that expenditures by businessmen for producers' goods rose rapidly and steadily from 1933, when outlays were at their lowest, to the beginning of 1937. Yet during this period the financing of new capital issues remained abnormally low and bank loans for industrial and commercial purposes likewise failed to respond to rising industrial activity.

The uncertain outlook for the railroads, and to a lesser extent for the public utilities, is a serious deterrent to any widespread revival of the investment market comparable to that of earlier prosperous years. But in face of such handicaps it is the more encouraging to note the stimulative effect upon the private capital market of the current business upturn. The record indicates how eager owners of idle capital are to find productive outlets for their funds, and how ready they are to invest whenever there is reasonable hope that business will continue to improve in the months ahead.

Too Much Testimony . .

The Dies committee has been given a very important assignment in its investigation of un-American activities. That is the more reason why the inquiry should be most carefully conducted, confining testimony to well-informed, responsible witnesses and preventing the appearance of publicity seekers or disgruntled individuals who waste the committee's time by presenting hearsay and obviously unreliable evidence. Unfortunately there has been a preponderance of the latter kind of testimony to date.

The weakness of unsubstantiated assertions is not limited to its intrinsic undesirability. It also tends to defeat the basic aim of the inquiry by giving the impression that the whole issue of Communist and Fascist plotting is as negligible as the assertions of some of the witnesses who have been called. There is such a thing as getting too much publicity. And the Dies committee is hearing so many unimpressive cries of "wolf" that the country, probably mistakenly, is beginning to yawn over the disclosures made.

Senator O'Mahoney said recently that "one of the defects of Congressional hearings in the past has been the disorder and lack of preparation which has characterized some of them." His generalizations apply with especial force in the case at issue. Mr. O'Mahoney realizes the importance of preparing the way for public hearings. A special committee is now working out methods of procedure in advance of the hearings in the so-called monopoly inquiry.

If the Dies committee had been equally foresighted, it would be in a position to make much faster progress by calling witnesses who have demonstrably authentic and pertinent information to offer. Nothing is gained from the disorganized and childish testimony of individuals incompetent to make any convincing contribution to the subject under investigation.

Accepting Munich

Joseph P. Kennedy, our able Ambassador in London, made plain in his speech before the British Navy League that his remarks were uncensored by his government. He did this by the neat device of observing that Mrs. Kennedy had told him what he could and could not say with diplomatic propriety. Inferentially this meant that neither the President nor Secretary Hull is to be held responsible.

But it is none the less significant that Mr. Kennedy, after establishing this safeguard, went on to emphasize his belief that "it is unproductive for both democratic and dictator countries to widen the division now existing between them by emphasizing their differences." And the appropriate qualifications do not minimize the importance of the Ambassador's further remark that: "There is simply no sense, common or otherwise, in letting these differences grow into unrelenting antagonisms."

This attitude is strongly at variance with the position earlier taken by Secretary Hull, the official superior of Mr. Kennedy, on the importance of maintaining the treaty structure which the powerful dictatorships have so flagrantly flouted, not once but many times.

And Mr. Kennedy's remarks in London on Wednesday night are also strongly at variance with those not long since voiced by his chief and sponsor, President Roosevelt. Little more than a year ago Mr. Roosevelt made his famous remark about "quarantine" and asserted that it is "a matter of vital interest and concern to the people of the United States that the sanctity of international treaties and the maintenance of international morality be restored."

At Chicago, on October 5, 1937, President Roosevelt argued for collective action against aggressor nations. In London, on October 19, 1938, his personal appointee as Ambassador to Great Britain spoke out in favor of co-operative action with aggressor nations. The change in position is perhaps best summarized in the words of that homespun philosopher who once said: "If you can't lick 'em, jine 'em."

Mr. Kennedy, however, did not stop short with the suggestion that democracies and dictatorships should now "bend their energies toward solving their common problems by an attempt to re-establish good relations on a world basis." He further noted that "Great Britain and the United States, after more than a century of rivalry, seem to have reached an understanding with regard to naval matters . . . It probably is the first time two nations, not bound by an alliance, have actually welcomed every ship launched by the other."

There can be no understanding between nations on naval matters without an underlying understanding, actual or implied, on the policies of which navies are merely a reflection. So Mr. Kennedy, in his London speech, did not merely suggest co-operation with dictatorships. He also proclaimed an Anglo-American entente.

Thus, even though inferentially, we see American diplomacy adapting itself to the Munich Agreement. For better or worse that established an accord between the leading democracies and the leading dictatorships of Europe, a procedure to which Mr. Kennedy now extends retrospective approval. In the chaotic period following that agreement, however, he indicates that there will be a particular understanding between the United States and Great Britain, symbolized by our Ambassador's toast to the navy of the latter.

This is the first formal definition of the evolution in American foreign policy foreshadowed by the Munich Agreement. And unless either the President or Secretary Hull disowns Mr. Kennedy's speech it will properly be regarded as outlining the course which the Administration proposes to follow in the months ahead.

Schooling For Cripples

No more desirable task in the field of local education could be undertaken than the instruction of crippled children unable to attend school. Congress has been woefully negligent in its failure to extend "compulsory" education to those unfortunate youngsters confined to hospitals or homes by physical disabilities.

The WPA has properly intervened to correct this discrimination against the handicapped. Both the Board of Education and the Health Department had been powerless to act in the absence of any appropriation for visiting teachers in hospitals and the homes of cripples. By granting funds for this purpose the WPA will not only provide temporary instruction where it is acutely needed; it may also smooth the way for a permanent educational program for "shut-ins."

It would be naive, however, to regard this WPA educational program in the Nation's Capital as anything more than a temporary expedient. Indeed, the local WPA has agreed to finance the instruction of cripples in homes and hospitals only during the remainder of this fiscal year. The assumption is that Congress, at its next session, will authorize a permanent service of this sort through the schools.

The importance of keeping routine education under control of local school authorities cannot be overemphasized. WPA projects in this field are desirable only in cases of emergency. And the active direction of even these projects ought to be assigned to established educational agencies, as it has been in the present case.

The Tables Are Turned

In his address at Vienna, Ill., former Gov. Landon pointed his sharpest barbs at two of the weakest points in the armor of the New Deal. Unemployment remains an acute problem, he said, and the Administration's formidable array of agricultural experiments has failed.

Mr. Landon, like many other Republican leaders, has adopted the technique of pure opposition used by President Roosevelt in 1932. Widespread discontent in the farm belt is reported. In the language of Mr. Landon, "farm prices again are at ruinous levels." Regardless of whether or not the Agricultural Adjustment Administration is responsible for this state of affairs, Republicans can scarcely be expected to refrain from pressing the advantage it gives them.

Careful observers will note that Mr. Landon offered no alternative farm program. If the G. O. P. had such a plan, it could not be put into effect under the existing political set-up. So leaders of that party are concentrating upon the simple opposition technique which has been so effectively used against them in the past. Their strength in the farm belt is likely to come largely from the failure of the AAA.

There can be no doubt as to the bogging down of the New Deal agricultural policy when present surpluses and prices are considered. As Mark Sullivan pointed out yesterday on the opposite page, the prices of cotton, wheat, corn, oats and rye are substantially lower than they were five years ago when President Roosevelt pledged himself further to increase returns to farmers. Certainly curtailment of output in return for subsidies has not solved the farm problem.

Being uncertain as to the outcome of the AAA experiment, the President left the way open for retreat. If farm prosperity could not be attained by that method, he said early in his Administration, the mistake would be recognized and some other means to the same end would be employed. That is astute political technique. It has given Secretary Wallace an opportunity to bring forward a new farm plan almost every year.

But there comes a time when new panaceas, like the recently-proposed two-price system for farm products, lose their appeal. Experience has taught farmers to be skeptical of recurrent experiments. Moreover, the continued rigorous control of their major crop policies from Washington becomes the more objectionable when the promised economic gains prove delusive.

To some extent this dissatisfaction among farmers is offset by the AAA's benefit payments. Even when they lose faith in acreage curtailment as the road to prosperity, farmers are loath to forego subsidies which they have come to expect from the Federal Treasury. That fact, plus the negative character of the Republican attack, may keep many farmers in the New Deal column when they go to the polls next month. But the present backfiring against the AAA is bound to encourage re-examination of the farm problem in realistic terms.

The Forward Seat

The status of the horse, in this brave new world, has undergone a curious mutation, strikingly analagous to that of the sailing vessel.

The greatest advance in the design and construction of sailing craft came just as sails were disappearing from the commercial sea lanes. Since then sailing as a sport has won a far greater following than it ever had as a profession. In all probability the number of skilled sailors in the Cheaspeake Bay area is now as great as the number in all England during the palmy days of Drake.

Much the same development is apparent in the case of the horse. Since he ceased to be a necessity his cult has become far more flourishing than when he provided practically our whole overland transportation system. In the heyday of Squire Western fox hunting probably had not half so many devotees as today, when there are hardly enough foxes to go round. In Byzantium the horse-racing fever could scarcely have been as pandemic as in contemporary America, where almost everybody owns a car with a speedometer capable of registering 120 m. p. h.

Thus, the record number of entries at this year's Inter-American Horse Show, and the record crowds which, with continued good weather, are certain to turn out are but another indication of a general trend. After only five years the local show has attained the permanence of a festival.

And thus today, when nearly all the military experts hold cavalry to be obsolete, we are privileged to witness at Meadowbrook a perfection of military horsemanship undreamt of in the days when Atilla's herds trampled the Roman legions or when the Golden Horde swept westward over Europe without benefit of books on equitation.

Traffic Enforcement Moves

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: After listening to several morning broadcasts of traffic court procedure "in the interests of safe driving," as the announcer says, my only reaction is one of amazement and disgust. The broadcast, if heard without the preliminary explanation, would impress me as coming from Moscow, or newly occupied German territory.

No matter what the excuse, even if the regulation violated seemed ridiculous, the officer's word is taken as final. If the offender speaks up in his own defense as a freeborn American should, his guilt seems only more firmly established in the eyes of the court. One wonders at the zeal of traffic officers, who are so adept at spotting a car two inches over the prescribed limit for parking, but who cannot prevent holdups, and wide-spread crime of a really serious nature.

I am reminded at this point of an incident that occurred to a friend of mine here. A university student, on a small allowance, and with a second-hand low-priced car, parked his car a foot over the prescribed limit (because there was no other room) while he called for his girl at a university function. When he came out with her two officers had pounced on his car, and added the injury of sitting on his brand-new derby hat which was in the car.

To Fill A Vacancy

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Many of the residents of the District, including myself, are wondering why a District Commissioner has not been appointed to succeed former Commissioner Allen, resigned.

Four former presidents of the Federation of Citizens Associations, and the present president, come to mind immediately, namely, William McK. Clayton, George E. Havenner, James J. Yaden, Thomas E. Lodge and L. A. Carruthers, now holding that office.

Each of these men has proved his interest in local civics, each was an efficient worker in his respective local citizens association and in office as president of the federation, presided with dignity and efficiency; and each has a host of friends who would be glad to see any one of them honored with the appointment.

I know them all; but I know nothing of their national political affiliations, and do not feel this is of any material importance in local affairs.

War, Peace And Culture

To the Editor of The Post.—Sir: The letters to the Editor section of The Post, October 18, contains three letters of contrary but significant natures. Having just read them I can do nothing else but sit down immediately and pen my answer.

First there is the enlightening letter of the well-known Howard University professor, Kelly Miller in which he stresses the need of men to eliminate the Anti-Christ appearing today in the form of Hitler who upholds racial prejudice as being virtuous. Secondly there is my letter stressing the value of the science of biosophy or intelligent living, which gives man the power to change world events into a divine challenge to build a new society based on the affirmation of man's highest intelligence. And then there is the amazing letter of "Wantmore Truth" stating in effect that nations have to become warlike before they can breed men of intellect.

Such ideas as are expressed by Wantmore Truth are the result of seeing history from the superficial aspect. What are expressed are notions and opinions rather than conclusions arrived at after straight thinking. Perhaps the writer of this letter will quote what war and war thinking are doing today to our religious institutions, our museums of art, our school systems, our literature and libraries, etc., to back up his statement that the warlike Teutons have "contributed so overwhelmingly to the culture of civilized man." All will agree that if the barbaric tendencies expressed by Hitler are not checked, everything we revere as culture will soon be destroyed.

War today is not what it was two centuries ago when a professional army was the principal combatant. Today a war is fought by every member of society, and everything is sacrificed for its sake—liberty, conscience, religious convictions, as well as life. Society can only continue to progress when the peace psychology affirming man as a higher being replaces the war psychology which attempts to justify itself by proving man is no better than the animal.

"Point Of Vantage"

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is an ancient practice to place one's self alongside of a stream of wealth and, without adding in any way to it, dipping into it and diverting from it as one's powers, point of vantage, and the docility and lack of organization of its producers and rightful owners permit, and it is one that is sometimes continued until the source of wealth is destroyed.

In mediaeval times the robber baron employed this method, and it is even said that the Trojan War was not primarily to recover the "long-haired Helen" (was there ever a war about a bobbed-haired girl?) but to evict the Trojans from a point of vantage beside the waterway forming a link in the trade route between Greece and the Far East.

Certainly there is ample precedent for the New Dealers in ensconcing themselves at a point of vantage alongside the stream of wealth produced by the American people and, without adding to it, diverting from it at will enormous draughts which would otherwise flow to its rightful owners and to the benefit of the people generally. Thus do the potentialities of the taxing powers of the sixteenth amendment (unhappy the day of its adoption) and of the "donating powers" (not mentioned in the Constitution) which have been constructed by politicians and sustained by the courts, display themselves in conjunction with a suffrage inadequately safeguarded against abuse. Neither the Trojans nor the robber barons were supplied with so delectable a combination.

Yet there is also in the fates of the Trojans and of the robber barons, a precedent for the eviction of predatory nonproducers, fates which in the earlier instances were the result of concerted action by the long outraged victims.

For Censored Letters

To the Editor of The Post.—Sir: I have watched with amazement the letters which you permit to appear in The Post in regard to the work of women. Apparently any attack on women is in order at any time. No closed season. You have overlooked the fact that the subject is no longer an issue. The Constitution gives citizenship to women and the right to work or go about one's orderly living is guaranteed to all citizens. The repeal of "Section 213" shows that women do not forfeit citizenship by marriage. It is a serious thing to question the right of any citizen to earn.

I am not writing this as an "answer" to complaining letters from men who find competition with women too much for them, (many people could get along if their competitors were restrained by law from competing). I am writing to you in your capacity as Editor, just telling you that these attacks in your paper must stop. The Post is supposed to be a home paper, a large portion of your subscribers are women, many of your advertizers are women, and perhaps the major part of your advertizing is carried in the interest of women. I know that you have brilliant women on your staff, married and single.

A group of us have held an impromptu indignation meeting and have decided that should you continue to give space to such letters as I enclose, from anyone at any time, we will not only withdraw our subscriptions but also our advertising. Why, in heaven's name should women continue to support or do business with a paper which does not support them? Women are written and spoken of in these letters as if they were a race apart, undesirable aliens or even a horde of something or other from another planet.

Promise And Performance

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It was just six years ago—October 21, 1932—that Franklin Delano Roosevelt, President since March 4, 1932, said at St. Louis, referring to the obligations of the Federal Government:

"They suffer only to the extent that Government is permitted to be extravagant, wasteful or ill-managed.

"They suffer if the Federal budget is not balanced, and particularly where the deficit of one year is not cleared up in the succeeding year.

"It is my pledge and promise that this dangerous kind of financing shall be stopped and that rigid Governmental economy shall be forced by a stern and unremitting Administration policy of living within our income."

Recently Franklin Delano Roosevelt forecast the net deficit for the present fiscal year of 1938-1939 as just short of $4,000,000,000. This is an increase of $2,500,000,000 over the deficit of 1937-1938. This is an increase of $3,000,000,000 over Franklin Delano Roosevelt's own official estimate made in his budget message to Congress on January 5, 1938.

President Roosevelt has had a deficit for every single fiscal year of his Administration: 1932-1933 and 1933-1934 and 1934-1935 and 1935-1936 and 1936-1937 and 1937-1938, and now the biggest deficit of all for 1938-1939.

The total deficits since he became President, including the present fiscal year, are nearly $22,000,000,000. The total debt at the end of the present fiscal year will exceed $40,000,000,000.

President Roosevelt has steadily and amazingly violated his—"pledge and promise that this dangerous kind of financing shall be stopped."

President Roosevelt has steadily and amazingly violated his pledge that—"rigid Governmental economy shall be forced by a stern and unremitting Administration policy of living within our income."

The Post Impressionist

Japanese Diplomat

LET ME say at the outset that I know that to write such a piece as this, in our day of partisan hates and prejudices, is to lay myself open to charges of being (1) a Nazi; (2) a Fascist; (3) a baby-bomber; (4) a betrayer of Abyssinia, China, Czechoslovakia, etc. Still, the incident made such an impression on my mind that I have ever since felt the irrepressible desire to share it with others.

Not so long ago, my mother-in-law (who stanchly believes Don Porfirio Diaz was the greatest Mexican who ever lived) received a phone call from a man she had not seen for 40 years. The gentleman was a former Japanese diplomat, who had begun his career as an attache of the Japanese legation in Mexico along about 1897. The two old friends had a long talk on the phone; Mr. Z (let us call him) came to the house for a visit; and then he invited my mother-in-law, her husband, my wife and me to have luncheon with him at the beautiful Hotel Reforma.

How does one go about describing his impressions of a man? To Western eyes, Orientals are all more or less alike; but Mr. Z was quite different. He was small, of course, but he could have passed easily for a Mexican businessman. His Spanish was splendid, he had a keen sense of humor and when we went to his room there were flowers in abundance for, as he said, "How could I invite ladies to my rooms and not have flowers here to receive them?" He had gone to old San Juan Market and bought them himself.

He was in Mexico for the first time in 40 years, he said, because the Mikado's government had asked him to represent it at the various Hispanic American capitals. His mission was to invite these countries to take part in the Olympics. "But you know what happened," he remarked impassively. "I was in Havana when the news of the postponement of the games reached me. Still, my airline tickets had been bought so I am just continuing my trip and shall go on to Los Angeles, then by boat to Japan."

His conversation was most interesting . . . and just think of all he had to tell Cuca (my mother-in-law) of what had happened to him during the two-score years since he had left old Mexico for foreign climes. He had been in Italy, Rumania, most of the Balkan countries, had visited practically all of Europe, and had represented his country in a majority of the Hispanic American states. In the United States he had been but a casual visitor, except in Chicago, where he had attended several courses at the university.

And what of the old days? The memories rolled back the years and we at the table heard of the young Japanese who, living as a guest in a house where five lovely (and lively) Mexican sisters ran things to their taste, was pestered almost to death. He recalled the incident of the wearing of his first "tall" hat when he was too embarrassed to put it on before the five whirlwinds . . . and carried it out to the carriage in his hand!

He had married, years ago, the daughter of an Italian professor, of Rome. She was dead now, but his fine son and beautiful daughter (his snapshots backed up the statement) enjoyed life in Buenos Aires, the magic capital of Argentine. He showed us his wife's picture . . . and with it was a large gold medal of the Sacred Heart. "Are you a Catholic," asked Cuca. "Yes," he smiled. "For years I had been one in my heart; so when she died, I became one in name as well as fact."

A thousand stories came back to these elderly people, Mr. Z, Cuca and her husband, Don Eduardo. Where was this building? Gone. Where was that person? Dead. Ah, yes, the old days change. He had been to see Dona Carmen, the aged wife of Porfirio Diaz now living the life of a recluse.

In passing, he mentioned Rita, Cuca's younger sister. Ah, I said to myself, a romance. But the conversation lagged on the point. Later, Cuca told me that Mr. Z had loved Rita very much . . . but the affair was one-sided. Later, she married a Mexican boy, had children, died. We said goodbye to Mr. Z, who planned to go to Los Angeles and surprise another one of the laughing Mexican girls of the nineties, Cuca's eldest sister, now a resident of L. A. All of us received cards from him before he sailed.

Nothing extraordinary in all this, you say? I'd almost forgotten. This polished former Minister of Japan; this business-like representative of half a dozen large Japanese industrial firms; this man who looked sad and said nothing when war in China was mentioned, sent Cuca a note the day he left on the California-bound plane. It read:

"Dear Cuca: It was grand to see you again, to recall old times, to meet your handsome children, to talk once more with Don Eduardo. The memories of the past come flooding in on me. I shall never forget this visit. Please take the inclosed money and buy flowers for Rita's grave. I know she would have liked that. Goodbye."

Cuca took the money and bought flowers for the grave of the gay Mexican girl who 40 years ago had refused the love of a young Japanese who came back to a vastly changed world . . . and remembered her.

Outstanding Commentators On Current Events At Home And Abroad

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler

U. S.-World Police?

IT ONCE WAS a fundamental right of the American husband in most States to beat his wife with a rod no thicker than his thumb. Fortunately, if you insist, that right has been grievously impaired by indirect curtailment. He must not inflict bodily harm, nor has he a right to disturb the neighbors with her screams.

Moreover, courts, grand juries and juries have leaned sharply to the belief that the wife in such cases may defend herself by small arms or with the bread knife, and this has surrounded an old privilege with such risks as to prevent the free exercise of the same. This, as Mr. Herbert Hoover and others have observed with alarm, the price of our liberties is constant vigilance lest they be destroyed by stealth.

I WOULD NOT campaign for the restitution of this particular right in its original beauty, but do venture to suggest that the United States always has been too ready to dash into the home of a neighbor, crying "Unhand that woman," and that the domestic fights of the neighbors command our attention to the neglect of troubles of our own.

Americans, in a mood of pure chivalry and pity, drove the Spaniards out of this Hemisphere and put an end to their atrocities in Cuba only to see a day when the Cubans, celebrating their liberation from the rule of one of their own patriot heroes, Gerardo Machado, seized prize cattle on his farm and tore poor, unoffending beasts limb from living limb in various revenge on the fugitive dictator.

AMERICANS have meddled in Britain's Irish problem, in the internal affairs of the Russia of the Czar and in racial and religious feuds in the Near East. This country's people attempted to impose democracy on Europeans who have neither the wish nor the knack for democratic government and found it as awkward as Hitlerism would be to us. After all, that—after a crusade in the heat of which Americans never paused to doubt that democracy was what those peoples wanted—there came a day when solemn little Italian boys, marching in Fascist formations, cried with great spirit, "We spit on democracy!"

Never in the memory of any man now living has the air been filled with cries more piteous from the homes of the neighbors than those which now rise from the strange countries of Europe. We may believe the heads of these households to be insane, and the horror of the persecution in Hitler's Germany is such that the effects are felt outside. In beating his wife with a rod which seems much bigger than his thumb he is disturbing the peace of the whole world, but, dreadful as his conduct is, the job of volunteer policeman to put an end to it is more than the United States can handle. It is more important—and a prior duty of the Americans—to abolish racial oppression at home, quite aside from the fact that this country just hasn't the muscle or the determination to remedy things abroad.

THERE IS TOO little appreciation by foreign groups or groups with foreign ties of the liberties and opportunities which they enjoy themselves in this country. Little and big clots of citizens who came from other countries or were born of refugee parents busy themselves trying to make sentiment on behalf of their suffering kin. They exert political pressure on party leaders to obtain recognition of themselves as foreign or semi-foreign groups in American local and State government.

By preserving their foreignness, Americans of Italian and German blood expose themselves to intimidation by outwardly Americanized editors and other agents of the dictators who constantly threaten woe to their relatives in the old countries. Even Poles, who yearned for Polish liberation but wouldn't think of returning to Poland, still consider themselves to be somehow, in some indefinite way, Polish long after Poland went free, her ancient wrongs redressed to the limit of possibility.

JEWS, ENJOYING liberties here the equal of which they would discover in few other lands on earth, strive to involve the country in some rescue of Jews abroad, knowing that in a showdown of such a proposal American public sentiment would react on themselves and fail of their purpose.

The United States can't rescue the Jews or the Armenians in their never-ending woes or restore Czechoslovakia or free Abyssinia or China, for the wife-beaters of the world are too many, too far away, too big and, anyway, in private truth, we sometimes fetch the old lady the back of our hand ourselves.

Marching Frontiers

By Mary N. Hawes

Applying The Munich Settlement

Special Correspondence of The Post.

Prague.

TODAY YOU MAY go to bed in Czech territory only to wake up in German, Hungarian or Polish. Frontiers creep up on railroad tracks, so it is impossible to travel from one part of the country to another without crossing them. They creep up on industries and factories, swallowing much of the wealth of the country. From all sides they are closing in on Czechoslovakia.

Formerly crossing frontiers meant a passport official and some rummaging through luggage. Then, as Chamberlain flew to Munich, strange things began to happen to the borders. They were closed, sometimes barricaded. No one could cross into Germany. People had to walk miles across the Polish and Hungarian frontiers, sometimes facing sentinels on barricaded borders late at night.

Then, after Munich, the frontiers began to move on the dictates of four so-called "great" powers. No one seemed to know where or how fast they would advance. It was fantastic. One American woman, coming to Prague, reached Eger (the former border town), to find the Germans occupying it in advance of schedule. She went on to Karlsbad, still hoping to get within Czech territory. There she was told the frontier was much farther on, but no one knew how much farther. Within 12 miles she passed the Czech sentries and decided to spend the night in Czech territory.

Next morning she awoke to find the German troops had occupied it; so again she had to set off—on foot—to try to catch up with the Czech frontier. The trip from Paris to Prague, ordinarily a matter of 24 hours, took a whole week.

TWO DAYS AFTER the "Big Four" had decided to sacrifice Czechoslovakia, I visited a northern zone in process of evacuation. There again no one knew where Germany began and Czechoslovakia ended. In outlying sections a few inhabitants had only just learned that within a few hours they would be living in the Reich. Many refugees had fled, thousands of German Social Democrats had sought safety from Nazi persecution in and around Prague. The Czech officials had left, but there were Henleinists in Czech uniforms.

Try as we might, it was impossible to find a frontier behind which we could leave our Czech chauffeur in safety while we witnesed the German advance. It was always moving. Even Czech soldiers were caught by it. Five hundred of them were taken prisoners when the Germans went into Falkenau even hours ahead of schedule. It was simple for the Germans, as they knew the Czechs were under strictest orders not to fire.

Keeping up with frontiers was difficult enough on the ground; from the air it was impossible. I was to fly from Prague to the second largest city in Czechoslovakia—Moravska Ostrava. The start was long delayed. On that day the Germans were occupying the fifth zone, a zone that gave Hitler practically everything he demanded at Godesberg. Again no one knew how far the Germans were coming; it was dangerous to fly over their territory, but how to avoid it? The pilot plotted a most extraordinary course—two sides of a triangle. It took twice as long as the direct route. The nearer we came to Moravska Ostrava the more difficult his job. There the Germans were moving in on the west and the Poles on the east, without any regard for the fact that the majority of the inhabitants on both sides were Czech.

Only a narrow finger of Czechoslovakia was left. From one iron and steel factory there one could look out and see the chimneys now in Germany, and on the other side the houses now in Poland. Families living only a few miles apart suddenly found themselves separated by frontiers, one member in Poland, another in Germany, still another in Czechoslovakia.

WHOLE CZECH TOWNS were given to the two neighboring countries. In one—Petrvald—the inhabitants had heard that foreign correspondents were in the district, and hundreds of them waited in the rain along the roadway to tell us their story. Their mayor, a former member of the Legion in France, told us, with tears in his eyes, that in a few days they would be handed over to Poland, although in the whole town there were only 120 Poles as against 11,400 Czechs. But Poland wanted three rich mines there, and that was apparently all that mattered. "A plebiscite, that's all we ask." But the frontiers were not drawn for the benefit of the inhabitants.

When Poland, profiting from the success of Hitler, forced Czechoslovakia by ultimatum to hand over two districts where the total Czech population is 120,000 and the Poles only number 76,000, then Poland was not concerned with self-determination, but getting rich coal mines. When Germany had the International Commission, at Berlin, draw the frontier of the fifth zone so that it took in many districts where the Czechs outnumber the Germans; when it had the line drawn to take in a munition works in a town—Polika—98 per cent Czech, to take in important automobile and locomotive works in a town—Koprivince—84 per cent Czech, then it was not self-determination that mattered. Nor was it such a principle that inspired the Germans to demand regions through which pass the main raiload routes, making it impossible to go from western to eastern Czechoslovakia without passing through Germany once or even twice.

FROM THE OCCUPIED REGIONS Czechs and German anti-Nazis fled with what belongings they could gather in haste. Even from the Polish sections many Czechs had to flee for fear of persecution. I have seen a concert hall piled high with their desks, beds, bicycles and every imaginable article, just dumped there while the owners had gone away to hunt for lost children, new homes, new jobs.

Still, if evacuation has to be done at a moment's notice, if thousands must lose their homes and work, it could have hardly been done under more favorable circumstances than the evacuation of those very districts going to Poland. For Gen. Hrabcik, the Czech officer in charge, told me himself, he was a close friend of the Polish Gen. Bortnowski, in charge of occupation. They had been students together at the War College in Paris. Such are some of the tricks fate has played in these strange and fatal hours of Europe.

When frontiers once start to move in response to threat, there is no knowing when they will stop. No Czech believes that after Munich Hitler will be satisfied with his new boundaries. What can he not do in the future when no small country can afford to trust the western democracies, when every one of them must make peace with Naziism?

Today there are thousands of refugees crowding in Czechoslovakia, without hope of homes or work in a country now so cramped. Tomorrow there will be more thousands of refugees fleeing from the ever-growing menace of the Reich.

On The Record

By Dorothy Thompson

The Role Of Mr. Kennedy

THERE ARE very serious things afoot in this world. We do not know exactly what these are, for most of Europe today is governed by secret societies, operating in darkness, and with a muzzled press. This now holds, not only for the totalitarian states, but for England and for France. However, from the unparalleled observation point which this country still has, we can observe the effect, even if we are uncertain of the origins, of new policies. Lippmann was not overstating in any sense when he said yesterday that Munich "must be regarded as one of the decisive though bloodless battles that shape the history of the world."

SINCE MUNICH an indepnedent state has, to all intents and purposes, vanished off the face of this earth. New alignments in eastern Europe are following each other with dizzying rapidity.

At a blow, France has been reduced to the position of a third-rate power. The German dictator presents demands which completely reverse those that France, through Versailles, made upon the Germans. Yesterday terms were dictated to Czechoslocakia; today France is asked to renounce her pact with Russia, return to Germany colonies in Africa, assure Germany a free hand in the East, and agree to permanent inferiority in the air.

GREAT BRITAIN is backing down in Arabia, where the Arabian masses have been agitated for years by Italian propaganda. The weakness of Great Britain in the Far East is notorious.

North Africa is in ferment, the populations stirred up by Fascist agitators. The refugee question is assuming titanic proportions.

The shifts in national power are pushed forward not only by the threat of war from two nations which are completely on a war footing but by revolutionary propaganda employed on a scale absolutely unprecedented in all history and by trade policies ruthlessly designed to further imperialist aggrandizement in unremitting war against the freer economies of the nontotalitarian nations.

THIS HARDLY masked warfare goes on in the Western Hemisphere no less than in Europe. In Mexico the product of expropriated British and American oil wells is given to Germany in return for goods.

In all the South American countries colonies of Germans and Italians are centers of revolutionary activities designed to change the existing governments of South American republics and switch new Fascist governments into line with the international aims of Italy and Germany.

And in our own country a spy plot is being uncovered which is unique in peacetimes.

THIS COUNTRY suddenly wakes up to its appalling military, aerial and naval weakness in the world as it exists today. The facts about our weakness are well known to the intelligence officers of other powers, but they are not known to the American people.

Having comfortably relied for generations upon the might of the British Empire to collaborate in protecting mutual interests outside our own boundaries, we must and very soon will realize that we are not by ourselves capable of protecting even the Monroe Doctrine, the one item of our foreign policy which has been consistent from our beginnings.

WE OBSERVE that the shifts in power carry with them radical changes in the internal policies of the so-called democracies.

Not only is national power sacrificed: The liberties of the people are sacrificed also. In Britain and France the parliamentary systems do not function. The people are kept by direct and indirect censorship in almost complete ignorance of what is happening to them.

In France and in England a whispering campaign is going on in which the scapegoat is the United States.

THE PAROLE goes out that the troubles of Europe are also the fault of Woodrow Wilson.

There are serious apprehensions among well-informed people that a new worldwide settlement is being contemplated in the secret conclaves of uncontrolled governments which will be largely at the expense of the United States; that we will be asked to abandon the Monroe Doctrine, and as a price of "general appeasement" sacrifice vital interests on this hemisphere.

NOW, WHAT IN ALL this is the policy of our State Department, and what is the role of Mr. Kennedy, United States Ambassador to Great Britain?

Throughout the whole crisis which culminated at Munich Mr. Kennedy was in closest touch with Mr. Chamberlain.

He has been warmly—though not publicly—thanked for his useful advice. He was also in close touch with the President, and there is reason to believe that it was on the basis of the information received from Mr. Kennedy that the President sent his "peace" telegrams to Hitler, Mussolini and the other heads of powers.

On Wednesday, Mr. Kennedy, who as Ambassador to Great Britain, is the official spokesman in London of the United States Government, made a most remarkable speech. He suggested collaboration with the dictatorships and again raised the question of general limitation of armaments, to be arrived at by general agreement. The whole speech seems to indicate that the President has not abandoned the idea he had many months ago and launched again in his second note at the time of the Czechoslovak crisis of some sort of international conference, in which we also would participate.

BUT IT WOULD seem that if ever there was a time in history when the United States should keep her hands free and her eyes strictly on her own interests, that moment is now. This country should sit down at no conferences with anyone until we have put our own house in order, until our capacity to defend the totality of our interests is unquestioned, and until whoever sits at that conference is backed up by the authority of arms and the support of a free, informed and united people, with a very clear policy of exactly what it is that we are prepared to defend. Every meeting so far with the dictatorships has meant unequivocal surrender. Simply that and nothing more.

The only statesman in Europe who has ever understood the true nature of national socialism and its leader was the late Marshal Pilsudski, of Poland, himself a revolutionist, and a believer, like Hitler, in the power of the sword, and in the fait accompli.

VERY SOON after Hitler came into power, the marshal sent his ambassador in Berlin to Hitler with terse instructions. (Be it noted that Marshal Pilsudski did not himself go to Berlin, Berchtesgaden or Godesberg.)

The diplomat was instructed to ask, "Do you want peace or war? If you want war, it begins tomorrow morning. If you want peace, sign here."

That was the origin of the German-Polish peace pact for ten years, which, however temporarily, caused Mr. Hitler to divert his attention from the Polish corridor elsewhere.

AND UNLESS this country is willing and prepared to confer in this manner, it would seem very much better to keep very still. For any other form of conference, the outcome is predictable on the model of Munich.

Peace on the terms of the different dictators is a Carthaginian peace, and the price is our vital interests, and our national and individual liberties, and even our form of government.

Crosses Sea in Lifeboat To Meet Her Fiance

New York, Oct. 20 (AP).—A 54-day voyage across the Atlantic Ocean in a 46-year-old, 45-foot reconditioned lifeboat pleased blonde Anna Foyn Bjonnes so much that now she plans to sail the craft on a two-year honeymoon to the South Seas.

Miss Bjonnes, husky daughter of a retired Norwegian whaling captain, made the trip to meet her fiance, Capt. Charles A. Crowninshield, a United States ship's hull inspector, of Stamford, Conn.

Books And Things

Steffens' Letters

"THIS IS NOT a letter-writing generation," Lincoln Steffens wrote to his sister in 1917. "My friends' letters are like mine—brief, careless, never thoughtful, hard expressive. They are principally appointments to meet and talk, and we do talk. I've heard some good conversation, even with Cabinet men. But, Lord, they wouldn't write that way. When Secretary Baker, sitting with one foot up on his desk, jerks his pipe out of his mouth and says, 'Well, I guess this King business is pretty near over,' and then rejoices in the Russian revolution, he talks as he would not write, and as no one should write for him. No, the day of letters is over like the day of Kings."

Lincoln Steffens was wrong. The best proof of that is here in the more than a thousand pages of "The Letters of Lincoln Steffens" (Harcourt, Brace, two vols., $10). These are not brief, careless, thoughtless letters; they are, in the early years, full reports to a beloved family, and in the later years, relaxed letters to beloved friends. As edited by Ella Winter and Granville Hicks, they seldom repeat the story told in the "Autobiography." They build up a far more intimate and an honester record of Lincoln Steffens' kaleidoscopic mind—and emotions.

HE WENT to Germany close to 50 years ago, with a "sort of understanding" with a California girl who, even in the letters, still lurks behind the pseudonym "G." He was lonely in Leipzig and fell into intellectual love with a fellow student, Josephine Bontecou, who became his first wife. He apologized to "G," and apologized about "G" to his family, but his letters to "G" are a missing part of the story told in these two stout volumes. His story of his earnest, argumentative marriage is pathetically funny.

"G" appears sympathetically, but always in the shadows. She came back into Steffens' life after the Leipzig student died, but "G's" husband would not divorce her. "G" was a part of the picture in 1919, when Steffens first met Ella Winter, 33 years his junior, who was to become the mother of his only child and co-editor of these volumes. His love letters to Ella Winter are here, and echoes of his shuttlings from "G" to "Peter," he called Miss Winter, and back again, and yet again. The man who thought he had deciphered the secrets of the complex political world was obviously a child with women. This is Ella Winter's book; some day, perhaps, "G's" share in Steffens also may come to light.

IT IS ELL WINTER'S book, too, in its proportions. The dramatic center of the "Autobiography" was the story of the coviction of the MacNamara dynamiters in Los Angeles in 1911, and of Steffens' role in that volcanic drama; only 170 of the "Autobiography's" 873 pages were post-MacNamara. In the "Letters" it is otherwise; more than 700 of the 1,000 pages are post-MacNamara, and something went out of Lincoln Steffens after that colossal failure.

"I want to assume that organized labor has committed the dynamiting and other crimes charged against it," Steffens wrote his sister from Los Angeles in 1911, and raise the question: Why? Why should human beings, as they are, feel so hateful they want to kill? Their explanation, their views of it all, I propose to get, understand, and so state that anybody, even an employer of labor, can comprehend it." That was typical of Steffens' philosophy: "We are not to judge, but to explain events and men," he would patiently say to the impatient Ella Winter. He thought people would act differently if they did understand. In Los Angeles, however, as he told in the "Autobiography," they neither understood nor acted differently. The result of Steffens' exercise in Christianity was a colossal explosion of hate which smashed the promises made by business leaders to Steffens, and almost swept Steffens out of the popular magazines. And one of the MacNamara boys and Matty Schmidt are still in jail in pardonless California.

YOU MAY read these letters for more light on Steffens, or for more light on the world we live in. Or for sheer entertainment: Steffens never wrote anything better than the account of the Siki-Carpentier fight contained in a letter to Fremont Older; he saw in Carpentier's defeat by a colored man the death of an old world. Here are revealing glimpses of Theodore Roosevelt, the older La Follette, and of the present-day La Follettes when they wore knee pants. Of Fred Howe, Brand Whitlock, Upton Sinclair—all the pre-war generation of reformers. Here is wisdom in wartime: "Since we are to prepare, that's the way to prepare; by abolishing poverty and developing a people—not alone the country but the Nation," and "Lots of war-mad folk get cross-eyed with rage when they attempt to express their failure to think." Steffens tries to explain Mexico to the United States, and the United States to Mexico, and Russia to the world.

Hull Stands Firm

By Ernest K. Lindley

THE MUNICH settlement has quickened the anxiety of many informed American observers concerning the penetration of Latin America by non-American dictator states. This "invasion," commercially and by the spreading of ideas, has been under way for several years. It may now be intensified, especially by Germany. Whether the Latin-American policy of the Roosevelt Administration, based upon the "good neighbor" slogan and Secretary Hull's reciprocal trade treaties, is stout enough to combat this "invasion" is being questioned more seriously than ever before.

The "good neighbor" policy is one of rigid non-intervention. We have not only renounced the right to establish a police force in any Latin-American state; we have said that being a "good neighbor" implies complete forbearance from interference by any one republic in the domestic concerns of any other. Under this policy we no longer refuse to recognize governments which acquire power by revolution rather than by constitutional means.

WE TRY to maintain friendly relations with whatever kind of government a country maintains—no matter what mixture of dictatorship and republicanism it may be. Thus, in the "good neighbor" policy there is nothing of the idea of a solid "democratic front" against dictators. In fact, there is no official objection to dictators—at least not so long as the dictators are home-grown. Anything in the way of overt propaganda for the democratic form of government, spread from the United States, would violate the "good neighbor" policy, and probably would be useless anyway.

The liberals who fostered the "good neighbor" policy have to tolerate in Latin America quite a few governments which they don't like. But from the point of view of American national interest, as embodied in the Monroe Dictrine, the main question is whether these governments are independent national governments or whether they are the tools of non-American states.

FORTUNATELY, most of them behave like independent national governments. But a few are rather closely tied economically to Italy and Germany, especially the latter, or contain active German or Italian minorities. The Germans already have been remarkably successful in increasing their Latin-American trade through the same kind of barter agreements with which they have been acquiring economic suzerainty over the Danubian and Balkan states. Over the last several years they have made much greater economic gains in several Latin-American countries than we have with the aid of Secretary Hull's reciprocal trade treaties. Raymond Moley, Walter Lippmann and various other observers suggest that we frankly realize that Mr. Hull's free trade principles are no longer a powerful weapon to combat the subsidized trade of efficent and economically aggressive governments.

During the earlier years of the Roosevelt Administration this viewpoint was tenaciously held by George N. Peek, for whom was created the special office of Adviser to the President on Foreign Trade. Mr. Peek argued, until he finally argued his way out of the Administration, that the old era of relatively free trade, the gold standard and unconditional most-favored-nation treatment had gone beyond recovery. He proposed that we should follow the practice which the British already had established, and which the Germans were soon to perfect, of negotiating bilateral, discriminatory trade agreements.

MR. PEEK wanted to set up a permanent Board of Foreign Trade, representing agriculture, industry and other fields to devote full time to the promotion of our foreign trade relations. He was in favor of subsidies, credits and all other known means of promoting and controlling the flow of our foreign commerce. But the nub of his argument was that "the way to trade is to trade." Mr. Peek and his supporters thought that they were in complete accord with the "Yankee horse-trading" policy proposed by Mr. Roosevelt in the 1932 campaign.

Mr. Peek found that he could not move Cordell Hull in 1934 and 1935. And, as Mr. Hull comes as near to being immovable as any man in American public life, the chances are that Mr. Moley and Mr. Lippmann will not succeed in moving him now.

Among the nations with which Mr. Hull has executed the kind of trade agreements in which he believes are Brazil and eight smaller Latin-American nations (not counting Cuba, with which we have a preferential treaty). What has been heralded as his crowning achievement, an agreement with Great Britain, is imminent. Mr. Hull can hardly be expected to surrender principles which he has preached day in and day out since he became Secretary of State and has succeeded in applying in some slight degree in his reciprocal trade agreements.

APART FROM Mr. Hull's beliefs, informed officials cite several reasons why it would be poor tactics at the present time to change our trade policies. The first is that we have succeeded rather well in holding our own in Latin America. Most of the German gains have been at the expense of other nations. A second is that not only Brazil but several other Latin-American nations are exhibiting discontent with the restrictions of the German barter agreements and would prefer to trade on Mr. Hull's basis. A third is that there is no economic advantage to us in giving more of our products to Latin America with the aid of subsidies and loans.

For political reasons we may be forced, sooner or later, to subsidize our Latin-American trade to check German economic penetration. But for the present the Administration seems content to keep its ace face down.

Dodd Says U. S. Must Act With England, France

Boston, Oct. 20 (AP).—William E. Dodd, former United States Ambassador to Germany, today declared "there is only one peace remedy and that is for England, France and the United States to get together."

In a prepared address at the conference of the Associated Industries of Massachusetts, Dodd said: "That ington point of view—easy trade means a return to the Wilson, Wash- relations, the payment of debts to one's people, forbidding of wars and the redistribution of urban populations."

"If Democracies are once able to co-operate in economic affairs and offer solid fronts to Hitler and Mussolini," he said, "poor Spain will survive and Latin America will not become Nazi or Fascist. If this can not be done before 1940 or 1942, we shall have a strange civilization, no man allowed to use his tongue except to eat, and no publisher allowed ot print the truth."

Radio Tube Firm Sues R. C. A., Westinghouse

Providence, R. THESE ENGLAMORED DIPLOMATS

Before he was Minister from Costa Rica, Senor Ricardo Castro Beeche worked for the movies and taught Hollywood to use the masculine gender in Spanish subtitles for heroes in pants . . . Not until he was 58 did Ralph William Close, Minister from the Union of South Africa, ever leave the once Dark Continent.

* * * *

Zadeikis
. . . portrait of a diplomat

Another diplomat who knows the inside of a prison is Minister Povilas Zadeikis of Lithuania, once jailed by the Russian Cheka . . . That makes four, with the emissaries from Cuba, Albania, and Greece . . . You get a hint of a diplomat's family life from the fact that the daughter of Don Diogenes Escalante, the Venezuelan Minister at Washington was born in Switzerland and married a Hungarian in Paris. (Robert Brennan, the new Irish Minister, also did time in political prisons, which makes five foreign diplomats in Washington who know how it is on the inside looking out.)

* * * *

Hollywood is still wondering what Don Fernando de los Rios, the Spanish Ambassador, meant when he said "Movies are the esthetics of the new expressionism . . ." Once Dr. Cheng-ting Thomas Wang, the Chinese Ambassador, was a Y. M. C. A. secretary . . . Father of six children, Dr. Hector de Castro, the Salvadorean Minister, is a 6-foot chess and billiards player.

The favorite golf course of Hirosi Saito, the Japanese Ambassador, is the Burning Tree Club here (rendezvous of the bigshots) because no women are allowed . . . It was the late John D. Rockefeller who urged Vladimir Hurban, the Czech Minister, to take up golf, one day near Miami; but it wasn't until 5 years later in Egypt that he got around to it. (He's luckier than Prochnik, the former Austrian minister; part of his country survived.)

* * * *

Champion week-ender in the Diplomatic Corps is Jonkheer H. M. van Haersma de With, who dashes off somewhere almost every Friday from May to October; he has also the most formidable name . . . As an aviator, Minister Radu Irimescu holds the Virtutea Aeronautica medal, which entitles him to free rides on all Roumanian trains. (He prefers to fly.)

What does an American medal entitle you to do?

* * * *

Believe it or not, Alfred Bilmanis, Minister from Latvia, founded the Riga Rotary Club . . . Like a dozen other diplomats here, he has had several books published, one of which he consults occasionally at the Library of Congress, because he has no copies left . . . When off duty the Swedish Minister, Wollmar Filip Bostrom, sometimes says "New Yersey," but officially he always says "New Jersey."

Once Senor Jose Richling, Minister from Uruguay, imported a Russian farming village of 2,300 souls almost intact to the Uruguan pampas; each family averaged 11 children . . . That was in 1913; by this year they had increased to 30,000 . . . The Hungarian Minister, handsome John Pelenyi, was brought up on the Leatherstocking Tales, and married an American girl.

* * * *

Don Andres Pastoriza, the Dominican Minister, lives in a legation which was taken down stone by stone moved two miles and rebuilt in "Embassy Row," and a U. S. Senator once occupied an apartment in the building . . . Norway's Minister Munthe Morgenstierne is quite an authority on our War Between the States.

* * * *

Celebrated for his resemblance to FDR is the Danish Minister, Dr. Otto Wadsted, who once spent 11 weeks reaching Australia from Copenhagen during the war, and a year later was aboard ship 27 days from Sydney to Buenos Aires . . . Biggest family in the Diplomatic Corps here is that of Elie Lescot, the Haitian Minister, who has seven children . . . Herr Hans Heinrich Dieckhoff, the German Ambassador, has a huge globe of the world, 4 feet in diameter, which is going out of date more rapidly every day as the Reich bulges . . . What's more important he could walk on eggs without cracking any.

WPA Project For Cripples Moves Ahead

Haworth Approves It $18,045 Provided Gallinger Aids. Plan Teachers Are Chosen

Ross Haworth, assistant District WPA administrator, yesterday signed and forwarded to Federal headquarters the $18,045 project for educationt of physically handicapped children.

The project being previously passed by Dr. Lewis R. Alderman, director of educational projects for the Federal WPA, approval in that quarter is virtually certain. From there the program goes to the Budget Bureau, thence to President Roosevelt.

"It will be moved along as swiftly as possible," said Haworth. "By Monday selection of the 16 visiting teachers should be under way."

He revealed that 21 persons will be employed, not 20 as previously announced. In addition to the 16 teachers, there will be two field workers, one clerk and two supervisors.

9 Colored Teachers

Nine teachers, one field worker and one supervisor will be colored, serving the 129 colored boys and girls who will be accommodated. Of this total, 75 will be taught in hospitals, some in wards and others in out-patient clinics, and 54 in their homes.

Into the homes will go five white teachers to instruct 55 children, while two will be assigned to handle 25 boys and girls in hospitals.

It is hoped that the program, relieving an acute problem to which The Post called attention in a series of articles that began October 9, can get under way late next week.

At public school headquarters in the Franklin Building yesterday workers waded through a maze of "excused from school" records, from which the 209 children will be chosen.

Gallinger Aids Plan

Gallinger Hospital facilities were opened yesterday to all crippled children under 21, not otherwise provided for, by the District Health Department.

Joining in the campaign to aid cripples, both in treatment and education, health authorities have completed plans to use a portion of Social Security funds allotted to the District for this work to operate clinics at the hospital.

Service in the clinics will be provided four days each week, beginning next Monday, it was stated. Under the social security act, $30,000 is provided the District Health Department for all types of care and treatment for cripples each year.

Appointment System

The clinics are situated in the basement of the Convalescent Pavilion at Nineteenth and C streets southeast.

Dr. Daniel L. Seckinger, assistant health officer, said all clinics would be operated on the appointment system. The general procedure to be followed, he said, will be to make an appointment for the initial medical history, examination and social history. The patient will then be assigned to an orthopedic clinic for treatment.

At the same time the Health Department announced a series of lectures designed to strengthen the nursing service for the District's crippled children.

Health Officer George C. Ruhland said the lectures would be divided into four courses. The first lecture will be given tomorrow at 11:30 a. m. in the auditorium of the United States Public Health Service. Dr. Ella Oppenheimer, director of the Bureau of Maternal and Child Welfare, will explain the crippled children's program under the social security act.

Dr. Seckinger pointed out that individuals for whom there is no reasonable prospect for improvement and who require custodial care would not be accepted under the scope of the clinical program.

State Names Six Special Guards To Halt Trawlers

Ocean City, Md., Oct. 20 (AP).—Six Ocean City watermen were appointed special deputy inspectors today by the State Conservation Commission in an attempt to prevent trawlers from fishing within the three-mile limit.

The appointment followed complaints from hoteimen and sportsmen that the trawlers, seeking menhaden, were operating illegally within the three-mile limit, using nets which they complained were stirring up the bottom and spoiling fishing.

The commission previously asked the aid of the Coast Guard in patroling the area but no answer has yet been received from the commandant of the station at Norfolk, Va.

By Christine Sadler

Top-flight dogs from the best registers cut in on the historic Fredericksburg Dog Mart yesterday to such an extent that the plain houn' dog scarcely could hear himself bay and had to find solace in the fact that the high price of the show—$178—went to a self-made coon dog who has hunted hard all his life.

A total of 642 dogs were entered in the show preceding the 240-year-old annual sale, which originated in 1698 when Fredericksburg residents and the Indians decided to call a halt to their fighting once a year and hold a dog exchange.

Only 150 of the dogs went to the auction block, where Barton Mason, of Orange County, cried their worth and where sales averaged slightly above $20. The low price brought at the auction, which was terminated by a rain at 5 p. m., was the $2.50 paid by Ray Hall, of Fredericksburg, for "a mutt I could have had for $2."

Throughout the day, however, dogs were being bought and sold and traded. They were tied up in benches to ropes stretched around the city park and while the judges awarded blue ribbons in the biggest and classiest show staged since the sale was revived in 1927 groups of owners stayed on the sidelines and did their dog trading—an art more highly developed than horse trading.

"Go way, man. That dawg can't run a fox. He's 12 years old if he's a day. He drop dead you run him more'n an hour. I give you 50 cents and not a penny more." These heart-rending words from an old fox hunter eager to trade were typical.

But they didn't faze the dog's owner, who came back with: "That dawg be running foxes—and ketching 'em—long after both me and you gone. That dawg got strength in him."

Highlight of th e day's program was the fox horn blowing contest shortly after noon. E. W. Kube, of Rhodesville, and Dave Jackson, a colored hunter from Spottsylvania, tied and had to draw for the honor—which went to Kube.

The low plaintive notes Kube pulled out of an old, old horn could be heard at least 4 miles away, he said. Kube has been hunting foxes, both red and gray, since he was 8 years old and can blow an extra little tune that he learned on a bugle years ago and transferred to the horn by hard practice.

J. E. Boyd, of Falmouth was blowing a Texas horn more than 100 years old. Mrs. Robert Brooks Hinton, of Alexandria was the only woman who entered the contest.

For the first time a parade was held in connection with the mart. Dog owners, officials, bands, and dogs paraded at noon through the main streets of Fredericksburg—where George Washington spent several years of his boyhood and where his mother is buried.

Prince, an English setter owned by Mrs. Joseph Rotella, of Ellerson, Va., was judged the champion dog of the whole show. Fritz, owned by Billy Whitlock of near Fredericksburg, was judged the ugliest mutt in the show.

The coon dog that brought the top price was owned by W. L. Wickham, of Chancellor and was bought by C. E. White, of Richmond.

Capital Congratulates WJSV, Celebrating Sixth Anniversary

Officials and Civic Workers Speak Praise Newspapermen Send Congratulations Other Stations Aid With Program

Radio station WJSV last night celebrated its sixth anniversary with a 30-minute program beginning at 10 o'clock, crowded with brief speeches of congratulation from Washington notables.

Thomas E. Lodge, attorney, spoke of the station's growth and its record of co-operation with civic-minded people of Washington. He was followed by Isaac Gans, of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board, who brought greetings from District Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen and the District government. Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, president of the District Board of Education, presented a large bunch of roses and the appreciation of the Board of Education for time on the station for public school matters.

Greetings were sent by C. Marshall Finnan, superintendent of the National Capital Parks, and Gordon Hittenmark of WRC introduced Miss Mary Eilers of that station, who sang a solo. Benjamin M. McKelway, managing editor of the Evening Star, and Charter Heslep, news editor of the Washington Daily News, congratulated the station. Frank G. Addison, president of the Washington Board of Trade, brought greetings from the board and from Washington business and Art Brown of WOL introduced a vocal trio and accompanist from his station.

Alexander F. Jones, managing editor of The Washington Post, followed with a word of appreciation for the men and women responsible for the growth of WJSV and congratulated the station on reaching its sixth milestone. Greetings from churches and charities were brought by the Rev. W. L. Darcy, D. D., secretary of the Washington Federation of Churches.

Frank Waldrup for the Washington Herald and the Washington Times congratulated the station as did Howard Burkhardt, manager of Loew's Capitol Theater. Lee Everett, of WMAL, introduced Gustave and Greta Heintze, of his organization, who offered a piano duet.

L. A. Carruthers, president of the Federation of Citizens Associations, spoke and was followed by Harry C. Butcher, Washington resident vice president of the Columbia Broadcasting System, and A. D. Willard, general manager of WJSV. Music closed the program.

Hagerstown Roofer Dies in 70-Foot Fall

Hagerstown, Md., Oct. 20.—Ralph Hamburg, 21, an employe of a local roofing concern, was killed today in a 70 foot fall from the roof of the Maryland Theater while lowering slag. His body hurtled to the top of a truck upon which the slag was being loaded, and the bucket narrowly missed a fellow worker. A corner's jury is investigating.

200-Lb. Church Safe Stolen at Richmond

Richmond, Va., Oct. 20 (AP).—Police said today a 200-pound safe at the Grace and Holy Trinity Church, host church to some 300 delegates here for the 15th annual synod of the province of Washington, was carted away by thieves who entered the building during the night.

The Rev. Beverley M. Boyd, rector, said the safe contained only a small amount of communion wine.

Washingtonians Elect Miss Taggart Is Chief More Police Urged

Miss Etta Taggart was re-elected president of the Washingtonians meeting last night at the Highland Apartments, Connecticut avenue and California street northwest. Other officers elected were Miss Amelia Macfadyen, first vice president; J. B. Dickman, second vice president; Mrs. Olive Madden, third vice president; Mrs. J. Edwin Reid, recording secretary; Mrs. William Hessick, corresponding secretary; Miss Margaret Staley, treasurer; Mrs. Elizabeth Sullivan, parliamentarian, and Mrs. Joseph Staley, historian.

The association adopted a resolution urging national representation for the District and agreeing to appeal to individuals and organizations to work to that end. Another resolution urged appointment of a District resident of ten years standing to the post vacated by District Commissioner George B. Allen and a third favored an annual award to the District resident who "voluntarily and without compensation" performs the most valuable civic service.

An amendment to the traffic regulations under which streets adjacent to playgrounds would be blocked off was favored and the proposed safety council was opposed in two resolutions. Employment of additional policemen asked by Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, was indorsed.

Jobs Riot Protested

An echo of the recent riot of 10,000 applicants for jobs as charwomen before Fourth Precinct police station was heard last night when the Southwest Citizens Association, meeting at Jefferson Junior High School, protested against the present method of giving out these applications. The police department was commended for the manner in which it handled the crowd and the Civil Service Commission was urged to adopt another method of distributing applications.

Man Who Sat on Numbers Slips Convicted Without Informer

A policeman who sees a man sitting on a pad of numbers slips is justified in arresting the sitter for possession of lottery tickets, Justice Adkins ruled in District Court yesterday.

The ruling enabled Assistant District Attorney Tarver to convict Griffen S. Smith, colored, 22, of violating the lottery laws without the testimony of William Browning, a police informer. Tarver said he wanted to keep Browning off the stand because of the current investigation of the use of informers by the Police Department, which has caused juries to distrust their testimony.

Patrolman Ted Howell, colored, of the Vice Squad, and Officers William McEwan, D. T. Kaufman and Samuel R. Kaufman went to a barber shop in the 100 block of G street northwest with a search warrant obtained on Browning's testimony. Howell testified that Smith was sitting in a barber chair when they entered, with a numbers pad in one hand and a pencil in the other. Smith tucked away the pad and sat on it when he saw the officers. Howell promptly arrested him without invoking the search warrant.

Also arrested were Tommie L. Watson, Paul Scott and Cleveland Howard, all colored. The four were indicted on five counts of selling lottery tickets and one of possession. The other three pleaded guilty and are awaiting sentence.

Nice Assails O'Conor as Inconsistent

Tax Stand 'Changed' 'Little General' Hit Humor Marks Talk Sales Levy Is Cited

By the Associated Press.

Towson, Md., Oct. 20.—Gov. Nice compared tonight the tax policies of his Democratic rival for governorship to "a dog's fleas—when you attempt to put your finger on him, why he just isn't there. Oh! consistency, what a jewel art thou!"

In a speech prepared for delivery at a Republican rally at the armory here, the Republican candidate for re-election said:

"My good friend and Democratic opponent, the Little General, Mr. Herbert Romulus O'Conor, has discontinued the discussion of the question of taxation, and has wandered off to the skyline of Garrett County, communing with nature and her beauties. However, he cannot be permitted, like the ostrich, to bury his eloquence in the fragrance of the rhododendrons."

Taking "as the text for my sermon, a beautiful dissertation entitled 'Mr. O'Conor on Taxation,'" Gov. Nice said the views on taxation by gubernatorial candidates is highly important to voters.

"Conspicuously on the back page of the Sun of October 17, 1938, appears a three-column article headed 'O'Conor Financial Program Based on Graded Income Tax,'" he said. "I don't know which ghost writer may have written this, but at any rate it is under the name of Herbert Romulus O'Conor.

"I quote from this article . . .

"'I have on numerous occasions stated my opposition to an increase in real estate taxes . . .

"'Next, I do not think the money should be raised through a general sales tax.'"

"Again . . . ." said Gov. Nice, "does my distinguished opponent do me the honor of imitating me in my previous public utterances, although as usual he fails . . . to give credit where credit is due.

"But regardless of the politics of his statement, his tax proposals are interesting in themselves. He (Mr. O'Conor) favors first a general sales tax.

"There is not much political sustenance in that for a Maryland politician, for practically all the small merchants of the State fear a sales tax above any other impost. Hence Mr. O'Conor does not insist upon that levy. He makes alternate proposals. One of these is that the State property tax be raised from the present 22 cents to 26 cents.

A Youthful Screen Star Enjoys a Fast Drive

Freddie Bartholomew Takes Press for Ride
British-Born, Now Wholly American
News Notes of the Theater

What with the District and Maryland State police escorts waving away the red traffic lights and speed laws, that was a quick trip to Baltimore yesterday afternoon. But it was long enough for some of us to substantiate long-standing suspicions with regard to the extraordinary acumen of one Master Freddie Bartholomew and the affectionate direction of his affairs by Miss Millicent Bartholomew, his "Aunt Cissie."

BELL.

Already I am apologetic for having referred to this talented young man as "Master" Freddie Bartholomew. There is nothing in his demeanor or conversation to suggest the juvenility that might be expected of his 14 years. He gives the immediate impression of a youth with a keen mentality and lively interest in the world about him that have far outpaced the number of his years. And in everything he says and does is reflected that impeccable good breeding and careful rearing that are so vividly reflected on the screen.

But it should not be gathered from this that Freddie is a "little old man" before his time, indifferent to those interests that normally absorb the attention of lads of his age. He is an ardent football fan and is hugely disappointed in this year's showing of Ohio State, the team he mentally ushered into the current playing season as the class of its conference—or whatever it is they call it. He plays football himself—end or quarterback—and also enjoys boxing. Baseball he has never played, and is not so keen about, and tennis leaves him cold—which carries the rather definite implication that, contrary to every imputation of the Bartholomew personality as it reveals itself upon the screen, he likes the physical contact sports best.

It is one of the major anxieties of "Aunt Cissie" that Freddie, at the age of 14, owns his own Buick sedan and has his own driver's license—and drives. Like his fellow-countryman of the Empire, Sabu, the higher the speed at which he travels behind a wheel the better he likes it. "Our new car," he confided yesterday when our driver seemed to be nudging 60 m. p. h., and Freddie peeked over at the speedometer to make sure, "is thoroughly broken in now and when I get home I think I shall see just how fast it will go." Perhaps "Aunt Cissie's" fears are not wholly unfounded.

"But," she said, "he managed the matter of his driver's permit himself and passed the California tests with a rating of 95 per cent. There didn't seem to be much we could do about it without breaking the boy's heart."

As I have said, however, it will not be the average intelligence of 14 years that will be driving when Freddie is at the controls. According to his tutor, his mental attainments are those of a third-year high school student and he is capable now of passing college scholarship tests. He enjoys Latin and romps through Cicero's orations as if he were reading the latest Ohio State scores!

His sense of motion picture values is mature and his choice of favorite actors and actresses definite and based on sound judgment. His favorite actress is Myrna Loy and his favorite actor, Spencer Tracy. Among his own pictures, he likes the role of Harvey in "Captains Courageous" best and "David Copperfield" second, although he will admit under pressure, too, that it was a lot of fun making "Lord Jeff." Mickey Rooney he thinks is a swell fellow, a fine little actor and extremely easy to work with.

Quite emphatically he would like to appear in a stage play, for the experience and "audience contact," but not at the sacrifice of his career in the cinema. He has discovered in his present brief tour of personal appearances, during which he has served also as master of ceremonies of the bills on which he has appeared, that he finds himself speaking his lines by rote and shudders to think what might happen if he had to play the same role in a play day in and day out for a season. The Bartholomew mind is too alert to stay static or submit gracefully to the stagnation of monotony.

After having spent two swift hours with him and Miss Bartholomew, the conviction is redoubled that there will never be any such thing as a "transitional period" in Freddie Bartholomew's professional career. He has every equipment to progress to any heights he may wish to attain.

And Freddie Bartholomew no longer may be looked upon as a "British importation." He has become completely Americanized in outlook and tastes and as soon as it can be brought about will become an American citizen—a matter which, owing to his own minority, first concerns his elders. The legal machinery already has been put in motion and Freddie's immediate concern seems to be to make a judicious selection of the American university he wishes to attend. He will be a feather in that university's cap—and in Uncle Sam's.

Upon his arrival in Washington yesterday at 11:25 a. m., he was whisked through the White House, visited the Department of Justice and then departed at once from Loew's Capitol Theater for Baltimore, under the guidance of Carter Barron, Eastern division manager of Loew's, Inc., and the local drama desks. We left him clear up to here in Baltimore drama editors and interviewers, with the Lord Baltimore Hotel's tasty luncheon patiently awaiting a chance to learn what a Bartholomew appetite may be like. Ravenous would be my guess.

It seems worth reiteration that this is proving a season of exceptional worth in the field of the so-called "legitimate" drama. So far, the lights at the National Theater have not been flashed on in celebration of any mediocre entertainment. Next week, of course, is dark, but beyond that the promise is bright.

When touring attractions resume on the E street stage on Monday, October 31, the attraction will be Ina Claire in "Yankee Fable," a pungent comedy of Revolutionary days that is said to embody much that will engage Washington's interest and titillate its risibilities. Then will come Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne in Chekov's "Sea Gull" and hot on the heels of that, Katharine Cornell. The American theater can boast no more infallible stars than these.

It would be pleasant—I hope—to be able to take a gander at the booking sheets the other side of Thanksgiving.

And the screen is not lagging so far behind, either. In reasonably immediate prospect are Twentieth Century-Fox' production of "Suez," with Tyrone Power and Loretta Young, opening with a special premiere in Loew's Palace Theater next Thursday night; Wallace Beery and Mickey Rooney in "Stablemates," next at Loew's Capitol—after "Sing, You Sinners," that is—and following Deanna Durbin, at RKO-Keith's, will be Barbara Stanwyck and Henry Fonda in "The Mad Miss Manton." The Earle, of course, will be keeping pace with these, so what do you mean, you're all dressed up and nowhere to go?

And that reminds me. For the kiddies, the Children's Theater of New York will open its season in the National Theater Saturday morning with a sterling production of "The Five Little Peppers," and Saturday night, Cornelia Otis Skinner will present a program of her character sketches and una-dramas at the Armstrong High School Auditorium, under the auspices of the College Alumnae Club.

I see by the papers that Heywood Broun thinks "Abe Lincoln in Illinois" a fine play and shudders slightly at the blushing consequences that may overtake John D. M. Hamilton, chairman of the Republican National Committee, if he ever gets around to seeing it.

Mr. Hamilton happens to have seen it on the Thursday night of the Washington premiere engagement, prior to New York, and declared it the greatest American drama he had ever witnessed. He and Mr. Broun have that much in common, at least.

So Jack Powell, the blackface syncopationist, recently seen at Loew's Capitol, is playing in Zurich, Switzerland, up there in those Swiss Alps. Another one of his diagrammatic postcards, just to hand, says so. Jack is one traveling salesman—"drummer" to you—who really gets around. And no man living can say that his act isn't worth "two sticks."

Drowning-Men-Grab-at-Razors Note

Boy, go yank that deadline back about 50 minutes—I never should have gone to Baltimore of a Thursday!

Historic Gift

Because of Maureen O'Sullivan's long friendship with John McCormack, the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer star is the possessor of one of the most valuable china sets in Hollywood. When McCormack disposed of his personal belongings prior to departure for Ireland, he retained a set of rare china plates once belonging to Marie Antoinette, which he presented to Miss O'Sullivan. The dainty gold-edged dishes bear the monogram "M. A."

Anonymous Debut

Barton MacLane was merely a number in his first picture. He portrayed an unsung football player in "Quarterback."

Boys Will Be Boys Between Scenes

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Calif., Oct. 20.—Jimmy Cagney presented director Llody Bacon with a silver plaque, commemorating his thirteen years' service at Warner Brothers. On the plaque were inscribed the words Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt wrote of Bacon's father, the original "Lightnin'" after seeing Fred Stone's revival of that role. Son Lloyd never saw "Lightnin'" until after his father had played it three years. He didn't have carfare East.

HEDDA HOPPER

After Fred Stone's grand performance in "Alice Adams," Hollywood let him sit. They're now trying to get him back, but "Lightnin'" struck him.

Seventeen-year-old Nancy Kelly, here only six months, has achieved a unique fame. She's played the lead in five million dollars' worth of pictures: "Jesse James," "Submarine Patrol" and "Tail Spin," yet we haven't seen her on the screen, because none of them has been rlased.

Sinc Loretta Young dined in San Francisco with a priest, who is a great friend of her family's, and the next day found herself in headlines hinting at a new romance, she's refused to go out unless it's a threesome. Pretty smart—something new in beaugetting.

A talent scout discovered Jill Martin singing in a night club in Budapest, signed her up and brought her to Hollywood. Not until she returned here did she tell anybody this was her home. And her first picture is a Western at Republic.

Leo Carrillo hasn't had a day off since his friends announced he'd run for Governor. Nor has Melvyn Douglas, since heading picture's Democratic committee. Hitch your wagon to a campaign, boys, and you won't even have time to catch your breath, let alone votes.

Adolphe Menjou has started a new fad. He's wearing a boutonniere matching each shirt. If it's purple, he'll wear a pansy; blue, bachelor button; yellow, sunflower . . . . . You can go up and down with this idea and have fun.

I don't think Miriam Hopkins and Anton Litvak will have an open break, but it's well known their temperaments are as far apart as the poles—and I don't mean totem poles.

When Myron Brinig sold his brain child, 'May Flavin," to Metro, he asked that Joan Blondell play the part. And with her contract nearing its end at Warners who knows? Maybe it will be arranged.

Austin Strong, author of "Seventh Heaven," took his mother, Isobel Field, and her friend, Mrs. Frank Morris, back East with him. Isobel says, "It's lovely to travel with old friends who like the same things. We eat the same food—love garlic, tripe and onions, pig's feet; the song, 'I Want to Marry the Butcher boy,; the picture, 'Mayerling'; window shopping, God is love, Mary Pickford's soap." Well, I'm complaining about the latter. Mary's face washed off during the first bath.

Ladybugs are in the big business class. Garden expert, Jean Marie Consigny, says they're the best pest exterminators. One of our lady stars turns 500 loose on her Bel Air estate, then gives a party. Ladybugs settle, and guests exclaim: "Oooh! this is going to be my luck year."

Ila Rhodes is on the the few blonde Indians in America. And the only one in pictures. Born in Oklahoma. An expert stayer on the bucking bronchos. She is now playing the lead in "Secret Service Of The Air" at Warners. When filling out a questionnaire, she added, "Not athletic, cannot ride a horse." She was afraid they'd put her in a Western.

Wouldn't we howl if the British removed our best picture to preview one of their! Well, we took off "Drums" to preview "Suez." I wouldn't call that hands across the sea, would you?

Sam Jaffe is the happiest man here now that "Gunga Din" is finished. The climate did him in. He went from Dante's Inferno to Pike's Peak on location at Lone Pine. The elephant boy complained, too. Spring water was so cold he had to heat it for the beasts. But the ladies of Lone Pine were in heaven. They got jobs making banners for "Gunga."

The New Yorker

By Leonard Lyons

New York, Oct. 20.

ROYALTY: The Grand Duchess Marie broadcast on the "For Men Only" program . . . She asked to meet Ken Murray, who was wearing his brim-up-in-front hat, with the usual cigar-in-mouth. Mr. Murray made obeisance to royalty by removing—the cigar . . . At the rehearsals the grand duchess listened to her introductory music, the anthem of Imperial Russia, and ordered it changed. "But that," the program director pleaded, "is a college song—'Hail Pennsylvania'" . . . Marie, however, had her way. The compromise was Romberg's "Song of the Flame."

ENTERPRISE: Vincent Astor's famed yacht, the Nourmahal, was damaged in the recent hurricane . . . Jim Ingham, who built the boat, was called in to repair it . . . "That reminds me," Mr. Astor directed, "I've got another job for you to do, so drop this a while" . . . And that's why Jim Ingham, yacht builder and improver of Gracie Square, went to Mr. Astor's St. Regis Hotel last week-end and changed the color of the ice from white to blue.

FINANCE: A citizen of Germany who was anxious to leave that country was prevented by the Nazi officials from taking with him the British bonds in which his money had been invested . . . He finally left the country and still has his bonds. He did it in this way: He sent to London for two distinguished solicitors. They came to his Berlin apartment, and he showed them the British bonds. "Yes," they agreed after examination, "these bonds are genuine." . . . "Copy the numbers on the bonds," he directed. They did . . . He then threw the bonds into a fire, went to London—and, upon this proof, new bonds were reissued to him.

Celebration: Ethel Merman celebrated her birthday last night . . . She is a talented and personable lady, whose possessions are enviable—youth, looks, wealth and fame . . . Last night, as a birthday present to herself, Miss Merman presented to Miss Merman the one thing Miss Merman never has owned—a wedding ring.

LOCAL NEWS: The job of special prosecutor for Brooklyn—which was given to Assistant U. S. Attorney Amen—first was offered to Dave Schenker, the brilliant New Dealer now with the SEC. Schenker turned it down, to continue his Investment Trust report. He's a cousin of Bill Herlands, the man who asked Lehman to appoint a special prosecutor . . . Renita, of Ramon & Renita, collapsed on the floor of the Central Park Casino last night . . . George M. Cohan wants $400,000 for the movie rights to his autobiography and for his acting services. M.-G.-M. offers half that sum . . . Frank Erickson will be in charge of Havana's gambling next season . . . Walt Disney has purchased the screen rights of "Peter Pan" from Paramount.

ROMANCE: Helen Thompson, niece of Charles Norris, has been reported engaged to Bennet Cerf, the publisher . . . They met under unusual circumstances. Last year the Book and Magazine Guild negotiated with Mr. Cerf's firm for a union contract, and sent its best organizer to present its case . . . The Guild won its contract. The organizer was Helen Thompson.

PEACE: Argentina is resentful of the common representation of a South American country as a place ridden with armies and revolutionists . . . It therefore has selected a new theme for its exhibit at the Frisco Fair. Over the entrance to the exhibit will be Argentina's slogan: "Argentina Has Two School Teachers to Every Soldier."

TRIUMPH: Harry Greenberg is the Republican candidate for Senate in the Fourteenth Senatorial District. His Democratic opponent is Bud Murray . . . Recently the billboards in the district have been plastered with new posters, proclaiming Greenberg as the ideal candidate. His opponent views these posters with mixed feelings. For while they may help defeat Bud Murray, the printing job—representing a sizable sum—was done by the printing firm Murray controls.

Champ Fan Letter

Eleanor Powell has just received what is believed to be the longest fan letter on record. It is from Ethel Hill Curtis, in Panama City, and runs 7,000 words. The letter reviews and comments upon all of Miss Powell's activities during her brief stop in Panama on her last trip to New York.

Binnie Barnes In New Comedy

Opportunities are coming Binnie Barnes' way with the latest announcement that she will appear in Twentieth Century-Fox comedy musical, "Thanks for Everything."

Credence to the report that Darryl F. Zanuck has slated the British comedienne for a stardom build-up lies in the fact that less than two weeks ago, shortly after she annexed her signature to a contract, Miss Barnes was cast as Milady de Winter in "The Three Musketeers," the Ritz brothers' starrer.

Since both films go into production at the same time, schedules have been arranged at the Westwood plant to permit the actress to split her working calls between the two stages.

Doughnut and Apple Dunking Lead Suggestions For Unsophisticated Halloween Parties

Cider Drink Described
Special Menus Offered
Bouillon Erases Chill

By Alice Clayton,
The Post Food Editor.

WITH HOBGOBLINS and cackling witches preparing broomsticks for a whirl around Washington housetops, local hostesses are already looking for party-giving inspiration. In seeking some bewitching ways of entertaining a holiday crowd of Halloween revelers, these gleanings have been picked up by the food editor.

Although the vigil of All Saints' Day is not to be kept yet for a week, there are a host of busy hostesses who lay their party plans well in advance. Their voices already take on that mysterious tone of secrecy as they call in to ask what menues are especially tempting during this most hypnotic of all holidays. Here are inexpensive celebration suggestions whispered to us by pumpkin heads and owls.

If it's an All Halloween Eve party you're giving, remember that the ancient apple dunking trick is just as popular as ever. A doughnut dunking performance is fun, also economical. Here's how it goes:

Place a heaping plate of doughnuts and a cup of coffee before each guest. The winner, who may be given a comic prize, is the one who can dunk the most doughnuts in the shortest length of time.

No Sophistication

An unpardonable sin against witches' magic is for either guest or host to decide to go sophisticated on Halloween. Even blase Park Avenue takes down its back hair—if there is anything other than top hair any more—pulls up its rugs and throws simple child-parties to the unprecedented enjoyment of the 400. Several of Washington's most aristocratic families are already scheduling parties based around blind man's bluff, tail on the donkey games and ducking apples.

Here are doughnut and apple novelties just as appetizing when served behind a silver-laden buffet as when eaten down in the cellar, attic or back yard. Incidentially, all three of these little-used places can be dressed in black and orange paper, bunting, corn stalks, pumpkin lanterns and harvest leaves.

HARVEST MOON DOUGHNUTS

Make some of your Sunday-best doughnuts and, before serving, "poke" a marshmallow in the center of each. Then put doughnuts in a hot oven or under the broiler and heat until the marshmallows are a golden brown.

CIDER MARFLIP

Combine ¼ pound marshmallows and 1½ cups boiling water and heat until marshmallows are completely melted. Add a few grains of salt and let cool. Then add 1 cup orange juice, ½ cup lemon juice and 1 quart apple cider. Blend well and chill. Serves 6-8.

An unusual way to serve this cider marflip is in hollowed-out orange shells. Make these by cutting off the top of navel oranges, about ⅓ of the way from the top. Then carefully squeeze out the juice with an orange squeezer.

Halloween buffet parties should try to rid themselves of all stuffiness and posing. If a hostess is fortunate enough to own or rent a barn, she can recruit musicians from the ranks of her acquaintances. At a rousing party of this rustic nature last year, one resourceful party giver obtained a half dozen small boys to play comic music with their favorite instruments which consisted of washboards, kazoos and harmonicas. They asked payment only in the form of big steins of country cider passed around.

Here is an invitation to an all saints' party which was sent us by an unknown source, signing itself "Hoot Owl." This bit of whimsy came along with a request that guests feel no class distinction because only overalls and gingham frocks would be worn.

"Your ticket of admission consists of a brown card, cut in the form of a doughnut, announcing the party. The cover reads: How many doughnuts can you dunk? Inside the invitation continues: You are hereby summoned to appear for a Dunking Party on Halloween Eve to determine the best dunker. Biggest prizes you've ever seen. Doughnut fail to attend!"

Hot bouillon will scare all bad omens away and make the rest of the food taste better. It does this by taking away the shivery feeling one gets around October 31. The puffy popcorn for the soup gives a light touch to the dish.

The spaghetti will please the ghosts and witches. Make it by combining canned spaghetti with canned whole kernel corn, ripe olives, grated cheese and tomato sauce. Grilled sausages are quick and simple to cook.

Extra flashes of wit may make your forthcoming All Saints party an unforgettable triumph. You might play black magic on your guests by serving tiny tarts filled with a custard made of strong black coffee, chocolate nuts and topped with pastry cats' faces

Plates Invented To Keep Bread Hot At Dinner Table

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin.

IF THERE'S one thing that I enjoy, it's piping-hot bread. Oh, I know all about the dire things it's supposed to do to the insides, not to mention the figger. That's why I have it only for company best; but even for such special intervals I'm always interested in ways of serving rolls and fine little biscuits as hot as hot. But there's always the problem of keeping them that way without drying them out.

Recently, though, several solutions for all these perplexing problems have been discovered. There are now various warming ovens on the market that heat up bread and keep it hot without drying and they're very presentable to put on the table. Usually they're of spun aluminum and quite slick looking with wooden knobs and fine shapes. There will generally be an affair to adjust so as to make it air tight or not. And inside there's almost always a wire shelf where you keep your bread—that way it won't scorch even if you put it directly on the top of the stove over a low flame.

For just plain, every-day bread at ths table I'm partial to a reed basket with a fresh fringed napkin in it. Maybe because it reminds me of cheap, gay little restaurants in Europe. Maybe because it breaks the expanse of so many dishes at the table. A low basket without a handle is the nicest—and none of the pink or green stripes if you dont' want it to look like Easter.

Spiced peaches or apricots that come in cans would add the orange color to the foods. Choose your favorite mixed fresh or canned vegetales for salad and mix with chopped lettuce and French dressing.

The party would not be complete without pumpkin of some sort, as it is the symbol of the harvest festival. Make your very best pumpkin pie and serve it with hot coffee, hot cider, or hot spiced fruit juice.

Cream Soup Picked As This Week's Contest Theme

So many requests for appetizing new ways of preparing soups have come to the Food Page editor that a competition will be conducted to determine the progress soup-making has made in recent years. An excerpt from a letter written by Mrs. Ernest L. Andes, 1412 Chapin street northwest, is typical of the enthusiasm over soup being shown by Food Page readers.

Mrs. Andes writes, "May I suggest that nutritious and unusual soup recipes would make an interesting contest? Canned soups are good, but so many people I know like soups with really unique, delicious flavors

Any recipe for cream soup is eligible for one of five cash awards. First prize is $3 second is $2 and there are three prizes of $1 each. Since entire books have been compiled on soups alone, this soup contest is narrowed down to cream soups, which might include cream of chicken, cream of corn or tomato, potato, asparagus, mushroom, celery or a sweet cream of carrot soup. All entries must of received not later than October 29 by Alice Clayton, The Post Food Editor.

Consumers Counsel

Walnuts Pickled
Chickens Floured
Consumers Advised

THE CONSUMERS' COUNSEL is two months' old, and since its inception has attracted the attention of homemakers desiring cooking tips and menu suggestions. It has also enjoyed the support of Washington hostesses who consistently volunteer information on all household problems. Today's counsel contains suggestions for pickling and for flouring chicken, also requests for fall dessert recipes. Every Food Page follower is invited to participate in this forum. Address correspondence to Alice Clayton, The Post Food Editor.

The following letter and recipe are typical of the growing interest in Consumers' Counsel. It was contributed by Mary Darby Fitzhugh, 1867 Kalorama road northwest. She writes:

"While doing research work recently for a Governmental publication, I came across this walnut pickle recipe. It made me recall my trips to fetch the walnuts for mother, who was very fond of making this delectable nut pickle. If it is too late to put up walnuts now, this recipe might be put on file. You will find similar formulas in early copies of Petersons, Godey's Ladies' Book and the old Family magazines. They are all rather queer as to direction, but amusing and unusual because of the manner in which the contributors expected you to take it for granted. This is from the Genesee Farmer of June 25, 1831."

Century Old Recipe

"HOW TO PICKLE WALNUTS: Scald slightly, and rub off the first skin of a hundred large walnuts, before they have a hard shell: this may be easily ascertained by trying them with a pin. Put them in a strong, cold brine, put in new brine the third and sixth days, and take them out and dry them on the ninth. Take an ounce each of long pepper, black pepper, ginger, and allspice; a quarter of an ounce of cloves, some blades of mace, and a tablespoonful of mustard seeds: bruise the whole together, put in a jar a layer of walnuts, strew them well over with the mixture, and proceed in the same manner 'till all are covered. Then boil 3 quarts of white wine vinegar, with sliced horseradish and ginger; pour it hot over the walnuts, and cover close. Repeat the boiling of the vinegar and pour it hot over, three or four days, always keeping the pickle closely covered; add at the last boiling a few cloves of garlic, or shallots. In five months it will be fit for use."

If a poll were taken to estimate the loyalty of food page followers, Mrs. Sara Lee Orange, 2025 Eye street northwest, would be near the head of the list. Few days go by without helpful culinary suggestions being offered by this attractive homemaker. Today she has contributed tips on flouring fowls easily and, as she terms it, on making dough behave.

Flouring Chickens

"When flouring chickens to fry, measure the necessary flour with salt and pepper into a rather large paper bag. Place pieces of chicken in the bag and shake well. Each piece will be floured perfectly in much less time than it would take to dip each separately in flour."

Making Dough Behave

"Who is the bad boy of the kitchen? Cookie dough! It sticks to the rolling pin and board which turns cookie-making from the lark it ought to be into a morning headache—at least, it always used to act that way. In some kitchens today it is being firmly put into its place. Housewives are learning how to manage it.

"When rolling for cookies, place dough between two sheets of heavy waxed paper. After rolling, remove top sheet, and cut dough into desired shapes. The cookies will not stick to rolling pin or paper and the same sheets can be used a number of times. This is also a good plan when making pie crust."

Recipe Queries

Following are two recipes for fall dessert delicacies in answer to requests. The first recipe is for Biscuit Tortoni. It has been applied for by Mrs. Thelma W. Andrews, 2203 Fifteenth street northwest, and in as much as the real Italian type of Tortoni was desired, an especially winey recipe is published both for Mrs. Andrews' enjoyment and for those who crave an ice cream with a difference. The recipe for a rich date and nut cake has been requested by Lizzie Emily Bourgeois, 1806 Kilbourne place northwest, as well as by several other hostesses who feel the baking urge as soon as the air turns sharp.

Dough Tamed at Last
Biscuit Tortoni
Quick Date Cake

Tortoni Biscuit

Soak 1 cup dried ground macaroons in 2 cups thin cream for 30 minutes. Add ⅔ cup sugar and ½ cup sherry, and freeze to a mush. In the oven, brown 1 cup blanched, minced almonds. Add 2 cups thick whipped cream to the frozen mixture, and pack in individual paper cases. Sprinkle with almonds. Pack as above. Total time 4 hours. Makes 18 servings.

Quick Nut Date Cake

(Makes 12 cup cakes; 1 sheet 8 or 9 inches square)

Place ½ cup butter or margarine in a a mixing bowl; set in a warm place to soften while preparing the pans, measure the following ingredients: 2 cups cake flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, ½ teaspoon nutmeg or mace, 1 cup (½ package) dates, sliced, ½ to ¾ cup chopped walnuts or pecans, 1 cup brown sugar, 2 eggs, and ½ cup milk. Sift the flour with the baking powder and spices into the bowl with the soft butter; add the remaining ingredients. Beat vigorously with a large spoon until smooth. Bake in 350 degree oven for 30 minutes.

Fish Appetizers Now in Season

Fish for the dinner's first course—there is no better way to begin a formal meal! Serve an appetizer of stuffed olive and flaked tuna fish well seasoned; then pile into little green pepper cases. Hot crab canapes are a savory mixture of sauteed onions and crab flakes slightly thickened, spread on a canape base, then covered with cheese and baked. Oysters set in a jellied consomme, seasoned with minced olives, onion and green pepper, dashed with chili sauce and tabasco, is easy to do and satisfying.

For a Handy Son

If your son needs a project for manual training let him make you something handy for the kitchen. Here's the idea: A shelf about 3 feet long and 1 foot wide, with slits in it to hold knives, large spoons and forks, and plenty of good-sized hooks underneath and around the rim to hold measuring cups, sifters, pot holders, strainers, beater, potato masher and other hang-up articles.

Spinach Fans Win Prizes

Pepper Dish First
Salad Is Second
Pancakes Offered
Soup Is Colorful

THERE may be dissenting voices as to whether or not "fashion is spinach." There is however, no room for doubt that cooking is spinach. This week's recipe contest which featured new ideas on spinach cookery, proved the undying loyalty of spinach fans. One strapping man who eats his spinach daily and sings its praise at home and abroad, has now been dubbed Mike, because he has grown strong and hearty as a result of his spinach conquest.

The majority of local housewives have submitted spinach testimonials along with their recipes. Some relate that spinach, one the most despised of vitamin foods, has become a family favorite due to clever camouflage stunts. Some say that they now serve this high mineral and protein food thrice a week by popular request.

Spinach loaf, ring molds, casseroles filled with cheese, oysters and tomato sauce were so numerous that judgment of these duplicated dishes was impossible. Cheese and spinach dumplings, spinach horseradish sauce, and ham and spinach souffles were equally blessed with a variety of friends. The south of France produced an appetizing creamed cod fish and spinach dish, with olive oil and milk sauce for Lent dinners. Russia sent spinach borsch. Spinach Florian proved to be a Latin entree served with roast ham.

Onion Tang

First award of $3 has been won by Mrs. V. J. Charles, 2426 Fourteenth street, northwest. Few spinach dishes could embody such a rare and pungent combination of ingredients as Mrs. Charles has selected and tested. Imagine a dash of onion baked into green peppers plus the delicate fragrance of spinach, the whole dish topped off with a plump nut meat.

Mrs. Charles.

SPINACH PEPPERS

Take large green peppers, wash thoroughly, remove seeds, put butter inside and slice of raw onion in bottom. Stuff with raw spinach and put another thin slice of raw onion on top. Place in baking dish with one-half cup water in bottom, bake until pepper is soft. Remove from oven, place one-half of a hard-boiled egg on each pepper, topped with a half of an English walnut—salt and pepper all over and a slice of pickle with each pepper as served. Alternate use of green peppers with pimientos and small acorn squash.

De Luxe Molds

Second award of $2 has been won by Mrs. Eugene Smith, 2126 Maryland avenue, Baltimore. Spinach and eggsalad, which she submitted along with other unique spinach recipes, creates a dish so light and exquisite in texture and taste that it would make a pleasant buffet feature. This salad, although rather elaborate of treatment, is well worth the trouble, for it makes an unusual winter mousse.

Mrs. Smith.

SPINACH AND EGG SALAD

Scald 2-3 cup of milk and pour it over the 2 tablespoons cornstarch, 4 tablespoons sugar, 1 tablespoon dry mustard, 1 teaspoon salt and pinch of paprika. Cook until thick. Pour over 2 egg yolks, slightly beaten, then add tablespoon gelatine, which has been softened in 1 tablespoon of water, add 1-3 cup mild vinegar and cook thick again. Fold in the egg whites beaten stiff. Cool. Fold in 1 cup whipped cream. Divide this mixture. To ½ this mixture add 2 cups chopped cooked spinach and place in the bottom of the mold or individual molds. To the rest of the mixture add the mashed yolks of 4 hard-cooked eggs. Freeze for 45 minutes. Unmold and garnish with egg whites cut into the shapes of petals. Serve with whipped cream, to each cup of which has been added 1 tablespoon horseradish and ½ teaspoon salt. A bit of the cream may be put in the center of the mold and this sprinkled with grated American cheese. This is most attractive when made in individual molds and each serving garnished to resemble a flower, surrounded by radish and turnip roses and stuffed olives.

Touch of Green

Mrs. R. H. Hicks, 4304 Tenth street northeast, has been awarder $1 for cream of spinach soup. Although several unquestionably excellent spinach soups were entered in this contest, Mrs. little flavor suggestions here and there which made her entry memorable. For color conscious hostesses, nothing could be more delicate in tint than this pale green soup.

Solving the Cooking-for-One Problem

The girl smiling above her salad bowl of mixed vegetables is typical of many local business girls whom circumstances or choice force into a live-alone-and-like-it attitude. The more dexterous ones are creating tiny but pleasant kitchenettes in which to concoct all the delicacies that only home cooking and personal planning can create color conscious hostesses, nothing could be more delicate in tint than this pale green soup.

Cream of Spinach Soup

Combine 1 pint cooked, finely chopped spinach, 1 pint ham stock, and the following seasonings: salt and pepper, and a few grains sugar and nutmeg, and lemon and onion juice. Sieve. Add 1½ pints of milk, scalded. Bring to a boil and thicken with 1 tablespoon of butter and 2 tablespoons of flour blended. Sprinkle on each serving a little of 4 slicks of crisp bacon and ½ cup of grated cheese and minced parsley with thinly sliced cucumbers. Top with a ball of whipped cream, if desired.

Russian Pancakes

Mrs. S. Mates, 5026 Seventh street northwest, has been given a $1 award for spinach russe. This is another way of describing equal pancakes—with a difference. These light-as-air batter cakes would make delicate tidbits in themselves. When stuffed with a mixture of minced spinnach, carrots and a dash of nutmeg a light supper entree of distinction is achieved.

Mrs. Mates.

SPINACH RUSSE

Wash and clean spinach thoroughly (about 1 pound) steam it slowly for 20 to 30 minutes. Drain off all liquid and chop fine, adding 1 egg, 1 small grated carrot (if desired), a little nutmeg, and season with salt and pepper. Add ½ cup bread crumbs or 2 slices of diced toast. Mix well. Beat 3 eggs until light, season with salt and pepper and mix with 1 cup of milk. Stir in enough flour to make a thin batter and beat until smooth. Put ¼ teaspoon butter inta a small skillet and heat until sputtery. Pour about 1 tablespoon of batter in the skillet, lifting it off the heat and turning the pan so that the batter will quickly spread to the edge of the base of the pan in a very thin layer. When lightly browned on one side, remove the pancake with a spatula and place it on a sheet of brown paper. When all the pancakes have been made, put a small portion of spinach filling in the center of the pancake on the lightly browned side and fold the sides of the pancake over with the filling. Fry in melted hot butter. Serve warm with sour cream. Garnish with Grilled ham slices.

Hands Across the Table

Miss Nellie MacFarlane, 216 Spruce avenue, Takoma Park, Md., has won a $1 prize for her spinach fingers. These crisp fried fingers are so tantalizing that, once eaten, they are always remembered. Their crunchiness is shown to even greater advantage when tinged with Parmesan cheese and lemon.

Miss MacFarlane.

Spinach Fingers

Mix 1 cup finely chopped spinach, cooked and drained well, 2 beaten eggs, pepper and salt and cook on a hot greased griddle in little pancakes as flat and as thin as possible. When well set, remove to a hot plate and continue until all is used. There will be a pile of little green pancakes. With a sharp knife, cut down in strips ½ inch wide and about 3 inches long. Fry them in boiling fat, drain, pile neatly in log cabin style on hot plates, and sprinkle with a little Parmesan cheese. Place a wedge of lemon on each plate or serve a favorite onion sauce. Surround with baby sausages and grilled tomatoes.

Business Girl's Home Cooking Largely Matter of Planning

By Alice Clayton,
The Post Food Editor.

NO GIRL on earth is haunted more by culinary problems than the Washington businessgirl. With scarcity of adequate housing condition, she is forced to become just another member of the chain gang of eat-outers, constantly wondering, "Where shall I go for dinner?"

A growing number of resourceful women around town are either taking apartments with fellow sufferers and acquiring their own kitchen, or creating minute kitchenettes hidden in the backs of rooms or closets. Recent requests asking for information and menus specifically for the businessgirl are becoming more frequent in the food department. Many of these live-alones are learning really to like it. With ingenuity and brushing up on cookbooks, these out-of-town girls are learning to carve an enviable name for themselves as clever hostesses, due to their careful menu planning despite their financial and space limitations.

Regardless of the most pint-sized apartments, clever dinners are being served as if by unseen servants, almost immediately after office hours. The secret of these speedy, humorous meals is advance preparation. For those office workers, who insist that dinner cooked by their own hands isn't possible after the 5 o'clock gong has struck, look closely at the simplicity of these menu and dinner planning suggestions.

Tips to Office Workers

Stick within your food buget in buying for your newly acquired baby ice chest or refrigerator. Plan all meals at least one day in advance. Buy all staples a week in advance. Order perishable foods by the day, early before work or by telephone. If ordering by phone, state price restrictions so that you won't be sent tenderloin chopped beef when all you can afford is cuttings for hamburger. At the end of the first month a noticeable decrease in food expenses will be observed as against former restaurant or boarding house bills.

Prepare as many dinner dishes the night before or morning before as time permits. Chilling of certain vegetables, fruits and croquette mixtures for seven or eight hours in advance will improve their flavor, and your disposition, work-a-day appetites.

If you're entertaining company for the first time, interest his or her appetite. Don't dazzle by producing over-expensive, over-rich palate teasers. Here is a different guest dinner you might experiment on the girl who has worked next to you for these last few weeks and who looks so boarding-house weary. The sherry almond cream is the high light of the dinner and can be prepared the day before and chilled or replaced by a purchased almond torte if desired.

Slimming Needed for New Frocks

Remove 3 Inches Epsom Bath Urged Movements Outlined

By Ida Jean Kain.

NOW THAT you have made up your mind to exercise like fury and trim down your waist for the new frocks, you run the risk of coming out second best in the bout with long unused muscles. The first day's workout may leave you stiff and sore for a week—unless you have come across the trick of putting epsom salts into a hot bath and soaking out the soreness.

The right proportion seems to be half a pound of the epsom salts to the bath, which should be comfortably hot. Stay in the tub about 15 minutes and you will feel better than new. The beauty of this bath is not that you can expect it to dissolve your excess fat, because it won't, but that it enables you to start right out with a rousing 15 to 20 minutes of exercise and never feel a twinge.

After the first week your muscles will be on friendlier terms with exercise and you can forego the bath if you like. Until that time, follow your workout immediately with the epsom salts tub.

If yours is the average figure, you will need to slim about 3 inches off the waistline. Paris decrees the tiny waist for you, and you should have an 8-inch difference between the bust and waist measurements to conform to this popular fashion. Don't despair of a waistline 3 or 4 inches too large. By going right into vigorous exercise you can shear off the waistline excess at the rate of an inch a fortnight.

Man Polls Public Opinion of 'Dutch Treat' System And Finds It Overwhelmingly Voted Down

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I have long been a constant reader and ardent admirer of your column . . . I have often wanted to write you a word of praise and commendation for your sympathetic understanding of the problems with which you are confronted, and for the sound and refreshingly frank and unbaised advice you always have to offer. But I have not done so because my opinion, after all, probably doesn't mean anything to you.

However, the introductory note to your column of October 14, coupled with the crude efforts of a few eccentrics to "run you to cover," as you say, impels me to write this note. I agree quite thoroughly with your ideas concerning "dutch treat." I am sure you have expressed the sentiments of an overwhelming majority of the sane, up-to-date populace of this community . . .

On my own initiative, I have conducted a small-scale yet thoroughly comprehensive poll of local opinion on the subject. While the numbers are small, still they request an average cross section of local opinion from people in practically every walk of life.

Briefly, the poll was as follows: A mixed group of 170 men and women between the ages of 18 and 45 were asked the following question: Are you in favor of general adoption of the "dutch treat" policy? Yes—7 per cent. No—91 per cent. Indifferent—2 per cent. Another group of 100 men were asked the same question. Yes—3. No—96. Indifferent—1. Similarly a group of 100 women were asked the same question. Yes—11. No—89. Of the women who answered "yes," six admitted that otherwise they probably wouln't have any dates.

In addition, a group of 25 men were asked these question: One. Would you suggest to anyone you date going "dutch treat?" Yes—1. No—24. Two. Would you agree to go "dutch treat" if the girl suggested it? Yes—3. No—22. Another group of 25 women were were asked similar questions, viz: One. Would you suggest to a man who dates you, going "dutch treat?" Yes—3. No. 19. Perhaps—3. Two. Would you agree to go "dutch treat" if the man suggested it? Yes—4. No—19. Perhaps—2.

I trust that some of your readers, namely, "Pro Femina," "L. T." and "White Collar Girl" will take heed of these figures and if they are skeptical, let them undertake a similar survey for their own edification.

P. S.: I have just read your column of October 17, in which you say it is your "intention to bring the discussion to a close," and consequently don't expect to see this printed. However, I am sending it on with the hope that you may derive some pleasure from the fact that the consensus of opinion substantiates your own stand on the subject . . . I am completely in sympathy with you and your column . . . Again thanking you for all the pleasure and benefit I derive from your writings, I am, respectfully,

J. P. H., Jr.

Thank You, Sir!

DEAR J. P. H.: Nothing could be further from the truth than your excessively modest assumption that your good opinion of my efforts wouldn't mean anything to me. As a matter of fact, I probably would have been tempted to try to duck out from under the heavy responsibility of public problem-solving long ago, out of a sense of sheer inadequacy to so challenging a task, were it not for the encouragement and moral support of just such friendly and generous persons as yourself.

I am deeply grateful for your efforts expended in making a survey of public opinion on the subject of "dutch treat." Certainly it constitutes the sincerest possible testimonial of your avowed interest in the column. The findings are so interesting that I feel justified in employing the feminine prerogative of changing my mind about closing the discussion, and publishing your letter herewith. (And in defense of inconsistency I submit Emerson's profundity, to wit:" . . . consistency is the hobgoblin of little minds . . .)". The courteous and sympathetic tone of your letter throughout gives me a great lift, for once again I am confronted with proof positive that (to fall back on a worn figure of speech) "the age of chivalry is not yet dead." Thank you again, and most sincerely.

M. H.

A Defender of Ideals

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Three big cheers for you and your undaunted stand against the "dutch treat" system of dating girls. I am glad there is somebody in this modern world who knows when and where to draw the line . . . When a man accepts a "dutch treat" bargain in a girl, it shows that he is soft-brained, willowy-minded and none too particular . . . If a man cannot afford to date a girl, let him stay home and do some thinking on the subject of how to properly make a man of himself.

I am the kind of man who admires the ideals you uphold, Miss Haworth. Keep up your commendable work. You are wise and broadminded and you scarcely ever miss the bull's eye. There is too much laxity of conduct these days. People do not know how to make the best use of their vaunted new freedom. Men are drifting too far away from ideals of strength, independence and reliability. It's time we took fresh stock of ourselves and began once more to stand on our own hind legs.

Sheriff's Widow Takes Job, Leaves Arrests to Men

Benton, Mo. (U.P.)—Mrs. Pauline Anderson, one of the few women sheriffs in the United States, likes her job, but prefers to let her deputies make all arrests.

Mrs. Anderson succeeded her husband as sheriff after his death last March. "I'd taken great interest in my husband's work," she explained. "But when they notified me I had been chosen to take his place I resolved to handle it according to plans outlined by him before he died."

Mrs. Anderson serves papers, opens and closes the Scott County Circuit Court, supervises the care and feeding of county prisoners and other numerous duties required of a sheriff.

"But I've never made an arrest," she said. "I leave that to Chief Deputy Gene Roberts or the other men on the force."

Mrs. Anderson said she is glad that the Missouri Legislature has ordered all executions be made in the lethal gas chamber at Jefferson City. "Otherwise, I would simply refuse to spring the trap of a scaffold if an execution were ordered in this county."

She declared that generous application of common sense to all problems is the chief requisite of a good sheriff.

Future Movement in Hairdress

The new trend in hairdress prophesied by Antoine, high priest of the haute-coiffure, is illustrated above. Within two to five years, says this stylist, women will all be pushing their hair upward and out over the forehead after the manner of the debutante hairdress here pictured

Coiffure Command Is 'Forward' Says Antoine, Hair Couturier

The Post Fashion Editor.

ANTOINE OF PARIS, celebrated as both seer and sculptor in the world of coiffures, peered into his crystal looking glass yesterday and made these predictions to a Washington audience.

The tendency in hairdress within the next five years will be toward hair that is both unswept and onswept, ending in soft curls or bangs on the forehead.

Both exaggerated Marie Antoinette high hair and the casual page boy bob are relegated to once-upon-a-time styles.

The knowing woman will adapt the high riding coiffure to her individual features, rather than to those of her secret ideal.

Top-heavy "rats" and Smith Brothers types of hair will be supplanted by lighter, thinned-out hair, so that daily arrangement will be more practical to the wearer.

Hair itself will become an ornament to the head, rather than being just something to comb quickly each morning in a hasty toilette. Business coiffures will follow no set rules of being neither half up nor half down, but will compromise with an all around and forward movement.

Curls Are Softened

Curls will remain in high favor, but will be soft, wavy ones, not the uncompromising sausages or pineapples of ten years ago. These curls will necessitate use of little side combs and berettes for daytime and for evening elaborate jewels, ornaments, feathers, fresh flowers and mantillas made from precious tortoise shell or, more significant, one's own hair.

Since his last visit to Washington almost two years ago, Antoine has observed a startling upheaval in international psychology which he feels has had a feminizing influence on women and their coiffures. For years the undisputed No. 1 man of the coiffure world, and more recently sponsor of the upswept movement, which he prophesied three years ago, Antoine believes that new-found optimism over economic conditions has created "more optimistic hair."

More "optimistic hair," what was that? Antoine fluently and ardently obliged. "Have you ever noticed the bland serenity of Oriental sculpture and art?" he asked. "The puffs and pompadours of the aristocratic Chinese are upflung. Their hair reaches high toward their celestial gods. Their coiffures consequently reach upward and forward, rather than drooping down. Their complexions are equally smooth and placid, no harsh mouth lines pulling their facial expressions down. Having recently become enamored of an ancient piece of Chinese art, which showed a woman falling from a horse, her black hair tumbling out in front of her, I was tempted to create my newest up and forward coiffures around the active freedom of that picture."

Advocates Elegance

Antoine, individualist in all things, even to his custom-tailored stitched wool shirt, platinum bracelet and his monogramed clip, settles the ever-growing high-hair dispute with this remark: "Let those who can and will wear their hair in graceful French court fashion, providing they exercise restraint and avoid the obvious styles of a few months ago. For those who doubt the rejuvenating values of hair off their necks, just let them try it—with malice toward none. One husband of my acquaintance exclaimed that he had been waiting 20 years to see his wife look the way she did after returning from her first high-hair coiffure."

Antoine, who is holding court at a local store advising the Capital's beauties on hair styling, intimated that local women would be wise to adopt elegant, feminine coiffures rather than some of the more fantastic modes originated in Paris. Soignee and elegant with his own sleek graying coiffure and manner, Antoine stressed elegance for American women as opposed to their inherent love of the hoydenish. He cited Mrs. Reginald Fellowes, the striking English wit, and Madam Sacha Guitry, the petite French actress, as examples of chic and imagination in both their coiffures and dress.

A Woman's New York

By Alice Hughes

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—The New York lady escapists who have fled to nearby farms in the past few years now have a new amusement—joining their local grange. Over in Hunterdon County, New Jersey, June Rhodes, the velvet publicist; Carmen Barnes, the novelist, and Peggy LeBoutillier Williams, wife and mother, have just been initiated into the Grange at the town of Ringoes, near their summer homes. They got a kick out of taking the oath of allegiance to Ceres, goddess of grain. I'm an old Granger myself, having joined the old Pomona Grange in Manchester, N. H., in my nonage. After that my sister, brother and I toured all the Granges in the southern part of the State, doing family entertainment. I thumped the piano, the brother sawed the fiddle and the baby sister recited pieces. Her show-stopper was "I's losted—will oo find me, please?" Yes, we were the scourge of the New Hampshire Granges! . . .

Plaids are now on the fanciest dance-floors, at the supper-hour. I saw Mrs. Warren Pershing, the beauty, at El Morocco in a dance gown of pale blue and white plaid taffeta, with an accordion pleated skirt. And what a picture!

Washington Society Turns Out for Horse Show And Party Held Later by Chilean Ambassador

Some Come to Fete Gushing With Silver Fox Others Arrive in Tweeds Directly From Jumps Marta and Rebeca Trucco Meet Guests

By Elizabeth Ford.

Faithful William "on the door" had a busy time of it yesterday afternoon prying open limousines and taxis as guests poured into the Chilean Embassy, braving a cold October rain, to attend the party given by Ambassador Manuel Trucco.

The guests of honor were the officers of the Chilean army horse team who took the jumps earlier in the day at the Inter-American Show, and who have been feted so frequently since their arrival in Washington several weeks ago, they must think the Capital is made of cake and caviar.

Some came to the reception fairly gushing with silver fox, and most of those so attired confined their sporting activities to the indoor affair rather than to the Meadowbrook event. Others, in spectator tweeds, dashed directly downtown from the show to greet Ambassador Trucco and his two daughters, the Misses Marta and Rebeca Trucco.

The latter, in a pale blue frock, spent most of her time with her father, chatting with incoming guests. Miss Marta Trucco, in a darker blue dress, set off with a china red sash, saw that everyone had sandwiches, tea, coffee, and tall ones.

Younger Set Is Well Represented

Among the earlier arrivals was Miss Stellita Stapleton, in a dark frock accented with gold braid and one of the newer hats trimmed with a towering red feather. Debutantes and post debutantes, most of whom did not appear at the show, arrived en masse at the embassy. Included in this contingent were Miss Eleanor Meem, in gray; Miss Margaret Townsend, wearing blue; Miss Dolly Corbin, in dark red and royal blue; and Miss Eleanor Flood. Miss Margaret Cotter and Mrs. "Chip" Robert in afternoon attire confused a few of the guests who were more used to seeing them in riding clothes, but they were soon identified and welcomed into the bosom of the party.

Glimpsed here and there were Frau von Boetticher, wife of Lieut. Gen. Friedrich von Boetticher, Military Attache of the German Embassy; Mrs. Carlos del Mar, Mr. and Mrs. John Burke—she in black—Dr. and Mrs. William McClellan, Maj. and Mrs. Frank L. Whittaker, Col. and Mrs. Joseph Cecil, who were accompanied by their daughter, Miss Caroline Cecil and by Thomas Adams; the Mexican Ambassador, Dr. Francisco Castillo Najera; Mrs. Russell Snodgrass, and Miss Evelyn Walker.

Also Miss Nancy Brereton, who will leave for New Haven this wek-end, where she will attend a Yale Law School prom; the Counselor of the Chilean Embassy and Senora de Huneeus, who plan to attend the Madison Square Garden Horse Show; Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Morris, and the Misses Jane and Junia Culbertson.

Horse Show Is Colorful Event

The first day of the Inter-American Show which ended just as the rain sent boxholders and bleacherites scurrying to shelter was garnished with thrills, "color" and social notables.

Mary Pickford, who had been scheduled to sit right down in front where everybody could see her, was unexpectedly called back to New York, so spectators had to be satisfied with the Secretary of War and Mrs. Harry F. Woodring, she in a heather-colored wool frock; the Mexican Ambassador, the Chilean Ambassador and his daughters and the Cuban Ambassador, Dr. Pedro Martinez Fraga.

Official society, cliff dwellers and the Diplomatic Corps drank pop and munched hot dogs or took time out to promenade back and forth along the long wooden stands between events.

The high point of the program was the presentation of the colors. Flags of the United States, Chile and Mexico were "run up" on a community pole; troops from Fort Myer galloped briskly around the field; envoys of Chile and Mexico, with Gen. Dana T. Merrill and Thomas Morgan, secretary of the show, stood at salute; bugles blew, and small boys clung precariously to the fence.

Society Turns Out in Full Force

Among those on hand: Mrs. Hugh Auchincloss in a gray suit; Mrs. Emil Hurja, accompanied by Mrs. Fred Britten; Mrs. Harold Hinton, in a soft wine-colored wool dress and a red scarf at her throat; Gen. Leon Kromer and his daughter, Miss Jane Kromer, she in riding clothes; Mrs. Thad Brown in black, and Mrs. Louis Caldwell in blue; Mrs. Mondell Gregg, the Dominican Minister and Senora de Pastoriza, and the entire Chilean and Mexican embassy staffs shouting "Bravo!"

Also the Commercial Secretary of the Chilean Embassy and Senora de Campbell and their daughter, Senorita Eleanor Campbell; Mrs. John Herrick and Mrs. Warren Wheaton, of Philadelphia; Senora de Acosta, who was in the Mexican Ambassador's box; Admiral and Mrs. Mark Bristol, Maj. Felipe Munilla, Military Attache of the Cuban Embassy, and Senora de Munilla, and Dr. and Mrs. James Alexander Lyon. With the Cuban Ambassador were his sister and his niece, Senorita Ana Maria Carabia Martinez.

Maisie Howard To Be Lea Guest

Mrs. Charles M. Lea will entertain at a dinner at the Sulgrave Club December 21 in honor of Miss Maisie Howard, popular debutante daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Herbert Howard.

Mrs. Lea is now at her home in Philadelphia but will return to her residence at 1735 Massachusetts avenue shortly, for the winter season.

About The Town

With Dudley Harmon

ADELAIDE CHATFIELD-TAYLOR, one of the prettiest and blondest of the current debs, has resumed her studies at Bryn Mawr. Her parents, the Assistant Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Wayne Chatfield-Taylor, will give a dinner for her during the Christmas holidays, instead of the dance which they originally planned for December 26.

DUDLEY HARMON.

She was presented to Capital society at a large afternoon reception given by her parents last June, which makes her the first of this season's debutantes, instead of the last of last winter's. Mrs. Chatfield-Taylor also gave a dance in her honor September 16 in Chicago, where they resided before coming to Washington with the New Deal.

Miss Rose Chatfield-Taylor, younger daughter of the household, is finishing her studies at Westover this year and will come out next winter.

WE HEAR Dorothy Villard, daughter of Oswald Garrison Villard, former publisher of the Nation, is contemplating living in Washington this winter. She came down from her home in New York last spring and took an apartment at the Anchorage for several weeks. Miss Villard is pretty, chic, and interested in "causes." She is a cousin of Harry Villard, of the State Department.

SINCE Mrs. Jerauld Wright, the former Phyllis Thompson, has so many friends in Washington who are always asking for news of her, we quote parts of a letter recently received from her home in Coronado. After dissertation on the servant problem on the West Coast, which seems to be a knotty one, she continues:

"I just adore Coronado and the simple, lazy and pleasant life. The weather is heavenly and our house quite perfect. There are any number of nice people here to play around with and I have several attractive golfing pals. As for that feeling of waking up in the morning without the prospect of a day in the office, I must confess I do not miss it at all!

"Last week-end we went to Mexico and stayed in an attractive motor camp in Ensenada. The John Thomasons and Julian Browns and ourselves have done this twice and we couldn't have more fun. The men go fishing and the girls swim, read and play Chinese checkers. I have also been playing some golf."

Maj. and Mrs. John Thomason are well known in Washington, having lived in Spring Valley before going out to the West Coast. Maj. Thomason is the author of numerous articles and several books. Mrs. Wright also says in her letter that Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. Forrest Close, whose marriage took place last summer about a week before hers, have left Coronado for Vallejo, where Commander Close's ship was ordered. However, they are expected to return to Coronado in December. Both formerly lived in Washington.

LOVE certainly seems to be at large in the city. Watch for the announcement shortly of the engagement of a young lady, one of the best dancers in the Capital, to a young man who spends a great deal of his time riding in airplanes or talking about them. We also hear that Billy Bell is going to marry a young lady he met while working recently on the staff of a national magazine. He used to live in Washington, now works in Philadelphia.

Many Here For Wedding of W. J. Coad, Jr.

Miss Worthington Bride Ceremony Tomorrow Mr. Wilkins Best Man

A number of out-of-towners have arrived for the wedding tomorrow of Miss Ethel Worthington and William James Coad, jr., of Omaha, Nebr., and are staying at the Shoreham.

The best man, Torrey Wilkins, of Omaha, is there and also the bridegroom himself. The matron of honor, Mrs. Adam K. Luke, jr., of New York, who arrived last week, will be joined today by Mr. Luke. The bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Coad, sr., arrived yesterday, as did his sister, Miss Josephine Coad, all of Omaha, and Mrs. O. Riley Boland, of Atlanta. Mrs. William D. Hosford and her daughter, Miss Kathryn Hosford, are arriving from Omaha today and will be joined at the hotel tomorrow by Mr. Hosford.

Also arriving today will be Mr. and Mrs. Faris Jenkins and her mother, Mrs. Clifford Black, of New York; Mrs. Edward Guest Gibson and her daughter, Miss Cecil Gibson, of Baltimore; Miss Carlyle Porter, of Philadelphia; Miss Martha O'Brien, of Louisville, and Miss Eleanor Shutts, who lives in Miami, but is coming from Vassar College. The ushers are Charles Fitzmorris, of Philadelphia; Moorhead Tukey, of Omaha; Adam K. Llke, jr., and Frank Hamilton. Mrs. Ralph Worthington 3d will be bridesmaid with Miss Coad.

Mrs. Adolphus Watson Visits Kin Here

Mrs. Adolphus E. Watson, wife of Rear Admiral Watson, has arrived from California for a visit with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander C. Liggett, at their residence, 1920 Twenty-third street.

Mrs. Watson, who resided here until a year or so ago, expects to be here about a month.

Anne Murray Becomes Bride Of Lieut. van de Velde Here

Ceremony Takes Place in Parents' Apartment Only Relatives and Close Friends Present Miss Margaret Watkins Is Maid of Honor

Of wide interest to service people in Washington and other cities was the marriage yesterday of Miss Anna Howard Murray, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Maxwell Murray, of Fort Sill, Okla., and Lieut. Robert Whitsett van de Velde, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Paul van de Velde, of Wilton, Conn.

Only relatives and close friends witnessed the ceremony, which took place at 4 o'clock at the Murray apartment at 2400 Sixteenth street, before an improvised altar banked with palms and white chrysanthemums. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of ivory white satin made with a long train and cut on princess lines. A rosepoint veil, a family heirloom, completed her costume, and she carried a bouquet of white gardenias.

Miss Watkins Is Maid of Honor

Her maid of honor and only attendant was Miss Margaret L. Watkins. She wore a princess gown of fuchsia velvet with a small hat of the same color trimmed with ostrich tips, and carried a bouquet of Johanna Hill roses.

Louis van de Velde, of New York, brother of the bridegroom, was best man, and the ushers were another brother, John van de Velde, of Wilton; Gordon C. Busch, of New York, and Lieuts. James W. Totten and George C. Osborne, from Madison Barracks, N. Y., where the bridegroom is on duty with the Field Artillery.

To Reside at Madison Barracks

After a small reception immediately following the ceremony, the couple left for a wedding trip, the bride wearing a black wool costume and a black hat trimmed with coq feathers. Silver fox furs and beige gloves completed her costume. Mr. and Mrs. van de Velde will make their home at Madison Barracks.

Mrs. Murray, the bride's mother, wore an Empire blue lace frock and a small velvet hat to match. A corsage of orchids completed her costume.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert van de Velde came from their home in Wilton for the wedding.

Miss Alexander Will Be Honored With Tea Nov. 17

Mr. and Mrs. Edward R. Alexander have selected Thursday, November 17, as the date for a tea at their residence in honor of their debutante daughter, Miss Sylvia Alexander.

Miss Alexander will go to Philadelphia next month for a dinner which her sister, Mrs. John M. Carter, will give in her honor November 29.

The debutante's family has been widely known in Washington society for over a hundred years. Mrs. Alexander, the former Elise Hoban, made her debut here and is descended from James Hoban, architect of the White House and a great friend of George Washington.

Out-of-town visitors to the Inter-American Horse Show, as well as Washington garden lovers, will visit the gardens of Dumbarton Oaks, 3101 R street, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss, tomorrow afternoon from noon to 5:30 o'clock.

The beautiful chrysanthemum gardens and the attractive wooded walks are to be open to the public, the proceeds to go to the Washington Self-Help Exchange. During the afternoon tea will be served in the orangery and on the terrace.

Mrs. Emil Hurja, chairman of the garden tour, will be assisted by a committee of hostesses headed by Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone, Mrs. Stanley Reed, Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, jr., Mrs. James L. Houghteling, Mrs. Wayne Chatfield-Taylor, Mrs. Charles A. Baker, Mrs. Thomas Parran, Miss Elizabeth Howry, Mrs. Richard Seeley Jones, Miss Edna Lonigan, Mrs. Hugh V. Keiser, Mrs. Charles Goldsmith, Mrs. David Cushman Coyle, Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, Miss Selma Borchardt, Miss Mae Heim, Mrs. Charles Carroll Glover, jr.; Miss Mary Anderson, Mrs. Gardner Jackson, Mrs. Robert McCandless, Mrs. Frederick P. H. Siddons, Mrs. L. T. Breuninger, and Mrs. Lee Pressman.

Tickets may be purchased at the gates of the garden Saturday or will be on sale Thursday and Friday at local hotels. In case of rain, the gardens will be open instead on Monday afternoon.

Mrs. Thomas Moore Gives Dinner Party

Mrs. Thomas Ewing Moore, who makes her home at the Shoreham, gave a dinner party in the hotel's Blue room last evening.

The guests included Mrs. Moore's uncle, Matthew Baird, of Philadelphia, who is visiting her for a few days; Col. and Mrs. George E. Kumpe, Mr. and Mrs. Brice Toole, Mrs. Tyree Rivers, Miss Myra Rivers, Miss Maud R. Cavanaugh; the hostess' daughter, Miss Rose Mary Moore; Howard Toole, Richard Whelan, John Weisel and James Palms.

Browns at Shoreham

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Boyd Brown, of Alden Park Manor, Philadelphia, are at the Shoreham accompanied by their daughter, Miss Olive Brown, a student at the University of Oregon.

Miss Frances Parrott Married To Mr. Coxen in Falls Church

Ceremony Performed at Columbia Baptist Anniversary Date Chosen for Wedding Bride Wears Part of Mother's Costume

With clusters of tall white tapers banking the altar and marking each pew, the wedding of Miss Frances Malinda Parrott and Everett Coxen took place last evening in the Columbia Baptist Church, Falls Church, Va. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Parrott; Mr. Coxen is the son of Mrs. Josephine Coxen, of Arlington.

The bride wore a gown of white slipper satin, made on princess lines with a heart-shaped neck. Her only piece of jewelry was a lavaliere that was part of her mother's wedding costume. The former Miss Parrott had chosen as her nuptial day the anniversary of weddings of both her parents and her grandparents.

Miss Emmie Harwood Is Maid of Honor

All the bride's attendants wore frocks of chiffon velvet with halos of blossoms to match their bouquets. Miss Emmie Harwood, of Washington, the maid of honor, was gowned in grenada red and carried talisman roses. The bridesmaids included Mrs. Carlton Walsh, Miss Elizabeth Murr and Miss Eunice Kemper, of Washington; Miss Ruby Lee Parrott, Miss Evelyn Markward and Miss Betty Hunt, of Falls Church. Their frocks, modeled on the same lines as the bride's, were blue and they carried bouquets of red roses.

Harry Coxen was his brother's best man, and ushers were John Parrott, R. C. L. Moncure, Archie Gordon and Howard Ryan, of Falls Church; Carlton Walsh, of Washington, and Frances Mann, of Arlington. Mr. Parrott gave his daughter in marriage and the Rev. U. S. Knox officiated at the 8 o'clock ceremony. Mrs. Martha Hunton played the organ, and Miss Esther Blouch, of Washington, sang two solos preceding the service.

Couple to Live In Falls Church

There was a reception for members of the wedding party and the immediate families at the home of the bride's parents. Before going there, however, the bride and bridegroom and their attendants greeted their guests at the church.

Shortly after the reception, the couple left for a wedding trip first to the South and then North. Upon their return they will live at 116 Columbia street, Falls Church.

Textbook in Publicity Written for Clubwomen

Miss Vella Alberta Winner Is Author
She Is Press Director for Federation
Approaches Subject From All Angles

By Jessie Ash Arndt,
The Post Club Editor.

Clubwomen throughout the country now have a textbook in publicity writing for their organizations. Miss Vella Alberta Winner, of Washington, publicity director for the General Federation of Women's Clubs and editor of its magazine, is author of that book, "What Makes You Think So," just off the press.

Before coming to the general federation headquarters here, Miss Winner was club editor of the Oregon Daily Journal, in Portland, and was also a prominent member of the Oregon State Federation of Women's Clubs. In the position of both a club woman and club editor, she knew the importance from the standpoint of the organization and the newspaper as well, of having press chairmen who understand their jobs.

Explaining the title in her first chapter, she says publicity is the answer to the question, "What makes you think so?" After a discussion of the purpose and value of publicity, she devotes subsequent chapters to practical instruction as to the manner of approach to newspaper and radio people; the selection of the publicity chairman; self training for publicity; university courses in club journalism and various phases of district and State, as well as local publicity writing for clubs.

Mrs. Horace D. Ritchie, recording secretary of the general federation, who has written the introduction for the chapter on programs and institutes, says: "The book on publicity is badly needed by all of our groups. I think it cannot be denied that our clubs are more efficient in every other field of activity than they are in publicity. Assistance in gaining the best publicity through correct methods will be a great boon both to the clubs and their officials and to the newspapers which are eager to give splendid service but who, all too often, have found the tasks involved to be difficult and nerve-racking due to the faulty methods of the club women themselves when reporting activities."

The book is not large—128 pages—and the material is well organized for reference. It presents the "do's" and "don'ts" of news writing in a simple, direct style and deals with the work of the press chairman both in her relationship to her club and to the newspaper.

Mrs. Saidie Orr Dunbar, president of the General Federation, and Kathleen McLaughlin, editor of the Woman's Page of the New York Times, have written the preface. The chapter introductions are written by federation officers except those for the chapter on newspaper publicity by Louise Cattol, club editor of the Milwaukee Journal, and on radio publicity, by Margaret Cuthbert, director of women's activities for N. B. C. Mrs. John L. Whitehurst, of Baltimore, first vice president of the General Federation, is author of the introduction.

This plan of bringing club leaders into the book adds authority to its message for women in organization work and places it on the "must" list for every press chairman and other officer interested in club expansion via the publicity path.

Nellie Buckey Will Address Kappa Deltas

Miss Nellie Buckey, of Buffalo, N. Y., head of the teachers training department of the Buffalo Teachers College, has accepted the invitation of the Kappa Delta Alumnae Association to be speaker at the annual Founders' Day banquet, it was announced last night by Mrs. Percival Hall, jr., who is in charge of arrangements.

The banquet will be given at 2400 Sixteenth street tomorrow, and will be preceded by a reception at which officers of the Alumnae association will receive with Miss Buckey: Miss Ruth McRae, president;

Miss Buckey has chosen for her subject "The Ideal Alumna." There will be talks by representatives of George Washington University and University of Maryland chapters, Miss Betty Griswold and Miss Elizabeth Barber, and Miss Peggy Turner will read the Kappa Delta Creed. Miss Elizabeth Barber will sing, accompanied by Miss Judy King.

Assisting Mrs. Hall in arrangements for the banquet are Miss Elizabeth Peagram and Miss Virginia White. Reservations are in charge of Miss Virginia Whitney, 1738 Irving street.

THURSDAY NIGHT is when mother goes out to play, in Anacostia neighborhood. Father, brother and sister keep the home fires burning and do their lessons while mother dons a gym suit, slacks or a bathing suit and fares forth to school for an evening of calisthenics, games or folk dances.

The Anacostia Junior-Senior High School P.-T. A. is sponsoring, for the second season, its gym class for mothers—and the first meeting was held last night. More than 120 of the 300 members of the association are enrolled.

The class was organized last year by the P.-T. A. president, Mrs. W. J. Plemmons. It began with 24 members last December and grew to five times that size by the close of school. Miss Ruth Frankhouser, physical education instructor at the school, who was engaged to conduct the class, was obliged to obtain an assistant at the end of the term because of the large membership. Not all of the members attended every week but there was an average of 60.

Last year the fee was 25 cents a night but this proved to be unnecessarily high with so many attending and, if the membership continues to grow it will be reduced to 15 cents.

Next Wednesday the Anacostia P.-T. A. will open a drive for 400 members, with a tea at the school building from 3 to 5.

WADE H. ELLIS will talk on "The Constitution" Tuesday morning at 10:45 in a radio program over WMAL, sponsored by the Daughters of the American Revolution. He and Mrs. Ellis will be among the guests of honor tomorrow night at the banquet of the General Society of Mayflower Descendants, being given at the Mayflower Hotel.

THE ARTS CLUB will present two one-act plays Tuesday and Wednesday nights of next week. These will be the first programs of the season for the drama department under the chairmanship of Maud Howell Smith.

The plays will be those awarded prizes in the contest last spring—"Madamoiselle from Armantieres," by Aaron Goldman, and "A Certain Town," by Pearl Porter Etz, a club member. Marie W. Walcott is directing the productions and Wilma Flood, Paul Murphy and Maurice Jarvis are among those in the cast.

Dinner will be served at the club each evening preceding the plays.

A CANDLELIGHT PARTY was held last night by Beta Alpha Chapter of Phi Mu Sorority as one of the rush week festivities. It was at the home of Mrs. Gustav Burmeister, one of the members of the alumnae chapter. Only candlelight was used in the house, and the traditional program, the reading of the Phi Mu creed and history, was carried out by June Johnson, Clara Hall, the chapter president, and Mary D. Keating.

MONTMARTRE NOCTAMBULE is having its first meeting of the year tomorrow night. The group of artists, musicians and writers, with M. and Mme. Felian Garzia as their moving spirits, will gather each Saturday night this year, as last, at the little restaurant, 1106 Maryland avenue southwest.

MRS. GEORGE C. THORPE, president of the Women's Safety Committee of the District of Columbia Motor Club of the A. A. A., will speak on "Traffic as I Saw It in Europe," Wednesday, November 2, at the meeting of the committee at the Sulgrave Club, at 11 o'clock. Guests of honor will be Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen, Mrs. David McCoach, wife of Col. McCoach, and Capt. H. S. Bishop, assistant engineer for the District, who will speak.

THE DEMOCRATIC WOMEN'S NATIONAL COUNCIL will hold a political rally Monday evening at 8 o'clock at 1500 Rhode Island avenue northwest, with Joseph B. Keenan, Assistant to the Attorney General, as the speaker.

All Democratic Senators and Congressmen have been invited to attend the rally and many have signified their intention of being there. All Democratic State Clubs and Young Democratic organizations are co-operating with their State chairmen of the Democratic Absentee Voters' Bureau to have as many representatives from the various States attend the rally as possible. A prize will be offered for the State with the largest representation.

Sodality Union Jubilee Monday

The Sodality Union has completed arrangements for a celebration to be held at Gonzaga Auditorium, 39 I street northwest, Monday, at 8:15 p. m. This occasion will mark the twentieth anniversary of the founding of the organization. Michael J. Curley, Archbishop of Baltimore, will be guest of honor and principal speaker.

Twenty years ago when Cardinal Gibbons was Archbishop of Baltimore, the Right Rev. Monsignor C. F. Thomas, pastor of St. Patrick's Church of this city was appointed to assist the Rev. Edward F. Garesche, S. J., in forming the organization.

The Rev. Joseph M. Johnson, S. J., whose school was built by the Sodality Union, will speak on rural development in education, Miss Mary Mattingly, the president, will speak briefly on the development of the union and the Rev. J. J. Clark, spiritual director of the Soldality Union ,will deliver the greeting.

A musical program has been arranged by Miss Margaret Walsh, who will direct the Sodality Union Choir with Miss Nellie Ronan as soloist, assisted by Miss Margaret Breen at the piano. Selections will be played by the Gonzaga Orchestra, directed by Robert W. Lowe, S. J.

Each parish sodality is affiliated with the Sodality Union. The officers of the union include: Spirit-ual director, the Rev. J. J. Clark, assistant pastor of St. Teresa's Church; president, Miss Mattingly; vice president, Mrs. Anna C. Donnelly; secretaries, Miss Christine Hilbrandt and Miss Anna Brashears; treasurer, Miss Lillian Samuels; executive board, Mrs. P. F. Hannan, Mrs. Auguste Neuland, Mrs. Lewis Strieter, Mrs. William A. Bailey, Mrs. Lucy Goldsborough, Miss Elizabeth Milovich and Miss Mary Keefe.

Vassar Alumnae Meet Wednesday

The Washington branch of the Vassar Alumnae Association will have its first meeting this season at the home of its president, Mrs. Paul Henderson, Wednesday afternoon at 4:30.

Preceding the business meeting there will be a tea in honor of the 1938 alumnae residing in Washington. These include Miss Mary Gentry, Miss Katherine Booth, Miss Emelyn Davies, Miss Caroline Godsey, Miss Rachel Merritt and Miss Mary Splawn.

Officers of the association who will assist the hostess are Mrs. Donald Chamberlin, Mrs. Curtis Mumford, Mrs. Hopewell Darnielle and Mrs. Ernest D. Lewis, representative of the alumnae council.

Kentucky Wives Are Invited To Bridge-Tea

The Kentucky Society of Washington has invited wives and daughters of all Kentuckians in Washington to attend a bridge tea tomorrow afternoon at the home of the president, Mrs. Gordon Edwards, 1500 Delafield place.

There will be bridge, beginning at 2 o'clock, and tea from 4 to 6.

Mrs. McKenzie Davison is chairman of the committee on arrangements, assisted by Mrs. Russell Albert, Mrs. Bruce Allen, Mrs. Gregory Bruce, Mrs. Robert Adams, Mrs. Lorenzo Martin, Mrs. Alexander Mitchell, Mrs Anderson Tackett, Mrs William Temple, Mrs Maurice Thatcher, Mrs. C. W. Leaphart, Mrs. Millard West and Mrs. Robert Lucas.

Assisting at the tea table will be Mrs. Stanley Reed, Mrs. Marvin McIntyre, Mrs. A. O. Stanley, Mrs. Vincent Burke, Mrs. Thatcher, Miss Mae Helm, Mrs. Conrad Syme and Miss Amelia Weitzel.

Delta Zeta Alumnae Hold Banquet Monday

The Delta Zeta Sorority Alumnae chapter of Washington will hold a founders' day banquet Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock, at the Dodge Hotel. It will mark the thirty-sixth anniversary of the founding of the sorority. Miss Esther Yanovsky, president of the active chapter at George Washington University, will act as toastmistress.

Those who will offer toasts to the six founders will be Miss Katherine Howard, Mrs. Charles Knox, Miss Minerva Norton, Mrs. L. G. Kenyon, Miss Ruth Yanovsky and Miss Helen McNeil.

At the speakers' table will be Mrs. M. L. Parler, president of the alumnae chapter; Miss Helen Martell, Delta Zeta representative in city Pan-Helenic Council; Mrs. Norman B. Ames, Miss Ann Lawrence, Mrs. Verner W. Clapp, Miss Alice Baldwin, Miss Alice Hill and Mrs. John G. Ladd, charter members of the George Washington University chapter.

Those in charge of the arrangements for the banquet are Mrs. G. L. White, Miss Myra Hall, Mrs. A. L. Jones and Mrs. Knox.

D. C. Young Democrats Plan Holloween Dance

D. A. R. Groups Open Season

Various State Committees of the District Daughters of the American Revolution will meet within the next few days for the first time in the current season.

Mrs. Tonis Holzberg, State historian and chairman of the State hostorical research committee, held a meeting yesterday in the auditorium of Memorial Continetal Hal, with Charles Fairman, art curator of the Capitol, as speaker.

The committee is planning an all-day pilgrimage Monday to Valley Forge, Pa., where Miss Lillian Chenowich, State regent, will present a national flag to the memorial chapel in the name of the District D.A.R.

The State Membership Committee also meet yesterday. Mrs. Roger Williams, State registrar, is chairman of this committee, and has announced Mrs. Frank Leon Nason, registrar general, as guest speaker. The registrars, elective officers from each D. A. R. chapter in the District compose Mrs. Williams' committee.

Mrs. Frank H. Towner, chairman of the State committee on national defense through patriotic education, will meet with her committee at the Mayflower Hotel at 11 o'clock this morning. Speakers will be Miss Chenoweth, Mrs. Charles Carroll Haig, vice president, D. A. R.; Mrs. William Sherman Walker, executive secretary, American Coalition Society, and Mrs. Mary Logan Tucker, chairman of the committee on national defense of the Daughters of 1812.

Tonight at 8 o'clock at the Willard Hotel, the State committee on Advancement of American Music will meet for the first time this year. Mrs. Lois Marshall Hicks, chairman, has invited Mrs. George E. Pickett, of Alexandria, vice chairman of the national committee, to talk. Mrs. Hicks' committee will foster the use by members of the D. A. R. of American music, from the early folk song to modern classical compositions by American composers. Mrs. Lee R. Pennington, jr., State chairman of radio, will speak on "American Music on the Radio."

Mrs. S. M. Dodek Plans Lecture Series

Mrs. Samuel M. Dodek, chairman of the educational committee of the Washington Chapter of Hadassah, will give a series of lectures in "The Poetry of Chaim Nachman Bialik," today, Monday, October 24, and Monday, October 31, at 2:00 p. m. at the Jewish Community Center.

Mrs. Dodek is substituting for Mrs. Hyde Buller who is ill. The studies are included in a scheduled series sponsored by the Hadassah Institute of Jewish Education. Others are lectures by Dr. Louis Kaplan on "The World's Enigma;" talks on the international situation by Mrs. Max Rhoade;

Bedtime Story

Johnny Chuck Complains

There never was nor can there be
A thing whereon all folks agree.
—Peter Rabbit.

Peter is right. It is one of the queer things of life that nothing is so good or so bad that there is not a difference of opinion in regard to it. What suits one is not at all to the liking of another. What offends this one delights that one. It is well that it is so.

It was a crisp October morning. The lowest parts of the Green Meadows were white, sure proof that Jack Frost had been there in the night. Over in the Green Forest only those trees that retain their leaves all winter were green. The others were beautiful in reds and yellows and soft browns. The Merry Little Breezes passing that way would shake loose a few of the leaves to cover the ground with a gay carpet. Even when the air was still, leaves that could no longer cling would let go of the twigs from which even mighty storms in summer had been unable to tear them loose. Over in Farmer Brown's cornfield the stalks stood in brown shocks row on row. Here and there among them were little piles of pumpkins, yellow with the stored sunshine of a long summer.

Peter loved it all. The crisp air made him want to run and kick up his long heels and do other foolish things. He just couldn't sit still. Jolly, round, bright Mr. Sun climbed higher in the blue, blue sky. He wiped away the white record of Jack Frost's visit. Despite the warmth brought by the Jolly Little Sunbeams, there was still a tingle in the air that made Peter want to do things and go places. So when looking across to Johnny Chuck's house, he saw Johnny come out and sit on the doorstep, Peter could keep still no longer. He kicked up his heels and away he went, lipperty-lipperty-lip, straight over to Johnny Chuck's.

"Hi, Johnny Chuck! Isn't it good to be alive this weather?" cried Peter.

"Is it?" replied Johnny without enthusiasm.

"Of course it is!" cried Peter. "Don't tell me that you don't just love this weather."

"I don't," replied Johnny.

Peter stared at Johnny Chuck. He couldn't believe he had heard right. "Why not?" he asked.

"It's too cold," replied Johnny. I don't like cold weather."

"Cold!" exclaimed Peter. "Cold! You don't call this cold! Why, it is just cool enough to make a fellow feel fine and want to run and jump."

"It doesn't make me feel fine or want to run and jump," grumbled Johnny Chuck.

Peter chuckled. Johnny was so fat that he looked as if his grayish brown coat was in danger of bursting. "I guess it is just as well you don't feel like running and jumping," said Peter.

"This weather makes me sleepy," complained Johnny, and yawned. "I haven't any appetite. I suppose that is a good thing, for the grass and clover and other plants are old and have no flavor. No, sir, I don't like this time of year.

"I know where there is some clover that is still young enough to be tender. Come with me and I will show you," said Peter.

Johnny Chuck yawned. "No thanks," said he. "I told you I haven't any appetite. I wouldn't leave this doorstep for the finest clover that ever grew."

Peter changed the subject. "Anyway you will have to admit that this is a lovely day," said he. "Isn't the sunshine beautiful?"

"There is no warmth in it," complained Johnny.

Peter lost patience. "It must be that you got out of the wrong side of your bed this morning," said he. "You better go back and try it over again."

Johnny Chuck yawned again. Without another word he turned and disappeard down in his house. Peter stared after him. "He wasn't very polite," muttered Peter.

The Federal Diary

By Scott Hart

E. W. HADLEY, native Georgian, forestry supervisor for this Government in Puerto Rico, chief forester for the Puerto Rican insular government and a brave man, flew to town the other day in one of the insular government's old airplanes.

He flew without even a drawled Georgian prayer, across the 200 miles of water between Haiti and the Florida mainland, comforted only in the thought that the plane had only one motor to bother about. Hadley is brave.

A fellow with velvet in his voice and a pair of professional spectacles in his eyes, he hated to part with the old ship. But that was his mission, to take the insular government's plane to Hagerstown, where there is an airplane factory, and swap it for a new ship. He is off for Puerto Rico today, leaving behind him the sight of changing season—which he won't know until he comes this way again.

A MAN can become attached to an airplane, just as he becomes attached to an old glove, an old shoe or a woman. The plane he left at Hagerstown the other day was the one from which Hadley sowed the seeds of thousands of mahogany, teak and satinwood trees. The country is so dense, it doesn't pay to cut one's way in to sow the seed. So they fly over the areas; and the seeds are unloosed from a funnel, to be caught in the propeller blasts and sent flying over the earth.

From the bird's eye view, Hadley has seen the ground and the whole prospect. His forester's eye let him know that within 20 years the satinwood trees will be grown, and the timber, used for inlay work, is worth a dollar a board foot. And there is all the landscape, 2,000,000 acres inhabited by 2,000,000 people, and the job of acquiring and developing approximately 500,000 acres for the dual uses of timber and cultivation.

ALSO, there were the mangrove swamps that charcoal came from. The foresters were kept bothered about these, because fuel is a problem; there is no coal or oil down there. The natives go into the mangrove swamps for the charcoal, and, even if they duck under a bush when the airplane motor drones overhead, Hadley, withal, knows what is going on.

He has only six continentals helping him down there; there are many Puerto Ricans in the forestry work but few workers from the mainland. He has some difficulty in getting assistants (nothing is open down there right now) because people hear about tropical fevers and don't rush in. That sounded curious; the popular notion would seem to be one of mandolins and moonlight—we had thought the appeal to work in the islands would be great.

HADLEY, a graduate of the University of Georgia, 1919, and a forester for 20 years, went over to Interior yesterday looking for Gov. Blanton Winship, who is an ardent air traveler and who might want a lift back to that palatial place of his overlooking San Juan.

Labor Department is going after more detailed information on its personnel, having distributed six-page questionnaires to each employe. The information will be punched onto tabulating machine cards, providing statistical data for reports wanted by Congress, the Civil Service Commission and administrative officials. It is thought that information assembled in such capsule form will permit the personnel office to make its promotion-from-within policy more effective.

ORGANIZATION NEWS: The Treasury Recreation Association holds it fall dance Saturday evening, October 29, at the Wardman Park . . . The Farm Credit Club plans a festive week-end trip to New York, starting from here next Friday night. See Mrs. McMurry, room 3218 . . . You can still register for classes at the Federal Workers School.

The Civil Service Assembly of the United States and Canada adjourns. At this writing it seems that they will meet next year in Jacksonville, Fla.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Oct. 20.—George Weber, 19, graduated in June from the Berkeley Springs High School, where he captained his football team last season, died in a local hospital today of injuries sustained a few hours earlier when the automobile on whose running board he was riding to work in Berkeley Springs collided with a truck just inside the Berkeley Springs city limits. He suffered a skull fracture and other serious injuries.

Girl, 3, Finds Rifle, Kills Woman

Terra Alta, W. Va., Oct. 20 (AP).—A bullet wound inflicted by a rifle in the hands of a 3-year-old girl proved fatal today to Minnie Bertha Lewis, 23, Probation Officer James C. Frame reported.

The child found the rifle in the kitchen of the Lewis home and pulled the trigger. Deputy Sheriff Ted Zinn said there would be no prosecution.

Barnstormer Dies When Plane Falls

Powellsville, N. C., Oct. 20 (AP).—Joe Musleh, 35, barnstorming pilot, was killed instantly today when his big trimotored plane crashed in the woods near here.

J. C. Jacocks, a carpenter working near the scene, said the plane's motors cut off at a low altitude. The pilot's body was extricated after the fusilage had been cut away with an axe.

Youth, 18, Convicted Of Killing Va. Boy, 2

Amherst, Va., Oct. 20 (AP).—A jury in Amherst Circuit Court this afternoon found George Tolley, 18, guilty of second-degree murder of Ralph Howard Moon, 26-month-old son of Mrs. Jennie May Moon.

Tolley's punishment was fixed at five years in the penitentiary.

Young Ralph died September 8. Death was attributed by Dr. Robert D. Caldwell, who performed the autopsy, to hemorrhages of the liver resulting from a blow in the abdomen. Tolley was accused of striking that blow and his conviction ensued on circumstantial evidence.

FALSE TEETH That Loosen Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of loose false teeth have suffered real embarassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wabbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Holds loose false teeth firmer, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks plate odor (denture breath). Get FASTEETH at any drug store.

When mouth tissues change, see your dentist.

U. S. Army Horses Triumph in Inter-American

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Come the afternoon of Tuesday, November 1, at the Pimlico track and they'll send the racing calendar whirring back to the '90s. For a fraction of a minute after War Admiral and Seabiscuit go postward in the match race that hsa set tongues of racegoers wagging for a year, there will be a strange interlude in the modern setting of the turf.

POVICH.

Even as the new fangled totalizators with their miles of electric wire compute the betting odds and catapult mutuel tickets into the hands of the customers, a note from the distant past will be resurrected on the track.

War Admiral and Seabiscuit will face no barrier out there at the start. They will break from no stalls. They will be sent away from a walk-up start even as races were started for a hundred years before barriers were introduced and stall gates wheeled onto the tracks. For the nostalgic old timers in the grandstands or on the rail it will be horse racing of the '90's living again for the moment.

And because these two prize bits of horseflesh will be on the move, leisurely though it may be, when the starter's flag falls, the odds on War Admiral have been shortened. A tremendous advantage lies with the Riddle colt in a walk-up start, betting commissioners believe. How Charles S. Howard, Seabiscuit's owner, was inveigled into agreeing to that type of start is a mystery with them.

Renowned for his manners at the post, War Admiral shies at the stall gates and frequently has been ordered to the outside by exasperated starters. In the contrasting post manners of the two horses was the possibility of a break at the start for the tractable Seabiscuit. But Howard has seemingly kissed off that advantage.

Perhaps he yielded because of the break given Seabiscuit in the weights. Each steed will carry 120 pounds, but that weight, nevertheless, represents a concession to the Howard horse. Under the weight-for-age rules, a 5-year-old is required to carry 4 more pounds than a 4-year-old, but War Admiral's owner has agreed to the equal weights perhaps because of the walking start.

Out from under his usual disadvantage at the break, War Admiral is now rated a 1-to-2 shot to beat Seabiscuit over the mile and three-sixteenths. "He'll get off fast and run away and hide from Seabiscuit," according to one bookmaker who refuses to lay more than $1 against your $2 if you like War Admiral in this two-horse race.

If you like Seabiscuit $2 will get you $3 at this writing. They are the odds of Jimmy Carroll, St. Louis betting commissioner, who admits that the odds against Seabiscuit lengthened when it was announced that the horses would get away from a walking start.

"War Admiral's tremendous early speed won't be impaired by the walk-up getaway," writes Carroll. "Seabiscuit can't match the Admiral's early pace and down in Florida last winter War Admiral ran his opposition into submission in the first 6 or 7 furlongs. He outsprinted the sprinters and outlasted the stayers."

It is significant, perhaps, that Jim Milton, the official Pimlico starter, declined the job in the Seabiscuit-War Admiral match. He preferred that George Cassidy, New York starter, handle the old-fashioned getaway which requires not only coolness and nerve but split-second decisiveness. Milton was acceptable to both Howard and Riddle, but he apparently did not care for the responsibility.

The most famous walk-up start in all racing history occurred on the afternoon of June 23, 1893. That was the day when Snapper Garrison won the $50,000 Chicago Derby at Washington Park astride the 5-to-1 shot Boundless, with a typical Garrison finish.

But what made that race famed was not Garrison's whipping finish from out of the ruck, but the one hour and 37 minutes delay at the post. Employing every ruse he knew, complaints with his saddle and maneuvering into false starts, Garrison managed to spend most of the hour and 37 minutes off Boundless' back while the remainder of the field suffered from their riders' weight.

On that day Starter Pettingill called the field back five minutes after it had dashed an eighth of a mile in false starts. When his flag finally did fall, it was a comparatively fresh Boundless running against a field of tired horses.

A week from Tuesday War Admiral unquestionably will be the betting favorite, but the sentimental favorite will be the hard-used Seabiscuit. The old campaigner who lost two $100,000 Santa Anita Handicaps in photo finishes is the more romantic of the match race entrants. He has been vanned and railroaded all over the country without betraying his backers. He has been beaten five times in ten starts this year, but always he gave his supporters an honest race.

Seabiscuit's defeat by Jacola is not being held seriously against him. He packed 126 pounds to Jacola's 102 that day at Laurel and forced the filly to a new record for the mile before he accepted defeat. And a mile is not Seabiscuit's distance. He will like that extra three-sixteenths on November 1.

Clemson Tigers Beat South Carolina, 34-12

Columbia, S. C., Oct. 20 (AP).—The Clemson Tigers defeated the South Carolina Gamecocks in a Southern Conference football game here today, 34 to 12, before a Fair Ground crowd of 21,000 persons.

Clemson tallied thrice in the first and once each in the second and third. South Carolina scored twice in the final period.

G. W. Regulars to Face Davis-Elkins Tonight

Coach of Colonials Is Taking No Chances Kick-Off Set for 8:30 o'Clock at Stadium Crowd of 15,000 Expected to See Game

By Jack Munhall.

Determined to preclude a natural letdown on the part of his unspanked George Washington eleven, Coach Bill Reinhart will shoot his regular line-up against Davis-Elkins at Griffith Stadium tonight when the Colonials bid for their fourth victory before some 15,000 fans.

Game time is 8:30 o'clock. The G. W. band will provide entertainment for early arrivals.

Though on record, at least, the visitors have no business battling the unscored-on and unextended Colonials with only the officials as protection, Reinhart is not so bold as to underrate any team with eleven able-bodied players and a general idea of the direction of the goal line.

Accordingly, the Colonials' best available combination will be inserted at the opening whistle and retained until such a time as the frequent substitutions Reinhart hopes to employ may be made without fear of consequences.

G. W. Under Cover

With a battery of Ole Miss scouts snooping about for clews to George Washington's seeming invincibility which will be tested by the Rebels here next Friday night, the Colonials hardly can be expected to unveil new razzle-dazzle plays designed for stronger opposition.

Rather, they will continue to merely overpower the enemy with straight football, predicated on sound fundamentals and a heavy, well-coached line. This simple method of attack proved more than adequate for G. W.'s successive victories over Furman, Butler and Colorado.

However, there is a strong possibility that Colonial followers will see more forward passing than in any previous game. Forward passing, with its ever dangerous risks, was strictly taboo for the young, green Colonial squad until Reinhart convinced his backs that ground can be gobbled up the hard way.

Penty of Aerials

But subtly persuaded by his team's feat of rolling up 534 yards against Butler and Colorado by running plays alone, Reinhart now is ready to fashion a more versatile offense, featuring plenty of aerials by Billy Richardson and Fred Sartore, a pair of reserve backs with a flair for pitching the pigskin.

With Bob Nowaskey a reformed back at left end, Sampson easily could be posted at the left wingback station to make up a very potent receiving duo. A fast runner and because of his backfield experience a smart ball-carrier, Nowaskey should be invaluable in an aerial attack. Then, with the fleet Sampson as a trailer on pass plays, Nowaskey, when bottled, could lateral for additional yardage.

Only one change has been made in the George Washington line-up that started against Colorado. Duce Keahey, 198-pound tackle, will replace the injured John Rebholz. John Tonkavitch, dependable reserve fullback who ripped off a 57-yard touchdown run against the Buffaloes, will not be used. He has a sprained ankle.

Riders Meet Westerns on Grid Today

Roosevelt Comeback Game at 3:30 P. M. Play in Georgetown Teams in Good Shape

Western High, attempting a comeback after an early season setback at the hands of Tech, plays host to Roosevelt today in a game expected to narrow actual interhigh title contenders by one. The game starts at 3:30.

Both clubs have suffered but one loss, in Roosevelt's case that loss being its only start. Western, however, has played two series games, the last being a somewhat brutal lacing o the youthful Anacostia forces. The losing team today joins Eastern and Anacostia in a twice-defeated class generally conceded to be out of title consideration.

Roosevelt goes into the test with a nonchalance it may or may not actually feel. The Rider's were given their first leave from practice yesterday since the grind began on September 6, and Coach William Thompson expressed the opinion that his team was ready. The injury list is nil, every possible player being physically fit or bandageable.

Kolker In Line-up

Of particular aid to the Rough Riders is the return to the line-up of young Bernie Kolker, a pony halfback whose name has graced the injury list since early in the season. Kolker is the brother of a former George Washington University gridder, and according to observers is expected to be as good.

Western's line-up, on the other hand, is marred by the absence of Alex Demitatus, an end whose lips and tongue were severely injured in the Anacostia tilt. In his place will be Tommy O'Hanlon, a capable substitute. Another change in line-up is the addition of Substitute Right Guard Phillips for Jack Nean.

Western goes into the fray on the long end of the odds, due probably to its triumph over Anacostia and a brilliant running game displayed in the first quarter of the Tech game. Coach Dan Ahern yesterday let his boys off with punting and passing drill. He said that the team's appearance in scrimmage led to his belief that it would win by four touchdowns.

Each team boasts a passing combination which might easily break up the game. Roosevelt's Metzler-to-Boothe, and Western's Barnes-to-Fields combinations have looked good in games to date. Both Metzler and Barnes, too, on the throwing ends, are capable runners and plungers.

Close Game Likely

Despite optimistic predictions of the coaches, today's game should be closely fought and exciting. Western's loose defense may allow Rider speedsters to pick up long gains, while Roosevelt's almost total inexperience may account for huge advances on the part of the Raiders. Western should win, but by no more than two touchdowns.

Second in interest to the interhigh clash today will be the battle between the Purple of Gonzaga and Washington-Lee's powerful eleven. Loser of one game to date, a misleading 7-to-6 loss to Eastern, Gonzaga boasts a fair chance of stopping the Little Generals. The game will be played in Arlington.

The Georgetown Prep-St. Albans duel likewise promises a large portion of action. St. Albans is rapidly earning a grid name for itself with repeated victories over local public schools. Bullis and Devitt Prep Schools have games, the first meeting Shenandoah Military Academy at Silver Spring, and the latter tangling with the Mount St. Mary's Frosh at Emmitsburg, Md.

Probable line-up:

Western.	Positions.	Roosevelt.
24 O'Hanlon	L.E.	Boothe 9
44 Veinman	L.T.	Fulton 35
42 Pappas	L.G.	Beck 22

2 Clemmer Dogs All-Age Winners

Luray, Va., Oct. 20 (AP).—Entries of Capt. R. C. Clemmer, of Waynesboro, captured top honors today in the members' all-age stake in the Page Valley field trials.

Alleghany Bacon Rind took first place and Alleghany School Girl second. Capt. Clemmer handled both pointers in the competition.

Dawn's Highland Major, a pointer owned and handled by W. Benton Snider, jr., of Winchester, placed third.

Schooner Race Again Postponed

Aboard Schooner Gertrude L. Thebaud off Gloucester (via Radio Telephone), Oct. 20 (AP).—The third scheduled race of the three-out-of-five series for the international fishermen's trophy between the Canadian defender, Bluenose, and the Gloucester challenger, Gertrude L. Thebaud, was called off at 1:48 p. m. (E.S.T.) today because of lack of wind. The vessels had covered approximately 22 miles of the 36-mile course.

Thebaud had held the lead since near the start and was about a mile ahead of Bluenose when the latter dropped out of the race at 1:24 p. m. The race had to be completed within six hours and there was no chance of accomplishing it in the very light air. Each vessel has one victory to date and one previous race was a failure because of lack of wind.

Davis-Elkins Alumni Plan Party at Game

Members of the Washington Davis-Elkins Alumni Association who wish to attend the George Washington-Davis-Elkins football game in a body, please contact J. Leighton Cornwell, United States Department of Justice, Branch 473.

Mr. Cornwell, an alumnus of Davis-Elkins, is making reservations for a section of the grandstand to be reserved for Davis-Elkins men and desires the names of all those intending to attend the game before 5 o'clock today.

New Boys' Eleven

Smith or Manton May Provide Redskins Margin of Victory

Flaherty Will Settle for Field Goal Win Philadelphia Eagles Here Sunday Smuckler, Riffle Are Threats

Long after Coach Ray Flaherty dismissed his Redskins at the end of the morning workout at Griffith Stadium yesterday, two figures in sweat clothes stood in front of the goal posts and pumped place kicks through the uprights.

They were Riley Smith and Tillie Manton, the No.1 and No. 2 field goal kickers in the National Professional League last season. With an appraising eye, Flaherty watched from the dugout.

The Redskins' coach will be content to win by 3 points from the Philadelphia Eagles on Sunday, he was saying.

"I'll settle right now for a victory on a field goal. We're lucky to have two of the best booters in the league in Smith and Manton and if my hunch is right they will both be in there trying to boot 3 points across. I know one thing, they're a great comfort to me when we're in kicking distance."

Flaherty is elated by all phases of his kicking game. Last Sunday at Detroit, Sammy Baugh and Bill Hartman produced the best punts gotten away by Redskin kickers in two years. Their boots averaged 50 yards and a fair portion of them rolled outside.

"Hartman has showed me he can kick as well as run the ball and run the team," said Flaherty. "But if I need somebody to boot that ball outside inside the 10-yard line, I'll take Baugh. When he stood on his own 48 and booted outside on the Lions' 2-yard line the other day after I had sent him in with a plea to 'give us a great kick,' he really showed me something."

Flaherty yesterday continued to show concern over the Eagles' passing attack directed by Dave Smukler and Dick Riffle. He had his secondary defense pitted against the Eagles' aerial tactics for the bulk of yesterday's workout and stressed the defense against the long heaves.

The particular target of the Redskins' defense men will be Joe Carter, fleet end, whose pass catching all but wrecked the Redskins in Philadelphia where they played a 26-23 game last month. Carter is the third leading pass catcher in the league, having caught 14 tosses, four for touchdowns.

Flaherty yesterday ridiculed reports that the Eagles' tactics would include a concerted attempt to "get Sammy Baugh." Despite the fact that it was the Eagles who removed Baugh from action for three weeks, Flaherty discounted all reports of a feud. "The Eagles won't treat Baugh any rougher than the other clubs in the league do," he declared.

With more than $15,000 worth of tickets for the game already sold, General Manager Jack Espey anticipates another capacity crowd of 30,000 at Griffith Stadium Sunday. Nine thousand bleacher seats will go on sale Sunday morning, he announced.

Hairpin Spears Golf Ball; 'Kaiser' Remains Puzzled

Albert (Kaiser) Wilhelm ran into one of the year's golf freaks yesterday on the short fifth hole on A Course at Rock Creek when his tee shot landed a foot from the cup and stuck on a hairpin that was protruding from the ground. The pin was lodged in the ball and Wilhelm could not putt it. The case would be a problem for the rules committee of the U.S.G.A., or it may have been decided by calling it unplayable and taking a two-stroke penalty, giving Wilhelm a four instead of a sure two.

Professional Al Price and Manager Harry Graham were witnesses.

Another hole in one tournament is on the card Sunday at Rock Creek, with play continuous throughout the day from the tee of the short fifth hole on A Course. The entrance fee is 25 cents for three shots, with prizes awarded the aces, if any, or shots closest to the cup.

Navy Squad Drills Hard

Passes Are Stressed Tackles Are Busy Players Warned

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Annapolis, Oct. 20.—With a spirit that bodes no good for its prospective opponent, Navy completed the heaviest portion of preparations for Saturday's game with Princeton in a long workout this afternoon, which found Head Coach Hank Hardwick stressing pass defense and tackling.

The Middies have completely forgotten last week's defeat by Yale, and have high hopes of atoning for that loss by decisively whipping the Tigers. Navy is victory-starved in this series, having finished on the short end of the score in every game with Princeton since 1931, when the Middies hung a 15-0 shiner on their ancient foe.

Hardwick warned his men that the visitors will bring a strong, well balanced team to Baltimore for the game, and will be fully as powerful as Yale. The Navy mentor blames the unseasonal heat for his squad's let-down in the second half of the Eli battle, and is hoping for cooler weather Saturday.

Hardwick this afternoon announced that Ward Witter will start at guard, probably replacing Herman Spector, who is suffering with a bad case of boils. This will be the only change in the team that faced Yale. Tom McGrath, who replaced Al Bergner at tackle, is still holding down the berth, and if he continues to improve will give Bergner a run for his job when the latter returns to active duty.

Bex Trimble, a guard who suffered a fracture of the transverse process of a spinal vertebrae in the Virginia game, reported to the squad this afternoon, but did nothing more than limber up. He will not be available for another 10 days at least, and possibly longer.

Princeton, apparently a grossly underrated team as its 13-0 victory over Penn last week demonstrated, will arrive in Baltimore tomorrow afternoon in time for a workout at the stadium. Coach Tad Wieman will bring three full teams for the game. The famous Princeton band and several thousand Nassau supporters will converge on Baltimore Saturday morning.

Tomorrow night the midshipmen will stage another pep rally immediately after the evening mess, with academy officials, coaches and players expected to address the gathering. The entire regiment, more than 2,000 strong, will see the game, and will parade on the field at 1:15 Saturday. Navy will present its colorful card stunts between the halves.

Hoyas Scheduled In '39 by N. Y. U.

New York, Oct. 20 (AP).—Four holdovers and five newcomers will comprise the football schedule for 1939 announced by New York University today.

Seven of the games are to be played in New York. North Carolina will be played at Chapel Hill, N. C., and Colgate at Hamilton, N. Y.

Colgate, North Carolina, Lafayette and Fordham are the elevens that return next fall, while Pennsylvania Military College, Carnegie Tech, Georgia, Missouri and Georgetown are the new teams.

The schedule: September 30, Colgate; October 7, P. M. C.; 14, North Carolina; 21, Carnegie Tech; 28, Georgia; November 4, Lafayette; 11, Missouri; 18, Georgetown; 25, permanently open; 30, Fordham.

Turkey Tourney

The annual Rock Creek turkey tournament, climax to the public links tournament card, will start with qualifying rounds October 30 and 31, and November 1. Match play in the various flights will follow, with a week given for each round. A field of at least 150 is expected.

Capt. Luebberman First in Jumping

Takes Class Honors Astride Sandy Capt. Trapnell Gets 2d Place U. S. Team Leads Mexico, Chile

By Hotspur.

Daring riding, intrepid horses, dangerous jumps and hazardous obstructions, intense international rivalry, colorful military ceremonies and an appreciative throng cheering brilliant equine performances, followed by a rainstorm that postponed team jumping until today marked the opening of the Inter-American Horse Show at Meadowbrook Saddle Club yesterday.

The United States Army team dominated the jumping events.

From the opening ceremony, when Secretary of War Woodring received the salute of the Third Cavalry Band and a troop of the Tenth Cavalry, until the finish of the military team jumping, when a veritable gale and downpour stopped the show, a crowd of 3,000 enthusiasts were held on the edges of their seats by the hairsplitting closeness of the competition.

Drawing upon its best performers, the United States Army team was fortunate to finish half a point ahead of an inspired and much-improved Mexican army team in the feature of the four-day program, the military team jumping. Only a quarter of a point behind the Mexicans was the Chilean army team.

Over Difficult Course

The military team jumping was run over the difficult "F" course, which consists of 12 of the toughest jumps ever erected at any show. From the initial brush jump to the final water jump it is a tortuous journey designed to tax the skill and endurance of both horse and rider.

The closest single day's competition ever recorded in this class set the military team jumping off to an exciting start. A fraction of a point difference between the first and third teams is an astounding record, considering there are 12 jumps on the course, which means that 144 jumps were negotiated by the three army teams of four horses each.

Don, of the United States Army team, led off, ridden by Lieut. Scott M. Sanford. The big bay gelding went clear until he reached the ninth jump, the 5-foot rustic fence. There he faulted, and a second fault at the 5-foot 6-inch stone wall resulted in a total of eight faults against him.

Monterrey, of the Mexican team, ably ridden by Lieut. Jaime Zapet, followed, clearing everything on the course but the towering stone wall, and finishing with 4 points. Gringo, of the Chilean team, with Capt. Guillermo Castro up, also faulted at the stone wall. With a horse from each team once around the course, the United States Army team was in the rear by 4 points.

King High Wanders

King High, rated next to the great Dakota, was the second United States Army horse to perform, but Capt. Royce A. Drake, his rider, must have had a momentary loss of memory, for he went off the course, and King High's possible score was lost to our Army team. Jaracho, of the Mexican team, masterfully ridden by Lieut. Joaquim Chagoya, finished the course with but 3¼ faults. Then the dashing Maj. Euuardo Yanez, captain of the Chilean team, took his beautiful chestnut gelding, Toqui, over the course with what was near to a clean performance. Toqui had but three-fourts of a fault. This sensational performance put the Chilean team for the moment well in the lead.

When "Old Man Dakota" was announced as the third United States Army horse, the crowd cheered. The greatest open jumper on two continents would make up for King High's loss. Dakota came into the ring winding up his tail and his fans knew the big brown gelding was right. He romped around the course making the hard ones look easy until he reached the 5 foot 6 stone wall. Then Dakota, like "Casey at the Bat," struck out by making four faults.

The crowd groaned and the United States Army team's chances looked decidedly slim. Lieut. Franklin F. Wing, recognized as the crack rider of the American team, rode Dakota. Azteca, the top Mexican jumper, ridden by Lieut. Ramiro Palafox, had 5½ faults and was followed by the Chilean team's Andino, piloted by Lieut. Hernan Vigil, who had 8 faults. As only the best three scores are counted, the teams stood: United States, 12 (with only two scores counting, King High being eliminated); Mexico, 12½; Chile, 12¾, and a horse from each army team yet to jump.

Ace in the Hole

Obviously, the next United States Army horse must have a clean performance for our Army team to win. It didn't look "so good," but Maj. Cole had an ace in the hole. Dinger, has lately been going great guns under the able handling of Capt. Milo H. Matteson, was the hope of the United States team. As he entered the ring and sailed over the first nine jumps without a false or mincing stride, the United States Army fans were encouraged, but the Toronto Bank, the stone wall that had brought all but two horses to fault, and the water jump were ahead.

Dinger lefted himself clear over the Toronto Bank and the crowd held its breath as he took off for the stone wall. Dinger lowered his head and sighted along the top like a sharpshooter aiming at a target; up he went and over with daylight between his hooves and the top of the wall, and on he went to clear the water jump.

Dinger had accomplished what seemed the impossible on that tough course; he had a clean performance. But there was a portentious anti-climax possible.

Mexico and Chile each had another horse that might go clean and ruin the United States Army Team's chances. But Donaji, ridden by the Mexican team's leader, Capt. Armando Villareal, and the Chilean entry, Descada, with Capt. Pelayo Izurieta in the saddle, each had eight faults. The United States Army Team took the blue ribbon but today may tell another story.

44 In Open Jumping

Next in point of interest to the military team jumping was the open jumping class with 44 entries. That the mounts of both the civilians and Army riders entered were of the highest class in the American horse world, was proven by 16 of these great timber-toppers going over the 15 jumps of course "B" without a fault. Sixteen horses in a jump-off is something to set down in italics in anybody's diary.

In the jump-off six obstacles were selected and all raised to 5 feet. Stubby little Sandy, the "old reliable" of the Fort Myer Horse Show Team, superbly ridden by Capt. Henri A. Leubberman, scurried about the course without a fault to win with a clear performance. Rusty, another Fort Myer entry, ridden by Capt. Trapnell, West Point's old football star, was second. Lacquar Lady, Fenton Fadely's great mare, was third, and the United States Army Team's Moro, with Lieut. W. H. S. Wright up, was fourth.

The model hunter class, shown in hand, brought together 11 of the most beautiful hunters in respect to conformation, soundness, quality and suitability ever shown in a local ring. Sport Marvel, U. S. Randle's brown gelding, champion of a score of shows, took the blue.

Another Randle entry, Primary, was the judges' second best. Mrs. D. N. Lee's Dr. Yates was third, and Chelsea Ruscus, of the Nydrie Stables, fourth.

Merry Prince Wins

The class limited to hunters that have not won more than six blue ribbons in a recognized show up to October 10, 1938, was won by Merry Prince, of the Greenhalgh Stable. Dr. Yates, owned by Mrs. D. N. Lee, was second; Chelsea Ruscus, of the Nydrie Stables, third, and Lieut. John R. Pugh 3d's God o' War, a grandson of Man o' War, fourth.

What in point of interest promised to rival the military team competition, the interstate team jumping, was postponed until 10 o'clock today, as were the hunter hack and ladies' hunters classes.

Summary of events:

JUMPING CLASS—First, Sandy, owned by Fort Myer Horse Show team, ridden by Capt. Leuberman; second, Rusty, owned by Fort Myer Horse Show team, ridden by Capt. Trapnell; third, Lacquer Lady, owned and ridden by Fenton M. Fadley, jr.; fourth, Moro, owned by U. S. Army Horse Show team, ridden by Lieut. W. H. S. Wright.

LIMIT HUNTERS—First, Merry Prince, owned by Mr. and Mrs. George F. Greenhalgh, ridden by Blakely Lodge; second, Dr. Yates, owned by Mrs. D. N. Lee, ridden by Aubrey Fishback; third, Chelsea Ruscus, owned by Nydrie Stables; fourth, God O'War, owned and ridden by Lieut. John R. Pugh 3d.

THE HERALD-TIMES TROPHY (International military team jumping)—First, United States Army team (Lieut. Scott M. Sanford riding Don, Capt. Milo H. Matteson riding Dinger and Lieut. Franklin F. Wing riding Dakota); second, Mexican Army Horse Show team (Lieut. Jaime Zapet riding Monterrey, Lieut. Joaquim Chagoya riding Jaracho, Lieut. Ramiro Palafox riding Azteca); third, Chilean Army Horse Show team (Capt. Guillermo Castro riding Gringo, Maj. Eduardo Yanez riding Toqui, Lieut. Hernan Vigil riding Andino).

Sunport Nears 'Gansett Record

Pawtucket, R. I., Oct. 20 (AP).—John Sanford's Sunport, 5-year-old son of Sun Briar, came within one-fifth second of the track record for a mile and one-sixteenth at Narragansett Park today when he won the featured Central Falls Purse by four lengths from Mrs. Kirby Ramsey's Palamede.

The Sanford horse was timed in 1:43 3-5, and, backed heavily, paid $3.70, $2.30 and $2.30. Sunport ran the first mile in 1:37.

A. E. Silver's Sargaso set the pace for the first six furlongs, which were covered in 1:12. Sunport, ridden by Ronny Nash and carrying 113 pounds, always was close to the Argentine-bred son of Silurian and through the turn moved up nobly when called upon.

Table Tennis Tourney Planned for Nov. 1-3

A table tennis tournament for boys under 16 years of age is scheduled at the Golf and Table Tennis Center, 3330 Fourteenth street northwest, November 1, 2 and 3, by the District of Columbia Table Tennis Association.

The winner will be awarded possession for one year of the Hauchin's Cup and also permanent possession of a cup donated by the association. The runner-up will receive a medal.

Power Boat Group Re-elect Remon

New York, Oct. 20 (AP).—The American Power Boat Association re-elected John A. Remon, of Washington, as president at its annual meeting today.

C. King Brugman, of Las Angeles, senior vice president; Stanley U. Ferguson, Boston, treasurer, and Douglas C. Fonda, Orange, N. J., secretary, also were re-elected.

Hot off the grid griddle . . . G. W. Coach Bill Reinhart would have you realize that Vic Sampson is the most underrated defensive back in this area. Claims that his star runner, for a lad weighing only 165, is one of the finest defensive players he ever saw. Cites play in the recent Colorado game when Vic's quick thinking and quicker action prevented a Buffalo touchdown. Sampson, playing safety, was the only defender between a fleet Colorado back and a score when the latter broke away on a kick-off and was racing downfield behind a blocker. But Sampson feinted the interferer out of position and at the same time lunged in to bring down the ball-carrier with a beautiful tackle. Which recalls to mind Buffy Leemans, who was running wild for the Buff and Blue a few years ago. For all of his ability to go places with the ball, Leemans more impressed this observer as a defensive back than a runner. We shall never forget that time in the L. S. U. game here when Leemans somehow smashed through two-man interference to stop a State runner, who, as I recall, was Mikal, an All-American that season.

Babe Hollingberry's four straight losses at Washington State this season constitute his worst record in 13 years of coaching . . . Charles Brickley, Harvard's immortal dropkicker, has two potential successors in his sons, Charley, jr., a star halfback for Bronxville (N. Y.) High, and John, a tackle on the same team . . . For five Georgetown players this Manhattan game in New York tomorrow amounts to their playing before a home-town crowd. Joe Frank, tackle; Myron Darmohray, fullback; Jim Hill, guard; Richard Harris, end, and Tom O'Connell, tackle, all hail from the Gotham section. In addition, five regulars, Augie Lio, Jim Reichey, Jules Koshlap, Jim Castiglia and Mark Ostinato are from Jersey . . . Manhattan's head coach, Herb Kopf, played for Georgetown in the early '20s under Lou Little and then for 12 years served as assistant coach to Little at Georgetown and Columbia.

Bill Glassford, former Pitt All-American center, is a line coach at Manhattan . . . Santa Clara's victory over Arizona last week was its thirteenth straight . . . Don't be surprised if Carl Shavely, Cornell coach, whose contract expires at the end of this season, pops up with a job on the West Coast . . .

Encouraged by last week's success—fleeting through it probably will be—this column will pick some more football winners(?) It looks like a clean sweep for District elevens, with G. W. slapping Davis and Elkins tonight, G. U. preserving a clean record against Manhattan, Maryland whipping Virginia and good old American University nosing out St. John's, of Anappolis. Otherwise, Notre Dame over Carnegie Tech, Princeton over Navy in an upset, Pitt over Southern Methodist, Holy Cross over Harvard, Texas Christian over Marquette, Wisconsin over Purdue, Michigan over Yale, Vanderbilt over L. S. U., Santa Clara over Arkansas and Auburn over Georgia Tech.

'Double' Pays $753.80; Dip Wins Thrilling Stretch Battle

Runs 'Wild,' Then Beats Mr. Grundy

Pays $6.20 Ticket Camera Decides It Foul Ruled Out Minimum Brings $61

14 Win $753.80 On Laurel 'Double'

The winning combination was on Mrs. Emil Denemark's Minimum, winner of the first race, which paid $61.90, and H. Runkle's Telling Them, winner of the third, which paid 10.80.

By Walter Haight.
A Staff Correspondent.

Laurel, Md., Oct. 20.—A little bit of everything that goes to make up a day at the races was offered 8,000 fans this afternoon. From a monetary standpoint a $753.80 pay-off in the daily double was foremost, but the card was also marked by good and poor racing luck and a remarkable victory in a photo finish by a horse named Dip.

Dip, a son of Cocked Hat, was a hot tip in the sixth race of the featureless card. He went to the front on the back stretch under the guidance of Apprentice Lucas Dupps, but as he neared the stretch he suddenly ran toward the outside fence. Dupps pulled with all his might on the gelding's left rein and Dip reversed the order and ran to the inside. In doing so he bumped Royal Business and Mr. Grundy went to the front.

But the combination of Dip and Dupps was still to be heard from. Dupps straightened him out and the two set sail for Mr. Grundy Steadily Dip cut down the advantage of his rival and the pair crossed the line with the camera giving the nod to Dip.

Foul Disallowed

The game winner paid a $6.20 mutuel, but only after the stewards had gone into consultation on the merits of a foul claim lodged by Apprentice Hacker, who rode Royal Business. The stewards soon ordered the "official" light flashed and the Dip supporters collected.

The big money in the daily double was the result of the surprise victory of Mrs. Emil Denemark's Minimum in the first race. The Royal Minstrel gelding ran a strong race to pay a $61.90 mutuel and start the ball rolling on some high daily double hopes. So lightly were the chances of Minimum regarded that the daily double line-up of possible payoffs revealed that no tickets had been sold on combinations ending with Oddessa Lad, a field horse, and Crusand.

Closed with Rush

With the $1,000 sign being displayed on several horses, the field for the all-important third race went postward. As if to belie the lack of support, Oddessa Lad and Crusand ran one, two along the backstretch. In the final straightaway, however, Telling Them moved up and closed with a rush that spelled victory. Oddessa Lad stuck to second position, with Crusand third.

Telling Them paid a $10.80 mutuel, and 14 lucky holders of the monstrous daily double went down to the pay windows to collect.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MINIMUM, $61.90, $25.50, $15.50; QUE GATO, $9.10, $7.20; GOLDEN SILENCE, $7.50.

MINIMUM, off in tangle, improved position readily between horses, came to outside for racing room and wore down QUE GATO to win going away. QUE GATO, off alertly, showed repeated challenges; GOLDEN SILENCE and weakened in final test. GOLDEN SILENCE ran lapped on QUE GATO to stretch and tired gradually. FRENCH TRAP lagged at start and came with rush in final stages. BALCONY went forwardly to stretch and weakened.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000. For 2-year-olds. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place same. Went to post 2:06. Off 2:09. Winner, Mrs. S. C. Register's ch. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MARRIAGE, $5.90, $4.40, $3.30; SEABREAD, $6.40, $4.40; ROSEPILLAR, $3.40.

MARRIAGE, rushed up on inside to take slight lead over SEABREAD, disposed of latter to draw out gradually under pressure approaching wire. SEABREAD, first away, weakened gradually from top of stretch. ROSEPILLAR raced on outside and forwardly from beginning, but was held safe.

THIRD RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place same. Went to post 2:36½. Off 2:41. Winner, H. Runkle's ch. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—TELLING THEM, $10.80, $5.90, $5.30; ODDESA LAD (field), $18.40, $10.20; CRUSAND, $25.50.

TELLING THEM, allowed to settle into stride, went to outside for racing room leaving backstretch, moved up gradually and under strong handling disposed of ODDESA LAD in closing strides. CRUSAND, closest to pace to stretch, weakened gradually thereafter. CARNAGE, away slowly, was blocked while moving up leaving backstretch and closed full of run on inside. MICRO had a rough trip. LIFE GUARD, DARK MAY and FRANK BROOKE collided at first turn. SETEMUP stopped.

Daily Double, Minimum and Telling Them, Paid $753.80.

FOURTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 3:10½. Off 3:11½. Winner, Mrs. J. Two-dollar mutuels paid—FLYING MINT, $4.40, $2.80, $2.30; MOON HARVEST, $3.60, $2.60; MOONPENNY, $2.70.

FLYING MINT, steadied, went just off pace of WESTBROOKE and MOON HARVEST, took command entering stretch and drew out to win easily. MOON HARVEST ran slightly wide at first turn, disposed of WESTBROOKE to take lead approaching stretch and closed gamely, but was no match for winner. MOONPENNY, slow to find stride, improved position gradually to close with good energy. WESTBROOKE set pace under hustling tactics and tired.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,100; claiming. For 2-year-olds. Start poor from stalls. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:40½. Off 3:43. Winner, John F. Lotz's ch. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MERRY GESTURE, $11.30, $4.80, $3.80; TIN DEVIL, $4.10, $3.00; ROBESPIERRE, $3.10.

MERRY GESTURE, forwardly placed and out of trouble, circled leaders to take command nearing stretch and drew out. TIN DEVIL gained gradually throughout running under strong handling to outfinish SUN PLUME who had pace, but weakened in closing stride. SUN PLUME was blocked by GHOSTFLYER leaving gate and made up much ground. CHERACHIN improved position in closing stages. DARK WATCH was held safe. GHOSTFLYER swerved at break and was out of it before recovering. BING BONG had early speed and stopped.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:10. Off 4:11. Winner, W. J. Hirsch's b. g. (3), by Cocked Hat—The Dote. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:48 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—DIP, $6.20, $3.20, $3.10; MR. GRUNDY, $2.50, $2.30; ROYAL BUSINESS, $5.10.

DIP was rated along with VASSAR going to backstretch, took command when asked, ran out badly at stretch turn, bore into ROYAL BUSINESS and went on to wear down MR. GRUNDY approaching wire. MR. GRUNDY saved ground while improving his position and fought it out gamely. ROYAL BUSINESS was making move on outside when bumped by DIP. Hacker's claim of foul against winner was disallowed. VASSAR had early speed and stopped. QUICKER showed a dull effort. DOPLAY could not keep up. JUNGO trailed throughout.

SEVENTH RACE—One and three-sixteenths miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:41½. Off 4:42½. Winner, R. Green's b. c. (4), by Prince Pal—Anne. Trained by F. Clear. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 2:00 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PALAN, $6.10, $3.80, $3.20; PRETTYLASS, $7.20, $5.80; WOULD DARE, $4.30.

PALAN, forward factor from start, held position to stretch, responded to driving tactics and was up in concluding strides. PRETTYLASS moved up closest to pace of GREEN MELON on backstretch, took command inside eighth pole, but could not resist winner while kept to pressure. WOULD DARE moved up menacingly entering stretch on outside, but hung. GREEN MELON set good pace, but weakened right at end. ITALIAN HARRY showed a good effort. KINDACORN rallied mildly. BALAPIN was not a threat. The others were outrun.

Mrs. McNitt, Mrs. Hurley Tie in Cup Play With Net 72s

Down In Front

By Richards Vidmer

Aanyone who feels convinced that all the confusion is confined to the college football campaign, might take time out to look over the struggle for supremacy in the National Profesional League. The race for the play-off, which means the pay-off, is still wide open in both divisions and the leaders are subject to change without notice. In fact, the campaign reaches the crucial stage this Sunday, especially in the Eastern section of the circuit, and the result of two games may provide the tip-off on the final standing.

VIDMER.

One is the game in Washington, where the Redskins meet the revived Philadelphia Eagles. The other will be played at the Polo Grounds between the Giants and the Brooklyn Dodgers. If the Eagles should beat George Marshall's merry men, the winner of the Giants-Dodgers game will either take or share the league leadership. If the Redskins should beat the Eagles, the loser of the Giants-Dodger game practically will be eliminated from consideration and only the winner will hang on in a challenging position.

Which brings us down to a square built chunk of humanity known as Bull Karcis, and why the Giants consider themselves lucky that sometimes the stars begin to shine when the sun begins to set. For it is Bull Karcis, who is just about as broad as he is tall, on whom the Giants are pinning their hopes of downing the Dodgers and either moving into first place or remaining on the heels of the Redskins, depending on the way things go in Washington.

The Bull isn't exactly new to the National League. He's been around for six seasons. But it's a new Bull that has been playing in the Giants' backfield the last couple of games. Which is one reason why those two games were won, where the previous pair were lost.

Job Wanted

The Bull took an engineering course at Carnegie Tech, but when he got out there was something going on in the country that was called a depression. This was not exactly a novelty to the bull, however, for his family had been in something of a depression as long as he could remember. They had run a butcher shop in a valley of mills designated on the map as Monaca, Pa., but when the Bull finished his engineering course at Carnegie Tech, they didn't even have that. His father had died and the butcher shop with him.

Furthermore, there didn't seem to be any engineering jobs hanging around loose. He had specialized in plant management and the plants weren't exactly flourishing. So the Bull turned to professional football.

His career in the National League hasn't been, up to the current campaign, what might be called brilliant, he has run into misfortune more than once and he has been shifted around the league. Starting with Brooklyn under Benny Friedman, he stayed on with the squad when Jack McEwan took over the following year. He suffered a broken jaw and although he came back from the hospital and played against the Giants with a special helmet and a mouth full of wires, he was released by the Dodgers when Paul Schissler took command.

Three seasons had passed without the Bull making enough progress to accumulate a fortune. But he still couldn't find a job, so he caught on with the Pittsburgh Pirates in 1936 and played under Joe Bach. He continued on the Pirates' pay roll last year when Johnny Blood became coach, and finally seemed to strike his stride. He gained 511 yards during the campaign and finished third among the league's leading ground gainers.

Victim of Economy

So it was with a feeling of security that the Bull started the current campaign with the Pirates. And then another problem cropped up. Pittsburgh lost their first three games, the enthusiasm of the fans started to cool early and another depression set in.

They had contracted to pay Whizzer White the fabulous sum of $15,000 and they couldn't do anything about that. So they looked to see who was the next highest paid member of the squad. And it turned out to be the Bull. The xa fell and once more he found himself with 230 pounds of bone and muscle and nowhere to put it.

Jack Mara suggested that he put it in the Giants' backfield and immediately the Giants came out of what threatened to be a tail slide. They had lost two games in a row and were being rapidly eliminated from the running for Eastern Division honors when the Bull arrived to brace the attack. Apparently he arrived just in time, for the Giants have won their last two games, due to a great extent to the Bull's powerful line plunging, and have managed to remain within striking distance of the Redskins.

Apparently Karcis is something the Giants have needed for a long time. He isn't as flashy as the Dodgers' Ace Parker, nor as deft as the Redskins' Sammy Baugh with his passing, nor even as elusive in the open field as the Giants' town Tuffy Leemans. But when a couple of yards are needed, the Bull will make them through any line and strictly on his own power. He is the first real plunger the Giants have had since Jack McBride.

But with all his wandering and change of coaches the years inevitably have slipped along, and now, just as he is about to take his ploce with the stars the sun of his football career is setting, for he will be 30 in December, an old man on the gridiron, but perhaps someone wants a young engineer by now.

Mrs. Meckley Scores 76 For Record

Gross to Mrs. Teal Miss Scott in 2d Tie Mrs. Davy Has 79 Play-Off Set Monday

By Merrell W. Whittlesey.

Mrs. L. F. Hurley, Columbia, haking her debut among the prize winners of the Women's D. C. Golf Association tournaments, and Mrs. Arnold McNitt, Congressional, recent winner of The Washington Post Trophy, tied with net 72s yesterday in the annual play for the Times Cup at Kenwood.

The main trophy was open only to the 10 to 24 handicap entrants, but a gross prize was presented for the low handicap players and Mrs. Betty P. Meckley, Indian Spring, cracked her own course record with a 76 to win by a three-stroke margin over Mrs. Myron Davy, Congressional, who was under 80 for the first time in competition with a 79.

MRS. McNITT

Mrs. Hurley Out in 47

Mrs. Hurley was out in 47 and back in 49 for a 96, her lowest score in competition, and deducted a 22 for the 72. Mrs. McNitt, who upset the dope in The Post Tournament at Manor by becoming the first high handicap winner in its six-year history, played the back nine first in 44 and added a 47 on the front nine for a 91, and subtracted a 19 handicap for the tying 72. They will play off Monday morning at 9 a. m.

Mrs. C. S. Teal, Congressional, paired nines of 41 and 44 for an 85 and low gross among the higher handicap players. Second low net also ended in a tie between Mrs. W. L. Weible, Army and Navy, with 93-20, 73, and the defending champion, Florence Scott, Manor, 88?15, 73.

Agyle Club, new member of the group, presented its first winner in Mrs. Mary Hamilton, whose 99-24—75 won fifth low net. Five were tied for sixth, including a former winner, Mrs. E. M. Amick, Columbia, 88-12—76; Handicap Chairman Mrs. C. P. Medley, 87-11—76; Mrs. H. L. Lacey, Manor, 100-24—76; Mrs. J. H. Chadwick, Army and Navy, 95-19—76, and Mrs. George Goetzmann, Congressional, 92-16—76.

Other winners on the lengthy prize list included 77s by Mrs. R. C. Miller, Kenwood; Mrs. F. R. Keefer, Chevy Chase, and Mrs. Chester Morrill, Kenwood. The 78s concluded the winners—Mrs. T. S. Schlosberg, Army and Navy; Mrs. H. B. Stone, Manor; Mrs. J. F. Crisp, Columbia; Mrs. W. M. Moses, Army and Navy, and Mrs. Mack Myers, Manor, all deadlocked at that figure.

Low Net Winners

Low net winners among the low handicap players were Mrs. Jack Scott, Washington Post Cup finalist, and Mrs. J. O. Rhyne, Congressional, with 77s.

Mrs. Meckley played one of the finest rounds of the year in breaking her own competitive course mark by two strokes. She also holds the unofficial mark with 75. Out in 39, with six fours and three fives, she started back, 3-3, with a par on 10 and six-foot birdie putt on 11.

The former District, Maryland and Middle Atlantic titleholder hit four fives in a row and then finished in regulation 4-3-3 for a 37 and 76. She hit virtually every green in regulation figures. Mrs. Davy's 79, from 39-40, was second, while Marion Brown had 80 and Helen Dettweiler, 82.

Ted Rutley Plays Smith

In Belle Haven Finals Match Postponed Coaches to Speak

Alexandria, Oct. 20.—Two of Belle Haven Country Club's newest members will compete for its most coveted trophy Saturday, October 29, when T. Turner Smith and Ted Rutley meet in the 36-hole final of the annual club championship tournament. The match was originally scheduled for this weekend, but was postponed due to the fact that Smith will be out of the city until Monday.

Rutley moved into the final earlier this week when he smashed "Jess" Willard's hopes of winning the event for the second straight year by trimming the defending champion, 3 and 2, while Smith emerged from his semifinal match with Louis Kane with a one-hole advantage. They were forced into extra holes after winding up all even on the eighteenth, but after halving the nineteenth, Smith carded a birdie 3 on the twentieth to win.

Second round—Willliard defeated Suarks; Rutley defeated Blickle; Kane defeated Voell; Smith defeated Herring.

Athletic Director Norman Pritchard and Head Football Coach Frank Murray, of the University of Virginia, have accepted invitations to speak before a rally of Virginia alumni to be held here tomorrow evening in the Virginia Public Service Co. auditorium. The grid rally is the first step toward ormation of a local alumni chapter, which will be sponsored by the D. C. chapter.

Joe Ezar Visits Cox

Joe Ezar, the mustachioed Texan, "clown prince" of pro golf's trick shot artists, dropped in town yesterday, visited George Diffenbaugh at Kenwood and Wiffy Cox at Congressional, and with Manager Bill Farnham angled for an exhibition date at a local club. One is pending for Sunday, October 30.

Ezar, now at his top weight of 170 after dropping to 129 after a series of complication to a nose operation, is playing some of the finest golf of his life of late, and is on his way back to the high position he held among the tournament professionals.

Ezar, who has an international reputation, having played in the British Open, Italian Open, French Open and others, in addition to giving his trick shot repertoire, has added some new tricks and now can do most anything possible with clubs and golf balls.

A recent trip through the Eastern States in exhibition matches produced eight of ten scores under 70, three new course records and four scores that tied previous marks, including a 63. The trick shot artist is booking exhibitions for the winter tour, Florida to California, and back again through the Carolinas, Virginia, Maryland and possibly the District, for next spring.

Joe last appeared here in the National Capital Open at Kenwood where he finished eighth. He will be off today for Richmond, and other exhibitions through the State, including one at Virginia Beach. If proper arrangements can be made, he will be back here next Sunday.

G. W. Cubs Win, 19 to 7

Alexandria, Oct. 20.—The George Washington High School Cubs scored in the first, third and fourth quarters to defeat Episcopal High School's 125-pounders, 19-7, on the losers' field here today. It was the season's first game for the public school gridmen.

Blocked kicks were responsible for two of the winners' touchdowns, while a recovered fumble paved the way for the third. Anderson scored in the first quarter after an Episcopal punt had been blocked; Pallant went over from the 8-yard stripe following an Episcopal fumble, while Parker ran 25 yards to score after recovering a blocked kick.

Jim Londos Pins Bruns

Lee Yat Wing Stars Dr. Len Hall Wins Chief Wolf Lost

Former World's Heavyweight Champion Jim Londos was in old time form last night as he tossed Bobby Bruns in 58 minutes of their wrestling feature at Turner's Arena, before a capacity house.

Lee Yet Wing, first Chinaman to appear on local mats, was the iron man of the preliminaries, first throwing Joe Chludenski in 7 minutes with a crotch hold and body slam and then losing to George Zaharias in 8 minutes with a body press and head locks.

Chief Little Wolf was originally scheduled to wrestle Zaharias, who was substituting for "Dropkick" Murphy, but the Chief performed the almost impossible feat of gettitng lost between here and Frederick, Md., and failed to show up, so to present the full card Lee Yat Wing substituted.

The Golden Terror, mask and all, topped Sammy Menecher in 18½ minutes with a body press, while Dr. Len Hall threw Walter Percy with a crotch hold and knee lock.

The weekly draw, there's one on every program, was between Al Baksh and Jim Hayes, who went the regulation preliminary distance of 30 minutes.

Empire Feature To Rifted Clouds

Empire City Racetrack, N. Y., Oct. 20 (AP).—Rifted Clouds, a 4-year-old filly that now holds on better than she used to, got up just in time to drop her nose down in front in the photo finish of the Winsted (class "D" Handicap, short six-furlong feature of the card here this hazy afternoon. The daughter of Insco, flying the Kansas City silks of Herbert M. Woolf's Woolford Farm, edged out J. S. Riley's even money favorite, Bartolozzi, with Caroll Bierman outfinishing Johnny Longden in the bitter drive. Shoulder Arms, representing Henry Lustig's Longchamps Farms, was third, a length away.

Bartolozzi was making the third start of his career. He won a maiden race at Jamaica in such impressive fashion that the talent considered him much the best of today's field. Rifted Clouds also won her previous start, which was in class "D" competition. The filly had little backing on this occasion, paying 7 to 1. She finished in 1:09 flat under 119 pounds.

Babe Ruth Turns His Back On Game He Loved So Well

Says He's Through With National Pastime Plans Hunting and Fishing for Near Future Then Golf and a Life of Easy Living

By the Associated Press.

New York, Oct. 20.—To all intents and purposes, Babe Ruth is through with baseball—and vice versa (at least for the time being).

You hear talk and rumors that the big fellow quit his coaching job with the Brooklyn Dodgers to land another spot, possibly a managerial berth in the American Association. But right now you can take the Babe's word for it, he has no immediate prospects of a return to the game he pulled to million dollar heights, and which did the same for him.

"Not me," he said today. "There's nothing to those reports.

"All I'm interested in these days is hunting and fishing and maybe some more golf. I'm going to do all the things a young guy does to keep from growing old."

Of course, there's always the possibility that when the major and minor meetings roll 'round, or when the spring arrives with its call to another diamond campaign, the Babe may heed the "call of the wild." Acting on the theory that where there's smoke there's fire, he might land in Milwaukee, as has been hinted, or in Montreal, where Rabbit Maranville was fired last year, or it is even conceivable the big leagues can find a spot for the Bam.

He's Had Offers

"I've had some offers—sure," he explained. "But they were nothing I wanted. You know, I don't have to worry about where my next meal is coming from, so I can take what I want."

It was definite weeks ago that the Babe wouldn't be back with Brooklyn next year. He and Lippy Leo Durocher, the Dodgers' new manager, weren't exactly Damon and Pythias in one or two clubhouse sessions. So when Lippy Leo was apprised of his appointment to succeed "Boiling Boily" Grimes (and most baseball men tell you this was long before Larry MacPhail was willing to admit it to the general public), the Babe knew he and the Daffiness Boys were parting company.

Plans Trip to Wilds

It was then he received an offer or two from the minors, offers he never had any intention of taking, because the Babe is definitely big time. At the moment, although he still is disappointed over his inability to get back into the game he loves, he's content to spend his time with the other sports he enjoys.

First off, he's planning a hunting-fishing trip to begin in the next couple of weeks. After that, he'll dust off the golf clubs he packed away when the Dodgers summoned him from retirement last summer and get back into the game he regards as No. 2 on the sports list.

In that way, he'll always be in shape to answer anything that may turn up in a baseball way next spring.

Virginians In Finals

Lillian Wood Wins Plays Mrs. Dashiell Title Round Today

Richmond, Va., Oct. 20 (AP).—Miss Lillian Wood and Mrs. Grayson Dashiell, playing their home James River course of the Country Club of Virginia, won closely contested matches today to advance into tomorrow's final round of the fifteenth annual Virginia Women's Golf Tournament.

Mrs. Dashiell triumphed over Mrs. Clara Priddy, also a Richmonder and 1930 State champion, one up at the twentieth. Mrs. Priddy rounded the turn with a two-up lead bu Mrs. Dashiell took advantage of her opponent's sixes at the twelfth and thirteenth to even the match, and then kept pace with the former titleholder until the second extra holes.

Miss Wood turned in an 85 card, 8 over women's par, the best of the semifinalists, to defeat Mrs. R. C. Welton, Richmond, two up. Miss Wood took a four-up lead early on the out-nine, and although Mrs. Welton played nicely thereafter she was able to win but two holes from her long-hitting, younger rival.

Devitt Meets Mount Frosh

D. C. Team Off Today Is in Good Shape Game at Emmitsburg

The Devitt School footbal team, fresh from their crushing 26-to-0 win over the Western Maryland Freshmen, are seeking new freshman worlds to conquer tomorrow. The Washington lads will travel to Emmitsburg to engage the frosh of Mount St. Mary's. The game will start at 2:30.

Devitt will start the same line-up that did so well at Western Maryland. Punchy Kemp, a former center, will perform the signal-calling job, and his place in the line will be filled by Johnny Stevens, former Woodrow Wilson player.

Jimmy Vermillion, shifty running back, will not start. He will be held in reserve, as he has been al season. Vermillion has shown a world of promise this year, as his 75-yard scoring trek against the young Terrors will attest. He is still inexperienced, however, and has a lot to learn. This is his first season in football.

Leo Rodak Arrives For Fight

Nate Lewis Peeved Dislikes N.B.A.Action Airs Fistic Views Miller Due Today

By Lewis F. Atchison.

Nate Lewis, natty veteran of the warped nose and muffin-ears industry, puffed delicately at his long, slender cheroot yesterday and admitted he is a bit peeved at the National Boxing Association for its anemic attitude in the current featherweight mixup.

One of the few 20-karat veterans still in circulation, Mr. Lewis is handling the affairs of Leo Rodak, the N. B. A.'s top-ranking 126-pounder, who boxes Fdeddy Miller Monday night at the arena in a 15-round bout. The pair arrived yesterday to complete training for the fight.

Critically surveying the gray ash of his firecracker, Natty Nathan began his quiet, impassionate but logical tirade by asking if the N. B. A. hadn't ordered Archibald and Rodak to box for the title vacated by Hendy Armstrong? It had, his listeners agreed.

Refused Fight

"Why then," Lewis continued, "doesn't the N. B. A. recognize the winner of this fight between my boy and Miller as champion? Archibald plainly showed he has no right to the title by refusing to box Rodak and taking instead Belloise, whom he previously had defeated here in Washington.

"The National Boxing Association is losing prestige by refusing to name the winner of this bout champion. It ranks Rodak first on its list and Miller second, so if Archibald runs out on a fight with Rodak—which is what he actually did—it stands to reason that he must be afraid of meeting him.

"As the matter now stands Archibald can pass himself off as champion in future bouts—even though he is champion in only one State. He can hold that title indefinitely by boxing and beating the so-called leading contenders. He can pick anybody without ever meeting Rodak or Miller.

"If the N. B. A. would declare the winner of this fight its champion, it would carry more weight than New York's championship. The N. B. A. is the governing body of the sport in 37 States in this country, and its champion would be recognized in England, France, Germany, Italy and Australia. But it is losing face by its backwardness in the matter. The boxers, it seems, are beginning to run the N. B. A., and any organization that permits that can't last long. You don't think Archibald would dare defy the New York commission, do you? Well, the N. B. A., with its national and international setup, should carry more weight than the New York body."

Having rid himself of his highly indignant thoughts on this matter, Lewis turend to the actual fight and predicted a victory for Rodak, which, of course, was not surprising.

"But," he added, "Leo will be at a disadvantage boxing a southpaw. iller likes to stand off and punch, like Rodak, so my fighter will rave to get in close to get his shots in. In a word, he's got to change his whole style of fighting for this one bout. But it's worth it. He'll do it, and he'll win."

Gave Miller Start

Lewis recalled giving Miller his first start in Chicago when he was matchmaker for the Chicago Stadium. Pete Reilly, Miller's manager, was so anxious to show his fighter in the Windy City he accepted a six-round bout, and it proved to be a smart move. Freddy eDfeated Eddie Shea, then one of the best at the weight, and so impressed Lewis and the audience he got another bout two weeks later.

I was a 15-round championship scrap with Tommie Paul, and Miller won the title, which happened to be the N. B. A.'s copyrighted version.

Hoyas Leave This Morning For New York

Under the supervision of Coach Jack Hagerty, the Hoya squad will leave for New York this morning. Upon arrival the gridders will be taken to Yankee Stadium for a light workout.

The undefeated Hoyas, with 117 points scored against three tune-up opponents, will get their first major test with Manhattan Saturday. Coach Hagerty feels optimistic about his team's chances, but he is unwilling to make any predictions.

"The boys want to win very much, and they are going in there to fight, but it's a sophomore team that is liable to do most anything. They haven't begun to make the plays really click so far, and the blocking needs polishing, but when they've done that, there won't be many teams capable of stopping them."

Tackles—Frank, Fullilove, Nealon, O'Connell, Robertson and Kowalski.

Center — Reichey, Riofski and Matuza.

Backs—Darmohray, Moulin, Castiglia, Koshlap, Ghecas, Mellendeck, McFadden, McNicol, Meglen, Spencer and Wychunas.

Terps Hoping Brown Returns For Next Game

Maryland is hoping to have Big Bob Brown, regular tackle, in the lineup against Virginia at College Park tomorrow, and if he is able to play, he would add greatly to the long-shot chances of the Terps.

He was hurt in the Syracuse game on October 8 and had the injury aggravated by playing a few minutes in the Western Maryland tilt last Saturday. Earlier in the week he appeared definitely out, but he ran through signals yesterday in a fashion that gave hope for his return against the Cavaliers. His presence would boost both Maryland's attack and defense.

Maryland lost most of its backfield power when Jim Meade and Persh Mondorff, 190-pounders, went out for the season and now has to bank on Charley Weidinger's fine passing and the speed of its comparatively light ball carriers, such as Joe Murphy and Joe Devlin. Virginia, on the other hand, packs power, speed and passing in a wealth of backs behind a fine line that also has plenty of replacements.

The Terps put in a long drill yesterday, giving the attack and defense about equal attention. The tune-up today will consist of running through signals and polishing defensive tactics.

Virginia Is Ready For Terp Game

Charlottesville, Va., Oct. 20 (AP).—Virginia completed preparations for renewal of a 20-year football rivalry with Maryland in a final heavy workout today in which Coach Frank Murray diverted more time to pass defense.

A squad of 35 players wil depart tomorrow after a short workout for an overnight stay in Washington. Virginia coaches said the week's practices showed the team improving in some phases of work and generally holding a good edge.

Navy 'B' Squad In Action Today

Annapolis, Oct. 20 (AP).—The boys who play football for fun, sans the adulation of crowds, glory in headlines and lasting fame will have their innings tomorrow when the Navy "B" squad tangles with hte Princeton "B" team here.

The workhorses who take a pounding all season long while the varsity polishes its plays in scrimmage, will meet in a prelude to the main event Saturday at Baltimore when the Middies and Princeton play.

The Navy Bees lost by a touchdown to the Yale sub-varsity Saturday at New Haven.

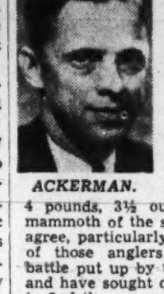
On Fishing

One of the oldest fishing records on the books is that of Perca flavescens—yellow perch to most of us, but variously called raccoon, ringed, river and striped, as well as black, in Maryland, where it is heavily stocked for commercial propagation.



ACKERMAN.

Caught in May of 1865, near Bordentown, N. J., this record perch weighed 4 pounds, 3½ ounces. Truly a mammoth of the species, you will agree, particularly if you are one of those anglers who like the battle put up by these gamesters, and have sought out their haunts, to find the average weight is only about a pound.

Would it be surprising to learn that only last season, and in waters almost in the shadow of the Capitol, two were taken that were they weighed when freshly caught, would probably have beaten this record of our forefathers. That already this season, barely under way, Commodore Louis Johnston has taken one of 2¾ pounds.

And it is not only in this particular place we have in mind, Mattawoman Creek, that these delicious table fish are to be found in large numbers, but in every creek and river down the Eastern Shore of the Potomac.

Whether the fact that Mattawoman is just about on the edge of salt water, has anything to do with the size, is more than we are able to say. Or is it due to the great numbers of blue crabs, that in seasons of normal or subnormal rainfall, actually take possession of the lower part of the creek and cove.

Our thought in this fishing is, in another week or two the crabs will be gone, and worth trying any time up to and through cold weather. If some angler should happen to hang on to a big one, by all means have a record made of the weight.

In no way particular as to bait—worms, minnows, insects, grubs, the special tidbit to which they seem most partial in Mattawoman is the tiny sunfish known as a tobacco box. They may usually be obtained close by, but don't depend solely upon this—it is better to play safe and take along a few bloodworms.

Boats may be had for the customary fee for the day from Ray at the picnic grounds—and in addition much pertinent information as to the best places to fish.

Route No. 224, by way of Anacostia, to Mason Springs. From there follow the markers to Sweden Point.

But don't pass up other likely places down this shore that offer fishing just as good, or better. There is Piscataway, above, Chicamuxen and Dumfoundlin Bay just below, as well as Nanjemoy Creek and the Port Tobacco River. Boats obtainable on most, and on any of them, good stretches scarcely ever fished except by the anglers of the neighborhood.

Reports of conditions in the Virginia counties of Nansemond and Norfolk in regard to bear are few and far between. Only a few days old to be sure, this earliest of big games seasons anywhere in this area, yet the past several years the bags have not seemed to add up to those of hunting seasons years back.

Very likely the primary reason why many local nimrods expect to journey to the Pisgah National Forest in western North Carolina next month for the supervised bear hunts.

Don't, from the word supervised, get the idea that these hunts are for sissies, for such would be far from the true aspect of the conditions met in this wild area. It takes real men to follow the guides in a country that has changed hardly an iota since time began.

Nine separate hunts will be staged, each of two days duration, under the North Carolina Conservation Department and the United States Forest Service. Dates for Sherwood Forest are November 1, 2, 18, 19 and December 5, 6. Mount Mitchell Forest, November 4, 5, 21, 22, and December 9, 10, and Daniel Boone Forest, November 7, 8, 24, 25 and December 12, 13. Each of the hunts will be limited to 25 hunters.

Hunters who journey each year to the Adirondacks and Catskill sections of New York State might note that in the former 14 counties are closed to hunting on account of the fire hazard, while 4, including Sullivan, are closed in the latter.

But if hunters think that is tough, how about Massachusetts, where the fire hazard is so great from the recent storm that only owners, their agents or tenants can enter the woods.

All hunting and fishing seasons are closed, with the exception of hunting on coastal water and salt marshes.

The re-election last night of Talbot Denmead to the presidency of Maryland Game and Fish Protection Association, augurs well for the hope of many that this winter will see the passage of the proposed black bass bill in the Maryland Legislature.

The Bethesda-Chevy Chase Chapter, Izaak Walton League, elected as new officcers, Fred Ringler, treasurer; Ted Vollten, secretary; Elmer E. Huffer, vice president, and Abner Roe, who was chairman of the committee that accomplished so much in the way of the correction of pollution in the Potomac watershed this summer, as president.

Navy Soccer Game

Annapolis, Oct. 20 (AP).—Navy's soccer football team will try to avenge what happened to their American football shipmates at New Haven last Saturday when they take on the Yale University soccer team tomorrow. The Navy kick-and-run artists won an easy 3-0 victory over Lafayette College last week in their only start this year.

Four Cities Seeking A. A. U. Ice Hockey

New York, Oct. 20 (AP).—Bids have been received from four cities—Boston, New Haven, Brooklyn and Clinton, N. Y.—for the National A. A. U. ice hockey championships in March, Frederick W. Rubien, chairman of the committee, announced today.

Prior to the Nationals the A. A. U. will select a team, probably an all-star combination, to represent the United States in the world championships early in February in Switzerland. The players are expected to return in time for the Nationals.

W. U. Gets Break, General Releases Ace

Sioux City, Iowa, Oct. 20 (AP).—Western Union College is going to have a quarterback for its homecoming football game with York College Saturday after all.

Adjt. Gen. Charles H. Grahl, commanding the Iowa National Guard in the Swift & Co. strike, said he would permit four Western Union players who are members of the guard to return to Le Mars, Iowa, for the game.

All three of Western Union's quarterbacks, including Russell Null, ace of the backfield, and a lineman came here with the Le Mars detachment.

Bank Women Will Study Personality

Chapter Sets Program Lectures by Experts Two Months' Course

By Thomas M. Cahill.

An interesting and informative series of group meetings having to do with the general topic "Your Personality and Mine," has been arranged by the Women's Committee of Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking. These conferences will be held every Wednesday evening beginning October 26, and continuing through November and December. Only women members of the institute are eligible to attend and they may register for the sessions through the chapter consuls at their respective banks or with members of the women's committee.

Arrangements for these meetings have been prepared by Mrs. Constance D. Jones of Riggs National Bank, who has been assisted by Miss Elizabeth Morford, also of Riggs National Bank; Miss Katherine McCalmont, of W. B. Hibbs & Co., and Mrs. Elizabeth Rowzee, of Hamilton National Bank.

The program will consist of lectures by notable persons in Washington who are qualified to conduct a study of the development of personality and customer relations. Following each lecture there will be a discussion in which those in attendance will be invited to participate.

The course as tentatively outlined includes such subjects as: "The Foundation of Charm and Poise," "Broadening your Cultural Outlook," "Mental Attitudes," "Importance of Interest in Current Events," "Paging Popularity," "The Art of Attractively Convincing People," "Rules for Ambitious Workers and Elements of Personality," and "Style Smartness and Appropriateness of Costume."

Speakers

These topics will be presented by qualified speakers including Mrs. Agnes McCall Parker, newspaper columnist; Mrs. Isabel Farrington, of the Chevy Chase School; Miss Marjorie Webster, president, The Marjorie Webster Schools, Inc.; Dr. Elmer Lewis Kayser, dean of university students, George Washington University; Miss Kathryn Heath, executive secretary of the dean of women's division, National Educational Association, and a teacher from the Abbott School of Fine and Commercial Arts. The meetings will be held in the American Institute of Banking chapter rooms in the Bond Building, at Fourteenth street and New York avenue northwest.

D. C. Bankers

Members of the District of Columbia Bankers Association, at their regular fall meeting this week, voted to amend the declaration, constitution and by-laws of the association to the effect that applications for associate membership might be received and considered by the Council of Administration of the association. This action was taken in view of the interest shown by outlying banks in the metropolitan area to become associate members of the District bankers association.

At this meeting, insignia were presented to the following section chairmen of the association: Gerald E. Keene, chairman of the auditors' section and assistant cashier of Second National Bank; J. Eliot Moran, chairman of the fiduciaries section and an assistant trust officer of American Security & Trust Co.; and P. C. Brady, chairman of the safe deposit section and an assistant treasurer of American Security & Trust Co. The ceremony of presentation of insignias to the section chairmen was initiated in the administrative year 1934-1935 as an expression of appreciation of the association for the work the chairmen accomplished during their terms of office.

Phoenix Mutual Life

During the first nine months of this year, the Phoenix Mutual Life Insurance Co. of Hartford, Conn., reports an increase of $6,394,000 in insurance in force, bringing the total in this respect to an all-time high of $651,000,000, according to L. H. Riggles, of the local agency. During this period assets have gained $9,000,000 and now stand at the high point of $233,243,000.

Income from investments likewise shows an increase—$7,099,956, as compared with $6,860,176 in 1937, and reserves of the company, established for policyholders, now total almost $22,000,000. Although new insurance paid for is below that of last year, October shows an upturn, and the company believes that the final three months will show a decided improvement in this respect.

According to Mr. Riggles, an important factor in the gain in insurance in force has been the unique agency plan adopted by the Phoenix Mutual approximately 20 years ago. Those who originated the plan believed that carefully selected full-time men, properly trained, would automatically bring quality of business. This belief has been justified by results in the past few years.

In 1937 only 4.2 per cent of the insurance in force at the beginning of the year was lapsed or surrendered by policyholders. This is one of the lowest percentages attained by any company in the United States or Canada. While the rate is moderately higher this year, present indications are that the 1938 record will again place the company among the leaders in this respect.

Lincoln Service Corporation

Charles Delmar, president of Lincoln Service Corporation, said yesterday that for the nine months ended September 30 the net earnings show an increase of 30 per cent plus as compared with the like period of 1937. These figures indicate that the preferred stock dividend is being earned 3.7 times.

World's Gold 55% Here

By the Associated Press.

The Treasury disclosed yesterday that its gold holdings were above $14,000,000,000—more than 55 per cent of all the monetary gold in the world.

America's holdings grew enormously during the European war crisis, when foreigners sent gold here to buy dollar credits in which to invest their wealth for safe keeping. Since September 1, the Treasury has acquired $872,768,635 worth of the metal, more than during any similar period in history.

Most of the Treasury gold has been converted into cash by the issuance of paper currency against the metal. However, the department has retained $626,778,907 in an unobligated fund from which it could supply foreigners who decide to take their money home.

Total 23.8 Billion

The latest Federal Reserve Board estimate of the world's monetary gold stocks was $23,803,000,000, of which England and France each had about $2,500,000,000 and Holland had about $1,000,000,000. The total European gold stock just before the war crisis was estimated at $9,114,000,000. These figures do not include substantial hoards by private persons.

Excess Reserves At 2-Year Peak

By the Associated Press.

The Federal Reserve Board said yesterday that the lendable excess reserves of the Nation's banks rose to a two-year high of $3,270,000,000 in the week ended October 19.

The total of idle money was $220,000,000 larger than in the preceding week, due to Treasury spending and Treasury purchases of foreign gold.

Corn Leads Brisk Rise In Grain Pit

Futures 1-1½c Up Wheat Also Gains Speculative Buying

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Oct. 20.—Lively upturns of corn and wheat values, 1⅜ cents a bushel maximum, took place today, starting with a sudden outburst of speculative buying of corn.

Eastern interests led the buying, with previous sellers actively reversing their market position. Talk was current that a noted individual trader who has had a sensationally checkered career both in grains and securities, was operating on a large scale in corn.

At the close, Chicago corn futures were 1 cent to 1½ higher compared with yesterday's finish; December, 46-46⅛; May, 49¼-49⅜. Wheat, ⅝-1¼ up, December, 65⅝-65¾; May, 67½-67⅞. Oats, ⅜-½ advanced. Rye showed ⅞-1⅛ bulge, and provisions 10 to 15 cents climb.

Libby-Owens-Ford Adds 660 Workers

Toledo, Oct. 20 (AP).—John D. Biggers, president of Libby-Owens-Ford Glass Co., today announced 660 workers had been rehired in the company's laminated glass plants here and in Ottawa, Ill. Since August 1, the company has recalled 2,360 workers, he said.

Orders from automobile plants for glass were coming "even better than anticipated," Biggers added, pointing out increases of 5 to 2o per cent per car in glass used in the new 1939 models had been a factor in the stepping up of operations.

Prices Work Higher in Late Trading Closings Near Best for Session Volume Recedes From Recent Activity

New York, Oct. 20.—Stocks edged forward enough in late dealings to eliminate early irregularity and the close was near the best of the session, up 0.42 point in the composite average. Trading was dull in comparison with recent days and the late rise was not of sufficient magnitude to convince the skeptical that we have eliminated the possibility of a sharp correction from this level. The list gave the impression of being tired and there was little follow-through displayed by the leaders on the rallies. Activity was concentrated on the lower priced shares, the features of the day being Radio Corporation and the amusement group.

Oils enjoyed another day of modest recovery after the period of weakness which accompanied the recent price cutting in crude and gasoline and the prospect of additional regulation in this industry was given the blessing of President Roosevelt, at his press conference in Hyde Park.

The lot of the oil companies is not a happy one, faced as they are with actual suits under the anti-trust laws charging them with conspiring to fix prices and also faced with the prospect that they will be called upon to play a leading role in the monopoly inquiry.

Now from Hyde Park they are assailed for their recent price cutting. Ernest O. Thompson, chairman of the six-State oil compact commission, who visited the President yesterday and presumably was responsible for securing from the Chief Executive the statement that the President favors extension of regulation, charged that for the oil companies to slash prices at a time when production is stabilized is a blow below the belt. Which leaves the oil companies in an untenable position, for if they maintain prices they are prosecuted under the anti-trust laws and threatened under the monopoly inquiry; while if they cut prices in response to the laws of supply and demand they are threatened with extended outside regulation. It is a case of being damned if they do and damned if they don't.

Ohio and Pure Oils Advance

Ohio Oil and Pure Oil were the leaders in this group of stocks today, advancing ¾ and 1 point respectively. Texas jumped 2 and there was good support for the Standards of New Jersey and California, Socony, Barnsdall, Phillips and Amerada.

Radio was the day's stellar performer, coming out on the tape at times in strings of 20,000 shares and numerous individual blocks of 5,000 shares. Its total volume for the day was 136,700 shares which carried it up a point to close at a new high of 8¾. Plans for television development were announced late in the day and doubtless played some part in the wave of buying, even though the company's activities in this field have been known for some time.

Other amusement shares, most of which are in the lower price category, followed along after Radio, the next most active being Warner Pictures and Paramount, which added fractions. Twentieth Century-Fox and R. K. O. also were well supported.

Foreign exchange dealings claimed the attention of the financial district again today after holding to a fairly regular course since the aftermath of the Czechoslovakian crisis. The pound sterling, which had advanced fairly sharply for three consecutive days, declined even more sharply today and closed off 2¾ cents. It was moderately active on the decline.

Ratio to total volume: 15 stocks, 29.8 per cent.

Among the commodities, corn led dealings in the grain markets. Scarcity of offerings and persistent efforts at Washington to aid agricultural prices contributed to the buying, corn closing up 1 to 1½ cents. Wheat was up ⅝ to 1¼ cents. Wall Street buying was given the credit for a sharp bulge in cotton, amounting to 12 to 17 points.

Alleghany Bonds Up

Listed bond trading was quiet today save for a few bright spots, such as Alleghany Corporation issues. The bonds of that rail holding concern jumped 2 to 8 points on the belief that more of the debt will be retired and that additional funds may be received from the recent transaction in Chesapeake & Ohio preferred. Other speculative bonds were irregular, with gains outnumbering the losses. High grade investment isues were steady, with attention again diverted from the list to the new issues market. Foreign dollar bonds were dull. Turnover in all issues was $6,370,000.

Alleghany Corporation bonds were only moderately active, but as the securities apparently were in poor supply the gains were marked. Secondary carrier liens were dull, with most movements fractional. The default rails also held close to previous levels. Utility holding company bonds showed a little strength and industrial convertibles also were firm. Local traction bonds drifted lower and commodity issues were neglected.

United States Treasury securities were in supply, but the losses were restricted to a few thirty-seconds of a point. Guaranteed bonds of the Farm and Home Corporations also suffered from neglect. Institutional buyers preferred to take on more corporate obligations, while terms are awaited on the new $300,000,000 RFC refunding. Best grade utility, railroad and industrial bonds were well maintained.

Peruvian bonds remained the most active issues of the foreign group, but the tone was uncertain. Other Latin-American default issues were dull, and a similar situation prevailed among European default bonds. The Japanese and Italian groups did a little better. Best grade Scandinavian, Australian and Canadian bonds held to previous levels.

Fairless Sees Business Upturn

Detroit, Oct. 20 (AP).—Benjamin F. Fairless, president of the United States Steel Corporation, said tonight the business outlook for the near future "holds promise of further improvement."

Fairless addressed the banquet of the American Association for Metals, in convention here.

"There is evidence," Fairless said, "carloadings have been increasing, recently making a new peak for the year. Automobile output has risen by a substantial percentage as the automotive industry enters its new season. Various, though not all, industries are contributing reports and forecasts which offer words of cheer."

Brokers' Loans Rise $19,000,000 in Week

By the Associated Press.

The Federal Reserve Board reported yesterday that last week's loans to brokers and dealers on securities held by reporting member banks in New York City totaled $532,000,000. The week ended Wednesday and the total represented an increase of $19,000,000 when compared with the previous week.

Loans for the corresponding week a year ago totaled $929,000,000.

Engineering Awards 59% Over Year Ago

New York, Oct. 20 (AP).—Engineering construction awards for the week ended Tuesday amounted to $65,224,000, up 59 per cent over the corresponding week last year, the Engineering News-Record reported today. This is the fourteenth consecutive week in which construction volume has exceeded its comparable 1937 level.

Cumulative construction awards for 42 weeks of 1938 to date total $2,182,024,000, an increase of 8.6 per cent over volume for the corresponding period of last year.

Clearings For Week Year's Top

Total 6.401 Billion 2.7% Under Year Ago 0.5% Under Year Ago

By the Associated Press.

New York, Oct. 20.—The record of bank transactions for the latest week continued favorable, with the total for the country only slightly under that for the same 1937 period and individual outside cities showing much smaller declines from a year ago than for some time past, Dun & Bradstreet reported today. This week's clearings, moreover, were the largest for any week this year.

Total clearings for 22 leading cities for the week ended October 19 amounted to $6,401,242,000, against $6,430,932,000 for the like week a year ago. A similar comparison for the week previous revealed a rise of 2.8 per cent, which marked the first year-to-year increase in 19 weeks.

Turnover at New York went above the 1937 figure for the third successive week, the respective totals being $3,960,766,000 and $3,833,248,000, representing a gain of 3.4 per cent. Aggregate for 21 cities outside of New York was $2,440,476,000, against $2,598,694,000 last year, giving a loss of 6.1 per cent, the smallest decline recorded so far this year.

Hupp Motor Reduces Prices

Detroit, Oct. 20 (AP).—W. A. MacDonald, vice president in charge of sales for the Hupp Motor Car Corp., today announced price reductions ranging from $50 to $160 on 1939 model Hupp automobiles from comparable 1938 models.

Prices of the corporation's new 115-inch wheelbase six cylinder line will be announced later, MacDonald said.

Falls Church Meeting Scans Budget Monday

Revenues Increase
Town Has Balance
Tax Rate to Stand

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Falls Church 2088-M.

The Falls Church Town Council will hold a public meeting Monday at 8 p. m. in the town hall to consider the proposed budget for the next fiscal year.

The budget proposed by the council finance committee estimates revenues at $43,770.72, which is an increase of $2,277.02 over last year. The revenues include $19,550 in local taxes; $5,764.79 collection of delinquent taxes; $980 taxes on bank stock and dogs; $10,285.83 from fines, permit fees, refunds on gasoline taxes and the town's share of the State liquor profits. The balance on hand at the beginning of the fiscal year was $4,243.65.

Expenditures Cut

The expenditures for the coming year are estimated to be $42,530.69. Administration will cost $7,002, a decrease of $3,594 over last year; the road boards fund was set at $10,000, which is $1,600 less than last year. The finance committee pointed out that the funds for road construction will be as great this year as last because of a $2,000 expenditure last year for a tractor and road grader.

Other estimated disbursements are: $10,833.35 for special accounts including town schools, the town library, street and traffic lights, shade trees and tax adjustments; $5,880 for police department; $2,035 for collection of trash and garbage; $1,235 for fire protection, and $5,545.34 for school bond indebtedness.

The budget as prepared will not call for any increase in the local tax rate, town officials state. The rate last year was 10 cents for fire protection, 35 cents for school bonds and $1.40 for general expenses.

400-Acre Woods Fire Quelled in Panhandle

Charleston, W. Va., Oct. 20 (AP).—A 400-acre forest fire, the largest of the season, was brought under control on Ice Mountain in the eastern Panhandle early today while rains throughout the rest of the State alleviated the hazardous fire situation.

The Ice Mountain blaze, one of four which broke out late yesterday in the area, brought 140 laborers, rangers and fire observers from their beds.

Colored Youth Admits Robbing 30 Homes

Charged yesterday with unlawful entry in six instances, a 16-year-old colored youth admitted to sneaking into 30 homes and stealing from purses in the Columbia Heights section.

Private D. F. Donoghue, of the Tenth Precinct, arrested the youth Tuesday. He is being held at the Receiving Home pending Juvenile Court action.

Grandmother, 81, Shot; Mistaken for Burglar

Hamer Land, of Vivian, La., was spending last night at the home of his grandmother, Mrs. Frances Darnell, of Cass County, Texas.

It turned cool and Mrs. Darnell went to Land's room to see that he was coverel warmly. The youth mistook her for a burglar and shot her in the head.

Water Shortage Closes School In Beltsville

Hauled in Tanks
Caused by Drought
Another Affected

One Prince Georges County school has been closed temporarily because of a water shortage, and others are kept open only because water is hauled to them in tanks, it was stated yesterday by Mrs. H. Edna Pitts, member of the county board of education.

Arrangements have been made to deepen the well and install a new pump at the Beltsville, Md., school, which was forced to close because of the droughtlike conditions which have been prevailing, Mrs. Pitts said.

A contributing factor in the drain on school water supplies was the increased enrollment in county schools this year. One of the most seriously affected schools is that at Surrattsville, though a new well was dug there when the new building was completed recently.

Schools in the metropolitan area of Prince Georges County are not affected by the water shortage, it was explained. These buildings receive water from the mains of the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission. The drought conditions are affecting only some of the smaller rural schools which are served by their own wells.

The Sanitary Commission itself has felt the effect of the lack of rainfall, it was revealed yesterday by Harry Hall, chief engineer of the commission. Though the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission has a large reservoir on the Northwest Branch, at Burnt Mills, Md., the commission has opened its connections with Washington mains as a precautionary measure.

Democrats to Speak

Democratic candidates for county offices in Prince Georges County will begin on Monday two weeks of uninterrupted campaigning throughout the county, it was announced last night by Frank B. Smith, secretary of the county State central committee.

The candidates are scheduled to speak every week night at at least one, and often two, political rallies, in a campaign which, will close on November 5, only three days before elections. Each of the meetings will be conducted by the district Democratic leader, and each will open at 8 p. m., Smith said.

The schedule of meetings follows: Monday, Church Hall, Piscataway; Tuesday, Community Hall, Suitland; Wednesday, Odd Fellows Hall, Capitol Heights, and Seat Pleasant Fire House; Thursday, Democratic Headquarters, Brentwood; next Friday, Bowie; next Saturday, Clinton; October 31, Oxon Hill.

On November 1 meetings will be held simultaneously at Holbrook's auditorium, Brentwood, and Parish Hall, Bladensburg; November 2, at Grange Hall, Beltsville, and Fireman's Hall, Branchville; November 3, Parish Hall, Baden; November 4, Laurel, and November 5, Riverdale Fire House, and at Ardmore.

Police Drive on Cyclists

Prince Georges County police will begin arrests tomorrow, after sundown, of all cyclists in the metropolitan area of the county who ride without lights, Sergt. Ralph W. Brown, commanding the Hyattsville County Police Sub-Station stated last night.

The order was issued, Sergt. Brown said, because of recent accidents in which bicycle riders have been involved. The officer revealed he had narrowly missed striking a bicyclist with his scout car Wednesday night.

The police order will also include prohibition of bicycles on sidewalks.

Howard Holmes, Hyattsville municipal police chief, stated last night that his force would co-operate with county officers in enforcement of the order. The cooperation of police officers in other towns is also expected.

High Speed Transportation

High speed transportation in Washington and its environs will be discussed Monday before the Prince Georges Chamber of Commerce by Waldo L. Schmitt, of the Smithsonian Institution.

Schmitt, who has been studying transportation problems in the Capital area for several years, will outline a plan for belt-line railroads which will assist in speeding up communication between Washington and its suburbs, and between suburb and suburb.

The meeting will be preceded by a dinner, served at the Lord Calvert Inn, College Park, at 6:45 p. m., and will be followed by a buffet supper.

G.O.P. to Hold Open House In Montgomery

To Be Old Home Week
No Talks Scheduled
Neighborliness Theme

Montgomery County Bureau of the Post.
9213 Clark Ave., Silver Spring, Md.
Telephone SHepherd 4200.

Montgomery County Republicans are going to celebrate "old home week" next week with a series of meetings in the suburban area of the county at which candidates will be present but will not speak.

A. Charles Stewart, Republican candidate for House of Representatives to succeed David J. Lewis, will be in the county from Wednesday to Saturday to greet and talk to voters and residents.

Meeting at Club

Stewart and all other county candidates will be present at an "at home" meeting Thursday from 8 to 9:30 p. m. at the Kenwood Golf and Country Club. The candidates will move among the guests and discuss campaign questions with a "personal touch."

No formal speeches are scheduled but all residents and voters of the suburban area are invited to visit the club and become acquainted with the candidates, according to Earl W. Shinn, finance manager of the Republican Campaign Committee.

Similar meetings at night are being planned for next week to supplement personal visits by Stewart and other candidates.

Merton English, jr., Republican candidate for House of Delegates, will talk over Station WMAL tonight at 6:20 p. m. on campaign issues. Republican speakers will talk each Monday and Friday night.

To Pave Chevy Chase View

The Chevy Chase View Citizens committee yesterday advertised for bids on a $57,000 town paving project. Bids must be submitted by November 7 for 8-inch concrete curbs and gutters, with asphalt top and alternate bids on plain concrete.

Streets to be paved are Cleveland, Everett, Franklin and Glenrose. The PWA agreed to grant 45 per cent of the cost.

Horse Show for Germantown

The annual horse show of the Germantown Grange will be held tomorrow, beginning at 10 a. m. on the farm of Walter P. Johnson, former pitching ace and candidate for county commissioner on the Republican ticket, near Germantown. The show will be strictly a draft show with no entry fee or admission charges.

4-H Clubs Winners

Montgomery County teams have been well up in the finals of several State-wide and national contests in the past week, according to Assistant County Agent Rufus . King, in charge of 4-H club work.

The Montgomery 4-H boys' team placed fifth in the livestock judging contest in the Baltimore Fat Livestock Show, and all county entrants won prize money. They included Howard Cissel, Emanuel Walter and George Lechlider.

The county dairy demonstration team, composed of Miss Catherine Stiles and William King, placed fourth the Eastern section of the National Dairy Show at Columbus, Ohio.

Banquet in Takoma Park

The Takoma Park Chamber of Commerce will hold a banquet October 31, at 7:30 p. m., at the Manor Club, near Norbeck, Md., according to announcement by O. W. Youngblood, president.

Ralph Shure is general chairman of the dinner, while Warren D. Haley is in charge of the program. Maryland, Virginia and Washington Chamber of Commerce members and their wives have been invited to attend.

Plan Hat Party

Eggs Fly as Police Battle N. Y. Strikers

New York, Oct. 20 (AP).—Seventy-five police battled for half an hour today to break up a melee between 200 striking pickets and 40 nonstrikers at the Brooklyn plant of the Aerovox Co., manufacturers of electrical codensers.

8 Va. Delegates Named to M. E. Merger Parley

Six Lay Members
Two Are Clerics
Annexation Favored

By the Associated Press.

Lynchburg, Va., Oct. 20.—Six lay and two clerical delegates were elected today to represent the Virginia conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, at the unifying conference in Kansas City next April which will complete details of unification of the three branches of the Methodist church.

Lay delegates elected today were Col. William Phelps, of Bedford; L. W. Wells, of Richmond; B. L. Fisher, of Martinsville; Col. R. L. Brewer, of Suffolk; E. E. Eanes, of Emporia, and Lucius C. Gregory, of Suffolk.

Clerical delegates named were Dr. J. M. Potts, of Richmond, and Dr. H. F. Clarke, of Lynchburg.

The conference acted favorably on a recommendation by Dr. C. O. Tuttle, of Rocky Mount to refer to the Kansas City conference a proposal, advanced here yesterday, that the Virginia conference be enlarged by a 40-mile wide annexation from the Baltimore conference. Dr. Tuttle headed a committee to which the proposal was referred.

It's Cricket, Okay, But Not to Actor

Barnett Parker took his first real exercise in fifteen years and the result—he walked with difficulty. At the insistence of his friend, Gerald Oliver Smith, the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer player was talked into playing a game of cricket. Parker, who prides himself on taking less exercise than any other Hollywoodite, claims he last exercised that hard when doing a play on Broadway which required him to jump over pieces of furniture. "That cricket game was definitely my last bit of exercising," the actor promised.

Church Body Backs U. S. Merit System

Plans Congress Drive
Episcopal Synod Aim
Officers Are Elected

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 20.—Delegates to the fifteenth Episcopal Synod of the Province of Washington resolved today to ask Senators and Representatives of the five States in the province to urge application of the civil service system in all Federal agencies wherever possible.

The resolution proposed that individual dioceses and councils use every effort to urge adoption of the civil service system by State and local governments.

The synod asserted it approved the "merit system" in principle and would urge its adoption wherever applicable, but that it would remain clear of political references regarding establishment of the system.

The synod embraces Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania and Delaware, and the District of Columbia.

The resolutions committee recommended further study of retirement funds for church employes, of the application of the social security act to the church, and of legislation designed to prevent hasty marriages.

A few salient points about an enchanting home in a grove of fine old trees—

Of course the living room affords lovely views; the kitchen is replete with modern appointments, and the 4 bedrooms and 3 exquisite baths are well arranged, but what I want to talk about is a living room. You will like the huge oak beams and the massive stone fireplace. Delicately shaded, stippled walls symbolize the best. Decorative features of the period. It's a hospitable room, a living room in the truest sense of the word. And now a quick trip to the tavern room where good cheer and fellowship prevail. There's a quaint lantern, and benches around a rugged fireplace in natural stone finished to ceiling height and many other features such as maids' quarters and bath, 2-car garage, etc. Let us give you further particulars. Price, only $11,850. J. WESLEY BUCHANAN, ME. 1143 until 9 p. m.

The Thrill That Comes Once in a Lifetime

Bob Burns Says—

There's somethin' about the city that makes people cold and cruel. I suppose that's the reason why dramatic critics in the city can jest tear an artist to pieces if they don't like 'em. They're different in small towns.

I remember when an operatic singer played Van Buren. All the week before, the editor of the Press-Argus had been runnin' stories that her press agent had been sendin' in, about the sacrifices she had made for her art. All of the stories mentioned the fact that she never ate before she sang. The night of her concert came and the next morning all the editor said was, "Heard Madam 'So and So' last night. She might jest as well have et."

Dr. E. V. Jones Resigns Post In Arlington

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST, Clarendon, Va., Tel. OXford 0509

Dr. Ralph G. Beachley, county health officer, yesterday announced the resignation of Dr. Edward V. Jones, jr., assistant county health officer, effective October 27.

Dr. Jones, who came to Arlington County November 15, 1937, from the State health department at Richmond, has accepted a position with the health department of West Virginia. He will be stationed in Logan County.

A native of Hampton, Va., Dr. Jones, after receiving his early education in the local schools, attended the University of Virginia, where he studied for eight years, graduating with B. S. and M. D. degrees.

Radio Station Ruled Out

The Federal Communications Commission yesterday denied an application by the Arlington Radio Service, Inc., for authority to establish in the county a new radio station.

It was pointed out by the commission that Arlington area is well supplied with broadcasting service.

Chain-Store Tax Opposed

Resolutions opposing the "Patman bill," which provides for a chain-store tax were adopted unanimously by the Woman's Club of Lyon Park yesterday. All members were urged to write to Senators Carter Glass and Harry Flood Byrd and Representative Howard W. Smith requesting that they oppose the bill. Letters will be sent to other women's clubs in the county asking that they take similar action.

Referendum Favored

The Clarendon Citizens Associations at its meeting last night in Community House went on record favoring the referendum on staggering the terms of office for county board members. Vote will be at the November election.

Resolutions were adopted requesting the county school board and county board to permit the use of the Washington-Lee High School gymnasium for a communitiy center. Copies of the resolution will be sent to all civic associations and to the Arlington County Civic Federation asking their indorsement.

Scout Anniversary

Boy Scout Troop No. 108 celebrates its first anniversary at a meeting tonight in the Mount Vernon Baptist Church, Virginia Highlands. Parents and friends have been invited to attend.

To Issue Bar Pamphlet

George P. Grove, president of the Arlington County Bar Association, announces he has received word from M. B. Watts, clerk of the Supreme Court of Appeals of Virginia, that the Supreme Court of Appeals has decided to promulgate the rules on intergration of the Virginia State Bar Association.

Watts said a reprint of the pamphlet which was issued some time ago will contain amendments.

Prepare for Chest Drive

Preparations for a country-wide Community Chest drive November 9-22 were made at a group meeting headed by Col. Christopher G. Garnett, campaign chairman, at the courthouse last night.

Col. Garnett announced the following persons who will act as group chairmen:

Caldwell C. Kendrick, Clarendon; William C. Goth, jr., Arlington; John G. Pollard, Cherrydale; Thomas W. Phillips, Airport section; the Rev. Peyton Williams, Carne; P. E. Henninger, Colonial Village; A. D. Adams, Lyon Park; Miss Constance A. Backus, Glencarlyn; Philip Shepherd, Rosslyn, and Miss Margaret Holt, Arlington Farm.

James H. Simmonds was named assistant county chairman.

Headquarters in the Rucker Building at Clarendon will be open each day.

Chairman Garnett stressed the point that the plan this year permits the thousands of residents of the county who are employed in Washington to designate 50 per cent of their contribution to Arlington County use and the remainder to any Community Chest agency or agencies.

Yearbook Editors Listed

Bible School Officers

Vernon B. Vaden, general superintendent; C. Robert Gibbs, assistant superintendent; Harold A. Harbaugh, treasurer; Mrs. Mildred L. Wall, secretary of the school council; Earle E. Harbaugh, assistant secretary; Mrs. Ira P. Harbaugh, superintendent of elementary department; Miss Anna P. Calvert, assistant superintendent; Mrs. Isla Flournoy, superintendent of cradle roll, and Mrs. Edna Council, assistant superintendent.

Fumes of Benzol Found Effective For Tobacco Mold

Chatham, Va., Oct. 20 (AP).—Control of blue mold by the fumes of benzol is likely to be generally practiced next tobacco-growing season, according to J. E. Stone, demonstration agent for Pittsylvania County who was questioned today about the research of Dr. J. E. Pinkard at the Government's experimental station here.

All county agents in this section have been interested in the development, Stone said, and the system was sufficiently far advanced last seeding season to permit experiments by farmers who placed containers of the benzol under the canvas of their seed beds, the volatile fumes killing the blue mold germs.

Last season, however, was not considered a fair test in this section, Stone said, because there was relatively little infection. The county agent added he had seen tobacco beds "cured" of infection by the gas treatment but pointed out that unless the farmer understood the treatment it was possible to overdo the cure and kill the plants.

$50,000 Wing To The Pines Is Dedicated

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Berkeley Springs, Va., Oct. 20.—Basil O'Connor, of New York, president of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, was the principal speaker here this afternoon at services formally opening a $50,000 addition to The Pines, treatment center for sufferers from infantile paralysis.

Also on the speaking program today were Dr. Robert C. Wood, United States Department of Labor; A. W. Garnett, director of the West Virginia Department of Public Assistance, and Congressman Jennings Randolph, of this district, as well as executives of the sponsoring foundation.

Ali Ghan Shrine, of Cumberland, Md., participated in the ceremonies today, bringing its band from Cumberland and its chanters from Hagerstown. W. H. S. White, of Shepherdstown, W. Va., president of Shepherd State Teachers College, was in charge of the shrine ritual at the exercises.

500 Attend P.-T.A. Parley In Alexandria

Meet at 9:30 A.M. Today Will Discuss Schools Mrs. Collins Dies

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU, 907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va. Phone Temple 3767 Delivery Service, phone Alex. 1404

Approximately 500 delegates are attending the thirty-fifth annual convention of the Virginia Branch of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers Associations in the First Baptist Church, with headquarters at the George Mason Hotel.

Dr. Charl Ormond Williams, national chairman of school education of the P.-T. A. and director of field service of the National Education Association, was the principal speaker yesterday morning. She referred to the many "isms" in the world and said education and enlightenment were abroad in the land through the greatest, most far-reaching public-school system ever founded by any nation.

Dr. Henry F. Vaughan, commissioner of health of Detroit, Mich., gave a talk on "The Detroit Plan for Tuberculosis Control."

A tea was held in the afternoon in Gadsby's Tavern, by the local P.-T. A., headed by Mrs. Albert M. Briggs, president of the council, assisted by Mrs. Wayland C. Kidd, chairman for local arrangements.

Session at 9:30 A. M.

The general session will be at 9:30 this morning, presided over by Dr. E. L. Fox, of Ashland, State first vice president. Assembly singing will be led by Mrs. Stephen H. Field, and the invocation by the Rev. Robert C. Masterton, rector of Grace Episcopal Church. Mrs. W. Cameron Roberts will sing a solo.

Dr. Fred W. Alexander, supervisor of Negro education, State department of education, will speak on "Education for a Changing World."

A conference on better homes will begin at 10:30 a. m., the first subject to be "Improved Home Environment," led by Miss Maude E. Wallace, assistant director of extension work. Dr. Mildred Thurow Tate, of the Virginia Polytechnic Institute, Blacksburg, will speak on "The Child in Tomorrow's World."

Discussion from the floor will be led by Mrs. Florence Jodzies, Home Demonstration Club member from Fairfax County.

To Discuss Schools

Discussion on better schools will be led by Mrs. Elsie Davis Bosley, supervisor of elementary education in Fairfax County. Participants will be Mrs. Mildred Finks, school board member; Mrs. Florence Jodzies, layman and taxpayer; Melvin Landes, teacher; Mrs. W. J. Cleveland, public welfare case worker; Mrs. Fannie Lou Seamans, public health nurse, and Mrs. Lennig Sweet, patron.

Mrs. Collins Dies

Mrs. Bessie Jane Collins, wife of Joseph B. Collins, died Wednesday night at her home, 30 Washington Terrace, George Washington Park, Alexandria. Besides her husband she leaves a daughter, Mrs. G. M. Payne, of Hagerstown, Md., and a son, Joseph B. Collins, jr., of this city. She was the daughter of Joseph Meredith, of Greenbriar County, W. Va. She was born in Monroe County, W. Va., and lived in Alexandria for the past 28 years.

The funeral will be held today at 2 p. m. from the home, conducted by the Rev. Dr. William B. McIlwaine, pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church. Burial will be in Ivy Hill Cemetery.

The annual Christian Workers' Training School, in the Washington Street Methodist Episcopal Church South, will close tonight. The Rev. Charles A. York has been the dean in charge, and Miss Florence Hostetter has been conducting a course on "How Shall I Learn to Teach Religion?"

Wilson Foundation Buys Birthplace

Authority to acquire the Staunton, Va., birthplace of America's wartime president, was voted officers of the Woodrow Wilson Birthplace Foundation by trustees of the corporation, meeting here at the home of Richard W. Bolling, brother of Wilson's widow.

A check for $15,000, signed by Jesse H. Jones, treasurer of the foundation, already has been sent to Staunton for purchase from Mary Baldwin College of the Presbyterian manse where Wilson was born in 1856.

A restoration, at a cost of approximately $20,000, will be undertaken immediately. Among trustees attending yesterday's meeting were Mrs. Cordell Hull, Senator Harry Byrd and Norman Davis.

G-Man Chief Hits Crime 'Toleration' In W. Va. Speech

Martinsburg, W. Va., Oct. 20.—J. Edgar Hoover, head of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, in an address here tonight under the auspices of the Woman's Club, pleaded with the citizenry to build up a citizens' code to combat crime. His theme was the "Criminal's Code."

He was introduced by Congressman Jennings Randolph, of this (Second) West Virginia District.

"Toleration of crime is the greatest crime today," he said.

Criminals must have aid, he added. The actual offender must have assistance. The "crinimal's code" looks to venal politics, he said. He drew a distinction between politics and venal politics, the latter including the politician who serves crime rather than decency.
